BANDITS FREE TWO OF FIVE AMERICAN CAPTIVES, MEXICO

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—The British El Aguila Oil company has informed the United States embassy that their two American employes, Briggs and Greely, who were kidnaped by bandits, have been released. No details have been received.

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—Federal troops in the state of Vera Cruz have been sent out with orders to exterminate the bandits headed by Vidal Tenoria and attempt the rescue of John J. Shanklin, of Canyon, Texas, one of the five Americans now in the hands of outlaws in various parts of Mexico.

The Mexican authorities probably were spurred to their efforts because the bandits had set 6 p. m. Thursday for killing Shanklin, a sugar plantation worker, if a ransom of 20,000 pesos had not been received at that hour.

Two other Americans were taken in the Tampico oil region yesterday and at last accounts were being held for ransom or death, if the money was not forthcoming. They are oil drillers, named Briggs and Greely. In addition to Shanklin, Briggs and Greely, there are in the hands of outlaws, C. C. Braden of Laredo, Texas, a mine owner, and a mining engineer named Gallagher. They are held in the state of Durango. Last reports said Braden was being ill treated.

No information had been received here today as to whether the bandits had fulfilled their threat to kill Shanklin. Nor was there any news of the fate of the other prisoners. A Mexican engineer was captured with Shanklin.

81 MILES AN HOUR BY A STUDEBAKER

The famous Studebaker big six "Sheriff" has smashed, by 7 hours and 26 minutes the best previous record for overland travel between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

Bucking heavy winds, drenched in a downpour of rain for 150 miles, fighting roads ripped to pieces by heavy cloudbursts, this stock Studebaker, owned and driven by Ab Jenkins, a Salt Lake City contractor, established a time record which only the aeroplane has equaled.

Leaving Los Angeles at 3 a. m. April 12, Jenkins, accompanied by Ray L. Peck of Salt Lake City, headed the big six "Sheriff" from a point in Los Angeles, 250 feet above sea level to Cedar City, an elevation of 6220 feet. A steady upgrade pull of 413 miles.

Over pot-holed roads which would have meant suicide to most cars—up mountain grades made slippery and treacherous by the constant downpour—around washed out bridges by dangerous detours the big six drove ahead without faltering.

Despite these handicaps, Jenkins checked in at Salt Lake City at 8:17 p. m. the same day of his departure from Los Angeles. The 781 miles between the two cities had been covered in exactly 16 hours and 17 minutes, an average of 48 miles per hour. To maintain this average under the prevailing weather and road conditions, speed at high as 81 miles per hour was attained.

The car was a stock model big six which had been run less than a thousand miles. In spite of the speed, climbing and rugged road conditions, gasoline consumption averaged 12.5 miles per gallon, and only three quarts of oil were consumed. No water was added to the radiator during the entire trip.

It is not surprising that the Studebaker big six should triumph in this demonstration demanding the utmost in power and endurance. With more than forty makes of American cars on the market, only seven equal the big six in rated horsepower. And they sell for two or three times its price. None, regardless of price, equals the big six in long, dependable service, proved conclusively by the hundreds of big sixes with records of 100,000 miles and over.

Because of its brilliant performance and unfailing dependability, plus exceptional value made possible by one-profit manufacture the big six is today the world's fastest selling high-powered car.

POISON MAILED TO JUDGE MAKES 3 PERSONS ILL

Package of Pancake Flour When Analyzed Shows 15,000 Doses

CHEMIST IS ARRESTED

Accusation Against Him Is Bsed on Threatening Letters Following Divorce Suit

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

DENVER, Colo., May 28.—Alva Estabrook, cereal chemist, was taken into custody here today by a postal inspector and detectives on a federal warrant for his arrest in connection with an alleged poison plot to kill Judge E. E. Porterfield of the Jackson county circuit court of Missouri.

Estabrook is charged, the officers say, with sending Judge Porterfield a sample package of poisoned pancake flour, which, when analyzed after the jurist, his wife and son were made violently ill, was found to contain more than 15,000 doses of poison.

Divorce Decree Motive

KANSAS CITY, May 28.—Alva Estabrook, arrested in Denver today in connection with an alleged poison plot against Judge E. E. Porterfield of the circuit court, was formerly chief flour inspector for the Kansas City Board of Trade. He and his wife had been estranged since 1921 and this spring Mrs. Estabrook obtained a divorce, naming Miss Rilla Roberts, former employe in her husband's office, as co-respondent.

Investigation of the alleged plot, following discovery that the package of pancake flour received at the judge's home by mail contained poison, led to Estabrook when Judge Porterfield told the authorities Estabrook had written threatening letters to him from Denver. The letters referred to earlier domestic trouble, in which Judge Porterfield had rendered a decision.

Death Threats Read.

KANSAS CITY, May 28.—A threat that he would have to "die a dirty death," was contained in a letter which Judge E. E. Porterfield of the circuit court received from Alva W. Estabrook, former flour analyst for the Kansas City Board of Trade, who was arrested in Denver today in connection with an alleged poison plot against the life of the jurist. Veiled threats also were made in other communications received here from Estabrook which are in the hands of the authorities.

Another copy of a letter received by the judge, which was addressed to another Kansas City business house, bore this notation: "You've got to go, and I'll attend to the matter of your going."

One of these letters was turned over to the assistant county prosecutor, who said he paid little attention to it since its tone was that of a deranged person.

A letter received by Mrs. Estabrook March 17 from her former husband said:

"Old Porterfield recently sent me word he was going to put me in the pen if it was his last act in life. During the coming summer I plan to give him the opportunity he desires and I expect to arrange things so that he will have to do the job with his own hands. I assure you that the most tragic thing in our lives has not yet happened."

Declaring that she wanted to call the bluff of those who have broadcast objectionable rumors, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, late last night offered a reward of $25,000 for the return of her daughter, alive and unharmed. Mrs. Kennedy said that she had not the slightest belief that the reward would ever be claimed.

JEFF MYERS BACKED FOR SHIPPING BOARD

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PORTLAND, Ore., May 28.—Jefferson Myers, Democrat, former state treasurer and well known business man, Friday was endorsed by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce as a candidate for appointment to the United States Shipping Board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation several months ago of Herbert L. Haney.

This action was taken following withdrawal of Marshall N. Dana as a candidate for the position and on receipt of a telegram from Senator McNary, asking the chamber if Myers would be acceptable.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Butts, of Glendale, spent the week end here, visiting with friends.

Playing Cards Known Since Earliest Ages

Doctor Le Cour, delving in Carthagenian ruins, says the ancients had a play similar to our card game. They used small tablets on which were painted figures. There is also mention in one of St. Augustine's works of cards that are used for gambling. Still the playing cards we now use were invented in the Fourteenth century by a French painter named Jacques Gringonneur. It is said that he invented them to amuse the mad King Charles VI of France. The kings were David, Alexander, Caesar and Charles; the queens were Argine, Esther, Judith and Pallas; the four knights, now called knaves, and vulgarly, "jacks," were Ogier the Dane, Lancelot, La Hire and Hector de Garland, knights of old romance. The Cardmakers' company was incorporated in 1629, and as early as the reign of James I cards were taxed. Probably the first game played in England was called "trump." All the most important historical events have been at one time or another depicted on playing cards, and some of the packs are very rare and valuable.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Science Vainly Seeks New Sources of Silk

In spite of the enormous increase in the production of artificial silk, real silkworm silk is just as much sought after as ever, and is even more expensive than formerly. So much so that attempts have been made to find other insects to produce it.

Spiders have been tried, and other caterpillars besides that of the silkworm moth, but without much success. The oldest source from which silk has been obtained is a shellfish, a sort of mussel, called the "pinna," and found in the Mediterranean.

This creature fastens itself to the rocks with fine and very strong threads, which can be spun into lovely golden yellow silk.

But it is not likely that sea silk will ever be a commercial proposition. The thread is very short, the filaments being not more than three inches long. Also, it takes more than three thousand of the fish to produce one pound of silk. Yet a little is produced and worked in Sicilian coast villages.

Believed in Advertising

Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, was no meek violet. A bit of autobiography he had inscribed on a cylinder 2,500 years ago and securely sealed in the wall of an ancient temple for posterity to dig up and read, now reposes in the Carnegie museum at Pittsburgh. Several of the opening paragraphs are gems of modest praise. He goes on to say: "I am Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, the great, the mighty, the favorite of Merduk (Babylonian God), the ruler who knows no weariness." Then he expatiates at great length on what a builder of temples and walls, "mountain high," canals and other structures he is, and adds: "may the wise men after me, read of all my works which I have written upon the tablet." Nebuchadnezzar was taking no chances of posterity neglecting to give him credit where credit was due.—Capper's Weekly.

Age Limit Foolish

Though genius is always born and the highest kind shows itself at an early age, success is made, generally with much toil, and is not always accompanied by wealth. For that it must be combined with practical prudence, as it was in the cases of a Michelangelo, Rubens, Reynolds, Titian, and Shakespeare, who were all rich and happy.

Age limits to success, indeed can be laid down broadly only by the foolish. "Too old at forty!" Sir William Herschel was forty-three before he made his first discovery in astronomy. We did not hear of Kitchener till he was forty-six, and Howard, the philanthropist, was still older when he emerged from obscurity.—London Tit-Bits.

Forces That Control

The tone of society is the result not so much of the deliberate attempt of the members of it to influence each other, as of the unconscious action and reaction of their characters. Nor can anyone easily measure how great his own contribution has been to the good or evil spirit that prevails around him, or how, by casual deeds or actions, or even looks, he may have influenced the lives of others. We do not carry on our warfare in our own charges but the whole weight of the evil that is in our society is dragging us down, and the whole force of the good that is in it is helping us up.—Edward Cary.

Food of Butterflies

Butterflies feed on the nectar of flowers and the sap of trees and plants. The various flowers, etc., vary with those found in a locality. All adult bees feed on vegetable juices, particularly the nectar of flowers. It is the habit of bees to devote their searching to a single sort of flower as long as it serves their purpose, each individual visiting blossom after blossom of that kind, instead of searching flowers indiscriminately. This varies with the locality.

Weighty Subject

"When a fat woman steps on a scale she always experiences that sinking feeling," observes L. ...

"Women are weighed in the balance and found wanting so repeatedly," says the Hugo News.

First Nautical Author

The first known book on navigation and nautical terms was published exactly 300 years ago. In 1626 Capt. John Smith, Governor of Virginia and hero of the famous Pocahontas story.

Old Shop-Windows Gone

Paris shopkeepers still talk of "putting up the shutters" at closing time, but actually they pull them down. The quaint, many-paned shop windows familiar in the old illustrations to the "Songs" of Beranger and the Cruikshank and Phiz drawings for Dickens' works, have disappeared to make way for great, solid iron "curtains," which are hauled down with a lever. The old windows, charming, cob-webbed and gaslit, remain in a few out-of-the-way parts of Paris.

An Intelligent Interest

The rector of a country parish was showing one of his parishioners round his garden. He paused in front of the garden wall into which had been built a huge bowlder of granite, differing obviously from the red sandstone blocks that composed the rest of the wall. "That," he said, indicating the granite bowlder, "came down in a glacier." The visitor considered the object with much attention and then said thoughtfully: "Would that be before the war?"—Manchester Guardian.

An Expert

"Julia, do you know what love is?"

The young man put the question in an intense voice.

"Yes," replied the girl, firmly.

"But do you really know?" he asked again. "Have you ever been the object of a love as undying as the sun, as all-prevading as the air, as wonderful as the stars? Have you ever loved and been loved like that, Julia?"

In an agony of suspense he waited for her reply.

"Have I?" she murmured. "If you will come up into our boxroom, I can show you a trunkful of letters, and three albums full of photographs, and in my jewel-case are seven engagement rings!"

Has a Boiling Lake

The Grande Soufriere, of which the chief feature is the remarkable Boiling lake in the West Indian island of Dominica, is but little known even to the islanders who are constantly reminded of its presence, says Nature Magazine. Clouds of steam indicate where it lies in the mountains, and to Roseau, the island's port, the detonations from its steam vents proclaim its close proximity. It is only six miles from the town as the crow flies, but until an air route is established, man must foot it over a difficult and even dangerous mountain trail.

THE PHILHARMONIC ENSEMBLE COMING FOR CHAUTAUQUA

In the Philharmonic Ensemble, which comes here on the Chautauqua program, local audiences will have an opportunity to enjoy one of the high class, really worth while orchestras of the day. In selecting this group of musicians Chautauqua service has followed its usual policy of featuring the best in music with careful attention to the taste of all. Chatauqua starts on Tuesday next week.

Miss Enola C. Handley, concert violinist who was schooled in Brussels by Caesar Thompson, heads this ensemble of women instrumentalists, and in herself is a stellar musical attraction. With the constantly increasing demand for good music by the general public, the work of an artist like Miss Handley makes strong appeal, and her finished performance which brings out all the tonal qualities and harmony of the classics, will find ready appreciation in the local public. A rare faculty for picking out the classic hits from the old masters that are musically understandable by those untrained in music goes far toward making her programs the great success they invariably prove.

The individual members of the orchestra are artists on their chosen instruments, the orchestration consisting of two violinists, cello, flute, trumpet and piano. A wide variety of selections is made possible by this grouping of instruments, including many solo hits that audiences love and appreciate.

In addition to the scheduled concerts of the Philharmonic Ensemble, they will support John B. Ratto, the famous impersonator, who is one of the star attractions of the season's program.

Names you should know

You like to know names that everybody knows—name of the man who tied lightning to a kite; name of the man who watched a tea kettle and went out and made an engine. Just knowing such names gives you pleasure.

Yet there are names that thousands of people know that can give you much more pleasure in a much more personal way. Names that stand for the best things to eat, to wear, to sleep on, you can buy. Names that if connected with the salad dressing, hat, mattress you select—or any other desirable thing you select—mean it is most desirable. Names written large in advertisements. Advertisements tell why those are wise names for you to know. Why such names greet you in the best groceries, department and hardware stores. Why those names are in the buying vocabulary of thousands . . . are believed in by thousands . . . justify belief!

Read the advertisements. Don't ask vaguely in a store for 'cold cream,'' ''a skillet,'' ''a vacuum cleaner.'' Ask for So-and-So's Cold Cream, So-and-So's Skillet, So-and-So's Vacuum Cleaner. Use the names, you have learned through advertisements, that stand for the product that means most to you and most to most everybody.
