Behind every Underwood User

20 Years of World's Typewriting Championships

THE World's Typewriting Championship, held annually to determine typewriter supremacy, has been won on the Underwood for twenty consecutive years. During the hour of continuous writing in these contests, the machines are driven at a high rate of speed and are subjected to the severest kind of treatment. And no typewriter except the Underwood has been able to meet the requirements for speed and accuracy under these adverse conditions.

The typewriter that has withstood such exhaustive tests in the World's Championship Contests will naturally stand even the hardest usage in commercial offices. As every stenographer writes certain familiar letter combinations with the speed of the World's Fastest Typist, it is no wonder that there are more than 3,000,000 typists who are satisfied with nothing less than Underwood speed and accuracy.

WOMAN SAVED FROM SENTENCE BY PROSECUTOR

Plea in Federal Court at Portland Aids Wife of George E. Cope.

MAN GIVEN 3 YEARS

Bad Checks, Car Theft and Forged Bill of Sale Admitted Acts of Klamath Pair.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PORTLAND, Ore., May 11.—The plea of a United States prosecutor saved a woman from a six months' jail sentence in federal court today.

On her plea of guilty to a charge of interstate automobile theft, Judge Wolverton sentenced Mrs. Florence Cope, former librarian of the Carnegie Library at Klamath Falls, to serve six months in jail.

He also sentenced George Edward Cope, her husband, to three years in McNeil Island prison on each of two guilty pleas in indictments charging automobile theft, but allowed the sentences to run concurrently.

When he sentenced Mrs. Cope, he ordered that her sentence should begin at the expiration of a six months' jail sentence she now is serving in jail on charges of passing bad checks. She has already served two months of that time.

Assistant United States Attorney McGilchrist, prosecutor, was on his feet immediately with a plea for the woman.

When he had finished speaking Judge Wolverton changed the sentence to four months and ordered it to run concurrently with the present sentence. That amounted to wiping the new sentence out altogether.

Husband Held Real Crook.

McGilchrist declared that although Mrs. Cope had taken all the blame when she pleaded guilty to the bad check charge and had also pleaded guilty to the automobile theft charge without trying to palliate the offense, he believed that she had committed the offense on the prompting of her husband and to get food and clothing for her three children.

"I believe she is innocent of any criminal intent," he declared. The leniency which McGilchrist asked for the wife did not extend to the husband. When he married her, the prosecutor declared, he concealed the fact of prison terms in Walla Walla and Deer Lodge penitentiaries.

On the other hand, he said, Mrs. Cope was the daughter of a prominent Klamath Falls family and a person of standing, who had for three years been head librarian there.

Bad Check Pay For Car.

Some years ago, he related, she went to Arizona with her parents, and, on their return to Klamath Falls, she had gone to work as cashier in a restaurant. There she met Cope and they were married. Their oldest child is now six.

Bad luck got on their trail and they decided to come to Portland from San Francisco, where they were living. They bought a small car. It was alleged that they made the first payment with a bad check. In Portland they are alleged to have sold the car to a wrecker on a forged bill of sale. Officers charged that Mrs. Cope passed some bad checks to raise money. Some of it went to her children who are now in Klamath Falls with Mrs. Cope's parents.

After Mrs. Cope had taken the blame for the worthless checks and gone to jail for half a year, Cope went back to Klamath Falls, where it is alleged he stole a car, drove it to San Francisco and then to Portland, where he was arrested.

TRAGEDY IN MINE REVEALS SUPPOSED WIDOW'S MISTAKE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11. — When the bod mangled him to a pulp at the San Francisco fire 2 years ago and married again in the interim, Mrs. W. L. Winstead of Los Angeles has learned that her first husband was the Walter Cope killed in the recent Gorgas Creek tunnel tragedy near Quincy. Identification through friends and acquaintances was made by their son, William John Cope, student at Stanford University.

The Copes home in the Marina district was blotted out, so far as the first last sight and track of each other, and after days of anxiety Mrs. Cope was told her husband had been killed. She donned widow's garb and mourned him as dead. Thirty months later she became Mrs. W. L. Winstead.

She read of the death of William Cope, mine foreman in the recent disaster, remembered that her husband had been a miner in his youth, and sent her son to determine identification.

WOMAN CROOK WHO ESCAPED PRISON IS BACK IN CELL

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 11.—Rain drenched, hungry and wretchedly cold, Lillian McDowell, the "cat-eye Annie" of numerous spectacular jewel thefts who escaped from Auburn prison early yesterday, was recaptured at daylight one mile northeast of Weedsport.

She was found in an open field, partly hidden in a pile of weeds and brush, which she had collected to protect her from the cold and rain. Still clad in her prison uniform of blue and white gingham, she appeared to have suffered greatly from exposure during her 24 hours' flight. She said she walked to Weedsport yesterday, eight miles, without once being challenged.

A farmer living near the spot where she was found, saw her leave the road and go into the fields last night and notified the prison authorities.

It was the opinion of the guards that their prisoner was glad to be captured, the prospect of dry clothing, warmth and something to eat appeared to interest her more than anything else on the trip back to prison.

MONKEYS WITH KLINE SHOWS HAVE HUMAN TRAITS

Much has been said for and against Evolution but that as it may, when one of the human race see monkeys seated in tiny automobiles that have all the appearance of toys yet are practical in that they are driven by motor power, see them catch the wheel of their car as it whirls around the speedway at a killing pace. The writer will not argue as to whether Mr Darwin's theory was right, but then one notices that look of determination upon the faces of the little simians there, as they strive for supremacy so that mistake race track, we are compelled to admit that they exhibit a most remarkable trait of human forbearance. Three of the monkey family perform at the monkey speedway daily upon the midway of the Albert Lee Kline Shows, America's Cleanest Amusements that will exhibit for the entire week commencing May 17.
