ounty Court Appoints Road Patrolmen For All Road Districts

County Assessor Frank Calkins has completed the compilation of d district valuation data and is sending out printed leaflets containing information. The county court has also selected the road patrolmen serve in the various districts and the names of these officials are con-ned in the pamphlet sent out by the assessor. Special road taxes will paid in only 20 of the 69 districts, although many more voted to pay cial tax. However, because of irregularities in posting notices or in ding meetings or making reports of such meetings, such tax levies were d illegal in a number of districts and consequently there will be no cial funds. This is regrettable, as the county court has but a small ount of money available and the special taxes will be needed in many tricts. The patrolmen, and their addresses, together with the valua-s of the respective districts and the tax levy and amount to be raised, ows:

h "The Right to Love," his sec-ond independent production, George Fitzmaurice has definitely established his reputation as a motion picture producer who can combine lavishly artistic backgrounds with dramatic action. The picture which opens a 3 day run at the Majestic theatre tonight is looked forward to with much expectation.

Mr. Fitzmaurice has taken the drama of mismated husbands and wives, with the scene laid in Turkey, and made a picture that holds the interest throughout. Lovely Mae Murray, is the ill treated wife of Lord Falkland the British representative at Constantinople. The climax is reached when he installs his mistress in their home, and at the same time imports a Prince Stainslaus, whose mission it is to compromise Lady Falkland. Colonel Loring, well played by David Powell is the American who foils Lord Falkland, though not until after he has killed the nobleman in a row. But the picture ends happily.

Miss Murray is an exceptional emotional actress. David Powell is suave and easily at home in his role. The other members of the cast have been likewise adroitly chosen for their respective parts and includes Alma Tell, Holmes E. Herbert, and Macy Harlan. Ouida Bergere wrote the protoplay from a French novel. It is a Paramount release.

MRS IDA HAMBURGH of Brattleboro, Vt., who says she never dreamed there was anything on earth that would do what Tanlac has done for her. Gains 27 pounds.

"I think it is perfectly marvelous the way Tanlac has built me up. Before I began taking it I was in the most wretched health and only weighed 117 pounds. I now weigh 144 pounds and my health is splendid.

"I never dreamed that there was a medicine on earth that would cause me to regain my former weight and health in so short a time, but Tanlac did it and I simply cannot tell you how grateful I am to this wonderful medicine.

"I suffered for two years from indigestion and dyspepsia, and was in a very badly run down condition. I had a tired, worn out feeling nearly all of the time and rarely had any appetite.

"At times I would have indigestion so bad that I could hardly breathe. I also suffered from palpitation o the heart, severe headaches, and bad pains in my back, but thanks to Tanlac, all of these terrible symptoms have left me and I now feel as well as I ever felt in my life.

"Another thing, I sleep just splendid at night now and never suffer from nervousness like I used to. Tanlac is certainly a wonderful medicine and I am only too delighted to recommend it to my friends." The above statement was made by Mrs. Ira Hamburgh, of 316 S. Main Street, Brattleboro, Vermont.

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman; in Dixonville by Thos. Hatfield and by leading druggists everywhere.

Bicycle Racer Recovering Sight

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 26.—Otto Ziegler, San Jose, who in the late nineties held several bicycle speed records and later won the title of world champion rider, is slowly recovering his sight after spending nine years in darkness at a state school for the blind in Oakland, Cal.

A fall Ziegler suffered while racing in Seattle, Wash., led to his blindness, he believes. About one year ago he began to see light and now his doctor says he will regain his lost sight within a year.

Ziegler has never seen an airplane or a modern automobile. "I've heard the airplanes overhead and have often tried to imagine what they are like," he said recently. Discussing automobiles, he said the ones he remembers were the rough riding models of 1910 with backs projecting high above the body lines. "I can tell the big improvements in them by the increasing easiness of their riding qualities and the fact they do not make so much noise," he asserted.

When Ziegler comes back to San Jose after recovering his sight he will be reminded of a reception he received years ago when he came home from Denver after breaking several world records. It is said that one of the largest crowds ever assembled in San Jose up to that time was at the railroad station to meet him, for bicycle racing was a sport of the first class. A band headed a parade in which the rider rode in a carriage which was used just once before to carry President Harrison about the city.

JAPANESE AVERSE TO CHANGE

Idea That They Would Take Kindly to American-Built Houses Proved to Be Wrong.

With the double hope of business success and social service, a certain firm in Japan some years ago began the importation of American-made movable houses on a large scale. The houses, the firm believed, would offer very comfortable and cozy little homes at reasonable prices to the salary-earning classes of Nippon and would bring about a great improvement in the domestic life of the Japanese.

The enterprise, well-meaning as it undoubtedly was, turned out to be a failure. It was like an overzealous but enlightened missionary trying to impose the dogmas of Christianity on heathens, regardless of the latter's ideas, temperament and history. The Japanese have their own customs, modes of living and traditions, which, irrespective of whether they be good or bad, are dear to their hearts and hard to give up in a fortnight. Homes are the most basic of institutions, and house construction is the result of centuries of home life to a nation. To try to induce the Japanese to give up their houses immediately and dwell in the American-made houses is like trying to urge them to give up all Japanese ways of feeling, believing and thinking, and to adopt occidental ways of behavior. It is preposterous.—East and West News.

MEMENTOES OF GREAT ACTOR

Diary of Junius Brutus Booth and Other Interesting Relics Are Found in Old Theater.

Diaries and relics of Junius Brutus Booth, famous in the annals of the American stage, were brought to light by wreckers working on the reconstruction of the famous old Walnut Street Theater, at Philadelphia, Pa., the oldest playhouse in the United States.

Away up in the eaves, and there was no evidence to show how they were put there, were two big hampers of wicker, falling to pieces from age. The theater's manager had a ladder put up, and he and a workman started to ascend.

The ladder broke and the workman had some ribs fractured, but the hampers, when finally brought down, proved well worth the trouble.

They were full of oldtime costumes, a diary of the famous actor, a license for Booth's father to practice law, signed by the king of England, and a collection of old playbills and programs that are invaluable today.

Alongside the hampers, resting across two beams, was a big, thin slab of marble. It was found to be a lithograph stone on which were made the pictures advertising John Sleeper Clark.

Arc and Microscope.

Before the Royal Microscopical society in London there was described a method of photographing objects magnified by the microscope. The light of the electric arc itself is employed, that of the incandescent lamps being shielded; the light itself is filtered, and thus a powerful monochromatic light, at the extreme limit of visibility, is obtained.

With this light excellent photographs of minute objects, under a magnification of 2,200 diameters, were made and exhibited upon a screen. The experimenter suggested that lenses specially corrected for the ultra-violet rays would enable photography to do for the microscope what it has already done for the telescope.—New York Evening Post.

Peanuts Gain in Popularity.

More than 2,000,000 acres in this country were planted with peanuts last year. The demand for them is increasing by leaps and bounds. They are one of the most nutritious foods known to man, one pound of them (shelled) containing nearly half a pound of fat and a quarter of a pound of protein, both high grade and readily digestible. For running the body machine they are three times as efficient as an equal weight of beef and five times as efficient as an equal weight of eggs.

Peanuts yield a sweet, wholesome cooking oil. A bushel of them in the shell will produce a gallon of oil. Many lard substitutes now sold and popular are peanut oil converted into a solid fat.

May Combine Languages.

It will be of interest not only to students of philology in general but to anyone who has wondered why Norway, Denmark and Sweden waste so much time through having three different languages to know that Adolf Noreen, long professor of philology at Upsala, has started a movement to bring the three languages more closely together. His task is stupendous, but since he is a philologist himself he may usher in the day when a drama written by a Dane can be played in Stockholm without being translated.

The Variously Valuable Shark.

Sharks are now prized for their skin by manufacturers of shoes and leather articles. Special seines have been constructed with which to catch the man-fish, and as many as 200 a day have been captured. One hide, says Experimental Science, will produce 10 to 40 square feet of leather. The liver of the shark yields upon boiling with water a valuable oil, used in making glue, soap, paints and medicines. The meat is white, resembling halibut, and is edible.
