GARDINER STAGES TO BE ABANDONED SOON AS RAILROAD IS OPEN

It was 38 years ago that Captain N. J. Cornwall and associates started the present stage line from Drain to Coos Bay, says the Marshfield Times. A few weeks now will see the close of the beach route, probably for all time for the coming of the railroad means a new and quicker way of travel.

But nevertheless, the stages have aided materially in the development of Coos Bay. The Drain route at one time was the popular road to Gardiner and Coos Bay. It is true the Coos Bay Wagon Road was open, but this was passable only about three or four months of the year and the other route was an all year one.

As to the Florence road, "you could hardly get an eagle in that way in the early days," as Captain Cornwall describes it.

Capt. Cornwall was in the city today and told some of the history pertaining to the stage route with which he has been so long connected.

When the Drain route was opened the passengers generally stayed over night at Gardiner, proceeding the next day down the beach to Coos Bay.

Gardiner was a lively little town. There were several stores, two sawmills and plenty of saloons there at that time. Sailing ships came in for frequent lumber cargoes.

At that time gasoline boats were unheard of but steamboats had been in operation to Gardiner from very early days. Passengers were taken from Gardiner to Winchester Bay in rowboats.

At the mouth of the river they boarded the horse drawn stages and came to Jarvis landing where at the first, sailing boats were used to bring the passengers over to Empire.

But the world do move and two years ago Gorst and Kinney put on the automobiles to carry passengers up and down the beach between Jarvis landing and the Umpqua. Gasoline boats plied between Winchester Bay and Gardiner and it was the first of last May that Capt. Cornwall put on the Ford auto stages on the beach from the Umpqua to Florence. Previously this trade had been handled by the horse drawn stages.

"I think 30 days will see the railroad open and handling this passenger traffic," stated Capt. Cornwall. "This will put us out of business. But the Drain stage route probably will always continue, for mail purposes."

"CASCARETS" FOR A COLD, BAD BREATH OR SICK HEADACHE

Best for Liver and Bowels, for Biliousness, Sour Stomach and Constipation

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred tongue, bad colds, indigestion, sallow skin and miserable headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to autoid misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleaning, too.

REPORTS TEACHER USED REVOLVER TO SILENCE HER LARGER PUPILS

The story of a rural school teacher who enforced discipline with a gun is told in a reading circle paper just received at the school of University Extension from a Douglas County, Oregon, teacher. She does not tell where the incident happened and the only voucher for its authenticity is the examination question in reply to which the supposed happening was described.

This was the question:

"Describe the most critical example of the unruly school that has come under your observation. Tell (a) what caused it to become unruly; (b) what characteristics marked it as unruly; (c) what measures were necessary to establish good discipline."

The young woman responded with this example:

"A certain rural school had an inexperienced teacher, a little lacking in self confidence. The youngsters readily detected this, and went from bad to worse, until the teacher was discouraged and restless. When the season for spellbound teacher appeared the pupils were determined to 'run her out,' and soon did.

"The next applicant for the school was a slight young woman of experience. The board told her of the history of the school but nothing deterred, she insisted she could manage it.

"The first day there was no disturbance on the surface until 4 o'clock. One of the older boys had locked himself after the noon intermission which he raised his hand and asked to get a drink. The teacher refused his request, adding that he should have attended to that before the bell rang. Notwithstanding this, the lad went to the water under and took a drink.

"When the row was at its line, the teacher quietly took a small revolver out of her drawer and shot the cap off of the boy's hand and told the pupil to take his seat. He took it.

"After that the teacher's word was law.

"The teacher had perfect confidence in her ability to handle a revolver, as hunting wild animals alone was a hobby with her, and practice had made perfect."

The quality of the teacher's paper was good throughout, and the remaining answers so sensible and accurate, that the reading circle examiners are inclined to accept the story quoted in the foregoing.

FOR RHEUMATISM

As soon as an attack of rheumatism begins apply Sloan's Linament. Don't waste time and suffer unnecessary agony. A few drops of Sloan's Linament on the affected parts is all you need. The pain goes at once.

A grateful sufferer writes:—"I was suffering for three weeks with chronic rheumatism and stiff neck, although I tried many medicines, they failed. Fortunately I heard of Sloan's Linament and after using it three or four days am up and well. I am employed at the biggest department store in S. F. where they employ from six to eight hundred hands, and they surely will hear all about Sloan's Linament.—H. B. Smith, San Francisco, Cal.—Jan. 1915. 25c. at all Druggists.

THE SLANDERER.

We copy the following selection and give it prominence in the Courier, trusting that it may result in some good:

Murder in the first degree several times magnified and intensified—that's slander.

The meanest devil on earth is the slander devil, be he man or be she woman. One who would attempt to betray the reputation of another in the hands and mouths of his fellowsinners aligns himself with Ananias, John Iscariot and Satan himself. No lower character, no more contemptable, scurrilous, reprehensible, incorrigible cur walks on earth than the murderer of one's good name. No words are written, printed or spoken that are strong enough to characterize his diabolism.

The chief earmark of the slanderer is his predisposition to the very thing he accuses his victim of; this is practically the invariable rule. He the slanderer professional, official or private in public life, he has somewhere in the dark closet of his own miserable existence the very skeleton that he endeavors to fasten upon his victim; the mind runs that way. Things like that appeal to him more than anything else. His activities along those channels seem more easy and customary; and if confederates in the promotion of polemics are desired he can find them among his former associates in similar experiences.

There is nothing too mean for the slanderer to do. There are no words too strong to use in describing him. If a murderer should hang seven times, the slanderer should drop seven hundred times to be buried alive, feet downward, so that the more he scratches the further from decent society he and the nearer to his father the Devil he will get.—Selected.

R. E. Overman, who has been operating a placer mine on North Myrtle near the mouth of Buck Fork, was in town last week with some fine looking gold nuggets which he had washed out during the present winter, says the Myrtle Creek Mail. One of these nuggets weighed an ounce, another a half ounce, while several others were as large as grains of corn. While Mr. Overman had some $40 in gold dust, his work is merely preliminary to what he is planning to do. With two giants he has been patiently hammering away at the stubborn clay banks in the Myrtle Creek bottom in order to bottom his mine at the mouth of Boat Gulch, noted for its richness in placer gold. This he has succeeded in doing and he is now ready to invade the rich placer deposit where by stands an excellent chance of taking out a lot of gold. Formerly much gold was taken from Bear Gulch, some of it being quite coarse, one nugget therefrom weighing better than $10.
