COAL POCKETS UNDER THE PANAMA CANAL.

Storage chambers for coal are being dug in the bottom of the Panama Canal. In time the question of coaling United States war vessels will be a vital one and coal pockets are being prepared now while the machinery is on the ground. The bottom of the canal has been chosen for the storage chambers so that the coal will be safely hidden from any possible enemy. A further advantage lies in the fact that coal deteriorates less rapidly under water than when exposed to the air. Several drills and dredges are now at work excavating the bottom of the canal and building the storage chambers.—Ex.

Parcel Post Atlas
FREE
Everybody Should Have One.

A complete Parcel Post map, showing instantly the rate of postage under this new system from any point in the United States to any other place in the Union is what everyone is looking for at present.

The Review has just such a map.

Better still, it will be given free to subscribers who pay for a year in advance for either the Daily or Twice-a-Week Review.

This map, printed in colors, occupies two pages of a 12-page atlas, the pages being 14 by 18 inches in size, thus giving a U. S. map 18 by 28 inches. A large detailed map of the Panama Canal zone in colors occupies two other pages and a big Parcel Post map of Oregon is another feature. The latter, as well as the U. S. map, is laid off in parcel post units, showing instantly the rate on parcel post packages from any postoffice in the state to any other postoffice in Oregon. To find the rate it is only necessary to measure the distance with a ruler, a stick or a piece of string, on either the Oregon or the U. S. map, on a direct line between the two points desired, and then place this measurement on the "zone" diagram at the foot of the map. There the postage rate per pound will be found in plain figures whatever the distance may be.

In addition to these maps there are several pages of detailed information regarding the new parcel post laws and regulations, explanation of the "zone" system and postage rates, etc. Also full information as to what may be sent by parcel post, as well as other postage rates and classifications. All the important facts relating to the Panama Canal are also included.

These maps are certainly the best we have ever seen, and doubtless are the best yet devised, for showing instantly the parcel post rates between all points in the United States. We are informed that the U. S. maps alone, using this same universal zone unit system, are being sold for 75 cents each.

Following our custom and belief that nothing is too good for Review subscribers, we ordered a quantity of these parcel post atlases by wire, and they have just arrived by express, direct from the manufacturers in the East.

The newest thing out.

Something everybody needs.

They are Free to Review subscribers who pay a year in advance.

Send in your order now and get the benefit. This atlas will save you many trips to the postoffice to ask about parcel post rates and regulations.

GIVEN ABSOLUTELY FREE
with a year paid in advance subscription to either the Daily or Twice-a-Week Review. This applies to either new or old subscribers. We also have other fine premiums and splendid clubbing offers. Address, REVIEW PUBLISHING CO., ROSEBURG, OREGON.
