Oklahoma Governor To Have Barbecue for All the People at Inauguration

By L. L. SISK
(Press Staff Correspondent)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 16.—(Uni-press.)—"Dance with yer ma, kick her paw and dance with yer sister from Arkansaw."

"If you're old enough to know, swing your girl to and fro!"

These and many other quaint calls will ring through Oklahoma's capitol at the nights of January 8, when Jack Walton, of Oklahoma City, becomes ruler of the Sooner State.

Old fashioned square dances will follow the usual formal ball at the inauguration, he announced. Walton ran for office on the Democratic ticket and as the candidate of "common folks" and he is to be the "common folks" governor, Walton said.

There will be no fancy balls or other formal affairs for my inauguration," Walton declared. Blue jeans, hob-nail shoes, overalls and sun bonnets will be in order for the affair.

Corn pone and fish suits or plug hats will be in line.

Oklahoma's laboring mans candidate, the laboring man and his family will be invited to my celebration.

Rather than the old-fashioned affair to be on the two days Walton announced, the celebration would include:

The inaugural ceremony with a parade of "common folks" and everything."

A mammoth two-day barbecue, to include bear meat, venison, opossum, coon, squirrel, rabbit, mutton, pork, turkey, chicken, to be served with all other old-fashioned trimmings.

Will Have Indians

Indian dances and war dances, for the Blanket Indians will be here to stay in a tepee camp within the crowds.

A hoss picking and coon-dog contests for State championships.

The parade to precede the inauguration.

Visitors from all parts of the state will be available on railroads for the celebration. It was announced. Accommodations will be provided for 100,000 persons to attend the celebration.

The square dance callers from all sections of the state will be in line the all-night "sets" in the rotunda of the capitol building, available for the "break-down." The orchestras will play the dance music.

The House of Representatives and Senate will meet in front of the inaugural platform, while the chief justice of the State Supreme Court administers the oath of office.

Each of the State's seventy-seven counties is promising contributions for the barbecue. Each county will also produce a champion fiddler, banjo picker and coon-dog for the championship finals. Each County will also be represented in the parade by an elaborate decorated float.

Walton will lead the parade, riding "Teddy," famous Indian pony, owned by Theodore Roosevelt, in territorial days. The $1,000 saddle belonging to Joe Miller, 101 Ranch, will be used for the occasion.

"It's going to be some blowout," Governor Jack declared.

To Frame Fair Faces

Every Christmas brings new breakfast caps. Here are three of them made of net, lace and ribbon in different shapes and decked with tiny ribbon flowers. Each has a short, elastic tape set in a casing across the back, to fit it to the head, and they are among the welcome gifts that can be made by their donors.

Prosecution Phone Company Asked

SALEM, Dec. 16.—Steps to collect penalties from the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company for failure to comply with an order of the public service commission requiring segregation of the company's depreciation reserve fund so as to set out the Oregon reserve from that of the other states in the company operates, were taken by the commission Thursday when the information was placed in the hands of district Attorney John Carson of Marion county who has been asked to institute the necessary court action.

Under the Oregon public utilities act, utility corporations which fail to comply with orders of the commission are subject to penalties of not less than $100 nor more than $10,000 for each violation.

Board Order Ignored

The Oregon law grants to the public service commission the right to prescribe the forms of all books, accounts, papers and records used by the utility corporations in keeping their accounts and records.

Under the provisions of this law the commission, in its order of May 1, 1919, granting to the Pacific company an increase in telephone rates, required "that its proper portion of the existing depreciation reserve be segregated to the state of Oregon in a separate account and that hereafter this reserve account for Oregon shall be so kept and reported as to show all details as now and heretofore shown for the entire property."

Stalling Charged

This order, the commission points out, has been ignored by the telephone company and on November 29, 1919, another order requiring segregation of the depreciation reserve was made which has also been ignored, the company so far having failed to comply with the order.

Members of the commission explain that officials of the telephone company have persisted in "stalling" them of in their demands for this segregation until it has become necessary to seek court action to collect the penalties attached for violation of its orders.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH EMPLOYEES GET INCREASE

Employees of the Postal Telegraph Company have been notified that all employees who have a record of twelve months continuous service will receive an increase of five percent in pay. Messenger boys are also to receive a bonus for the year's work. The announcement states that the increase in wages is in recognition of the loyal enthusiastic and effective service rendered during the past year.

Legion Adjutants In National Conference

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 15.—The American Legion Auxiliary is of primary importance to the American Legion's plans for civic and patriotic legislation because women now have the ballot," Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, president of the Auxiliary, told forty-five state adjutants of the Legion at the opening session of their recent conference here.

"Old-time politicians have found that they must deal with women these days and it is not the most pleasant news in the world for them. Women are especially interested in those board measures which are designed to work toward the betterment of the social state of humanity. The Legion can rely on the Auxiliary to the limit for the furtherance of these purposes."

Dr. Barrett stated that she was for adjusted compensation for ex-service men "first, last and all the time."

Service to veterans, cooperation with other organizations in civic and worthy enterprises and effective propaganda were named by Claude A. Brown of Little Rock, adjutant of the Arkansas department, as the 'best tools" in an address on "How to Sell the American Legion to the Public." Mr. Brown said that "publicity is the T. N. T. of the American Legion" and urged that the Legion posts establish closer relations with the newspapers of their communities. The speaker praised the American Legion Speakers Bureau as an effective medium to bring the Legion's message to the public.

Father William P. O'Connor, Legion national chaplain, recommended a concentrated effort to enroll every chaplain in the Legion, stating that the great influence wielded by the clergy would result in a great increase in Legion membership.

"The small community is the back bone of the Legion," Perry Faulkner, commander of the Indiana department, stated in an address of welcome to the visiting adjutants. He urged that every ex-service man be enrolled in the various communities and stated that the Legion state adjutants were the persons who did the real work for the Legion.

A visit to national headquarters of the Legion and a dinner and theater party held by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce completed the program for the adjutants for the first day of the conference.

HOW OWNERS OF WAR STAMPS CAN GET CASH

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Owners of War Savings Stamps of the 1918 series will become eligible January 1 to "cash in" their stamps or certificates at full value, $5.

Treasury officials are preparing to wipe $625,000,000 from the debit side of Uncle Sam's ledger, or transfer a part of it to another account.

Two methods of redemption are offered by the Treasury, cash redemption or exchange for Treasury certificates, similar to the stamp certificates.

The prerequsite to either method of redemption is the filling out of "Form P. D. 750," copies of which may be obtained at any postoffice, from Federal Reserve Banks, from the Treasury, and possibly from local banks.

Holders of stamps who desire cash must follow the following rules:

If their certificates are registered, they must be presented to the postoffice where registered, accompanied by Form P. D. 750, as they are payable nowhere else.

If their certificates are unregistered, they may be presented at any money-order postoffice in the country, at any local bank, at any Federal Aeserve bank or at the Treasury in Washington, accompanied by the necessary form. Unregistered certificates are payable at any of these places.

Immediate cash redemption at banks, however, is at the option of the banks. Some institutions may desire to receive them for collection, the cash to be paid the holder after the bank obtains it from its nearest federal reserve bank.

The Other Plan

Thrifty persons who desire to keep their money in government investments may exchange their stamps for the new issue of Treasury certificates. Government financiers urge this exchange to afford relief to the strain on the Treasury's cash assets.

These certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $100, and $1,000. Holders of stamps may exchange them for these certificates at $20.50 for the $25 certificates, $82 for the $100 and $820 for the $1,000. The difference in the old and new securities will be paid in cash. Five years from date of purchase, the certificates are payable at face value. Owners of the certificates may obtain at any time prior to maturity full principal plus interest at 3 per cent, up to that date. All these certificates will be registered in Washington and will thus be practically theft-proof.

Exchange of stamp certificates for Treasury certificates may be made, in the case of registered certificates, at postoffices where registered and in the case of unregistered certificates, at money-order post offices, Federal Reserve banks and branches. Arrangements may be made with local banks for this exchange, but the places mentioned above are the only ones recognized by the government as official.

Treasury officials hope that at least half of the $625,000,000 of outstanding war savings stamp certificates will be exchanged for the new certificates. The exchange will greatly aid the refunding activities of the Treasury and will obviate the immediate paying-out of cash, which it is desired to avoid until the war time humps in public debt are smoothed out.

ENROLLMENT IN VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS ARE GROWING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—An enrollment of 47,528 pupils in the 4,945 vocational schools receiving federal funds and operating under approved state plans for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, compared with 324, 247 a year ago, will be shown in the annual report of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, it is announced by Harry L. Fiddler, vice-chairman. The number of schools compares with 3,877 reported at the end of the 1921 year.

"Teachers in these schools numbered 12,230, compared with 10,066 reported last year," says the report. "The fiscal year 1921-22 witnessed the greatest expansion in the State and Federal vocational education program of any year since the constitution of the Board."

Special effort was made during the past year in development of the part-time school. Accordingly, of the total enrollment, 288,655 pupils are in attendance at part-time schools, states the report. Classified by subjects, 130,973 are reported as studying in trade and industrial schools, 60,236 in agricultural schools; 118,708 in home economics schools, and 165,911 in attendance at general part-time continuation schools.

"Allotments available to the states last year totalled 4,120,833.72 and for the current year, ending June 30, 1923, the allotments will total $4,615,159.82," the report declares. "The states and local authorities spend more for vocational education than the amount of the federal grant, making the total amount expended last year 14,770,142.65, of which $3,854,570.25 constituted federal funds. Of the balance $4,514,148.04 was provided by the states, and $6,401,424.00 was provided by the local boards."

The report will recommend to Congress additional support to enable the Board to extend the work in the fields of Home Economics and Commercial Education.

GOOD FARM MANAGEMENT ESSENTIAL TO SUCCESS

Some do and some don't—make money from farming.

Some factors for not are beyond the farmers' control, and some he can set for himself. It is important to Oregon as well as to the farmer that he understand as well as possible the best use of agricultural resources. For the farmers that cannot take a full degree course in agriculture a special winter course has been arranged at the state college, Jan. 2, and March 17.

Selecting and growing the most profitable farm crops for grain, forage and special purposes, and feeding and managing the farm stock, cattle, horses, sheep and hogs—and giving the right relation to these industries by scientific farm management—are taught by instruction, training and experience. Inquiry of the college registrar, Corvallis, will tell you how to join.
