OLD MASTERS' WORK IS CALLED INDECENT

(Journal Special Service.)

Omaha, Jan. 26.—The Omaha courts have decided that works of art by famous painters, including Vandyke, Rubens and Vanderwerff, are indecent and that reproductions from them cannot be sold in Omaha stores. For persisting in their sale John Greenberg today was fined and warned that on the next offense he would be sent to jail.

Greenberg had on sale copies of Rubens' "Judgment of Paris," the original of which is in the Dresden art gallery; Vandyke's "Diana," and "Golden Reign of Jupiter," and Vanderwerff's "Magdalena," and others of that class.

A police sergeant confiscated the reproductions on the ground that they were indecent and Greenberg was fined for having them on sale.

VERDICT FOR SLAUGHTER FOR SIXTEEN HUNDRED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Jan. 26.—The jury in the damage suit of W. W. Slaughter against E. L. Remington returned a verdict for $1,600 for the plaintiff who sued for $10,000 and $400 attorneys' fees. The suit was an outgrowth of the shooting affray last November in which Remington shot Slaughter while the latter was plowing in his field.
