
Another triumph of the Lincoln is recorded in the grilling test given the Lincoln touring car which is being used by the Michigan State Police Department. This car has been driven more than 50,000 miles and its record of its performance is a letter to the Ford Motor Company, Roy C. Vanderveen, commissioner, says: "We have been compelled to drive it long journeys with heavy loads at excessive speed and it has never failed or fallen in any emergency. It is not noisy, is the best balanced, easiest handled car I know of."

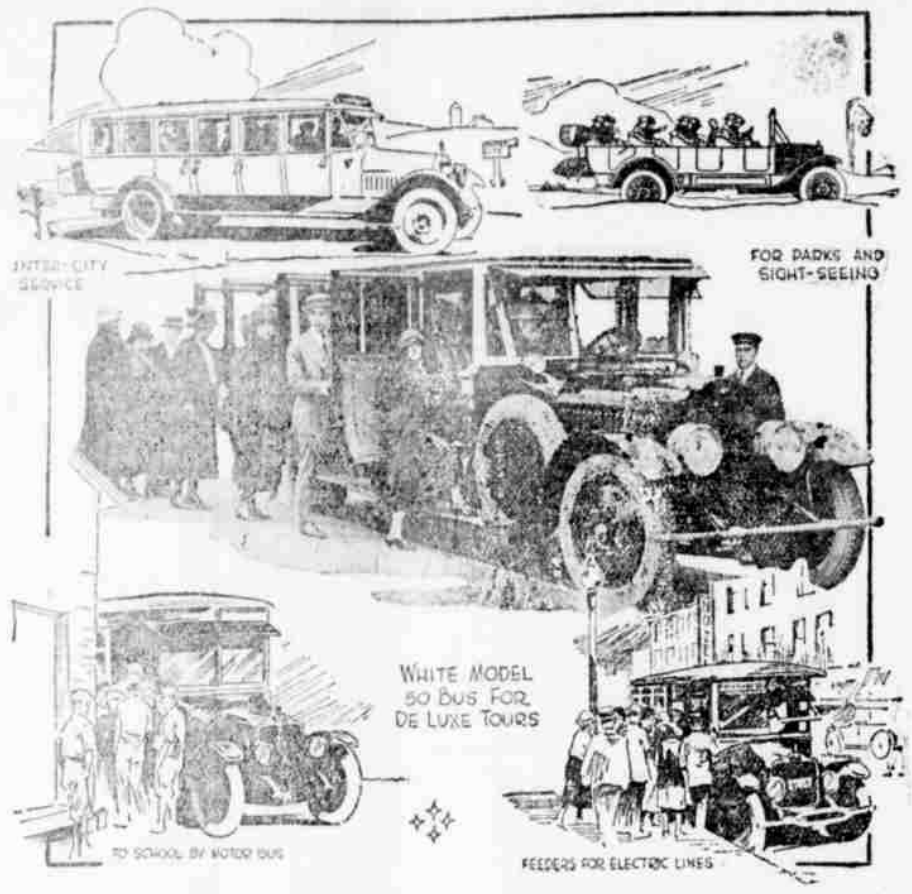
PUBLIC NEED FOR FLEXIBLE TRANSPORTATION BRINGING GREAT MOTOR BUS FLEETS INTO USE



Fourteen million passengers were carried in motor busses operating in the state of California during 1922. This figure, staggering in itself, is but an indication of the tremendous strides made in bus transportation during the last few years, bringing the passenger carrying bus into full partnership with the nation's leading transportation facilities. Following closely in the footsteps of California, busses operating in Ohio last year carried nearly 12,000,000 passengers while bus lines operating in Minnesota report 10,000,000 people carried over a like period. Records of bus transportation in other states would reveal figures of equal magnitude. The year 1923 undoubtedly will show a big increase in the number of passengers carried.

An important trend of bus development, a fairly recent one, is indicated by the scale on which electric rail lines are purchasing and operating motorbus equipment. A record along this line is believed to have been established by the Pacific Electric and Los Angeles railways in purchasing 81 White busses in a single order. Fleets equally large are operated by independent bus companies. Indicative of the place the motor bus is carving for itself, one manufacturer, The White Company, reports that four electric traction companies alone operate close to 300 of its busses in conjunction with street car service, while all told more than 4,500 White busses are running on schedules measured and timed by public convenience in every state in the Union.

The motor bus, because of its extreme flexibility, is not limited in its operation but is capable of efficiently serving the public wherever there is need of passenger transportation. Busses are now being operated with much success in city service as traction line feeders, on inter-city lines, for de luxe tours, for schools and institutions and for parks and sightseeing. They have become within a few years a very definite part of the country's transportation system.

SPUDS TRANSCEND ALL ELSE IN PARIS

(International News Service.)

PARIS, July 11.—Minimizing the eruptions of Mount Etna, passing lightly over the incidental killing of two or three more Germans in the Ruhr and slinging entirely disregarding the trials and tribulations of the Lausanne Conference, a serious-minded Paris morning newspaper recently devoted three-quarters of a column of space to a weighty discussion as to the date of the discovery of "pommes de terre soufflees" or puffed potatoes.

"Puffed potatoes were not discovered a hundred years ago, but only in 1853," the paper declared when other journals were heralding the hundredth anniversary of the delicacy. "And this is how they were invented:

"Dr. Velpeau, chief surgeon of the Hospital of Paris, used to lunch every day at the Cafe Universe.

"One day the waiter served him his daily beef steak garnished with ordinary fried potatoes instead of the French fried variety to which he was accustomed.

"Dr. Velpeau refused the potatoes. The chef put them back into a pot of boiling grease, preparing to serve them to another client.

"But to his surprise when he took them out they were all blown up like balloons.

"For a long time the recipe was unknown except to the chef, Pierre Bonivet, who tempted the palates of his favorite clients with the delicacy. But ever since puffed potatoes have been strong favorites with Parisian 'gourmands.'"
