Five trees go to war for every man in uniform—one makes possible the man in uniform's living quarters, mess halls and chapels in training camps. Another provides the wooden crates necessary in shipping him food, clothing tanks and guns. Wood from the remaining three trees goes into the making of virtually every piece of equipment necessary in waging modern warfare—wood cellulose in high explosives, wood in bombers and battleships, wood for pontoon bridges. These trees are helping conserve our freedom. Oregon produces one-sixth of the nation's timber supply to help outfit the man in the service. Protect these trees. Keep Oregon Green.

In Klamath Falls—Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Losee and daughter, Lorraine of Roseburg, visited the first part of their vacation in Portland and are spending the remainder in Klamath Falls, visiting relatives and friends and also touring coastal points.

If you buy farm equipment of unknown brands, you undertake a field-testing job at your own expense. You take the chance that the machines won't give the service you hope for.

Play it safe! Choose farm equipment that's both nationally known and field-proved.

Fairbanks-Morse products are backed by 115 years of successful engineering and manufacturing experience. Every unit is performance-proved. You know before you buy that it will serve you long and well . . . because it has proved its merit on thousands of other farms.

You know, too, that repair parts will always be available should you need them.
