BELGIAN NURSE TELLS HER STORY

Mlle. Jacqueline Van Til Saw Edith Cavel Taken Away By the Germans.

DESCRIBE HEROIC WORK

Did Not See English Nurse Executed But Knew of Her Doom—Was With Her Nearly All the Time for Many Years.

NEW YORK, April 12.—A woman, tall and dignified, with twinkling blue eyes and tawny brown hair, has come to America to forget the tragic days of war-torn Belgium. She is Mlle. Jacqueline Van Til, who spent five years in a Brussels hospital with Edith Cavel, the martyred British nurse, and who was the last of her friends to see her alive.

Women, wandering unarmed thru shell-splintered woods and wire-strung fields at dead of night, gathering remnants of an Allied army left to die within the enemy's lines and then leading these desperate soldiers through enemy territory to neutral soil, is the story told by Mlle. Jacqueline of the heroic work performed by Edith Cavel and her band of nurses.

Edith Cavel paid with her life for this service to the Allied cause.

Mlle. Jacqueline comes to America with shattered nerves and tired lines about her eyes for her share in it.

The "underground railroad" maintained by this handful of women in Belgium's darkest days carried 208 British and French soldiers out of German territory into neutral Holland. Their record is one of indomitable courage, or never-ending fortitude, of meeting danger with a laugh and heart-breaking work with a smile.

"We had so small a clinic," says Mlle. Jacqueline, telling of the Cavel hospital at Brussels. "Miss Cavel was in charge from 1910 until August 5, 1915, when the Germans dragged her away to her death. I was with her all the time.

"We were constant companions. Neither she nor I had any relatives in Belgium and were always together.

MRS. R. T. BUTTS, of Kansas City, who says her life was miserable for two long years before she began taking Tanlac. She now declares she is enjoying the best of health and that she has gained twenty pounds.

"If it had not been for Tanlac I would still be a sick woman, so I feel like I ought to tell everybody what this wonderful medicine has done for me," was the sincere statement made recently by Mrs. R. T. Butts, 1924 Troost avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

"By the help of Tanlac I have gotten rid of a severe case of nervous indigestion that had made my life miserable for the past two years. I could not eat anything without suffering afterward. The gas on my stomach would rise up into my chest and press on my heart and at times would almost cut off my breath. My nerves were so up-set that the least unexpected noise would almost distract me. I seldom slept well and was so nervous I would often roll and toss until after midnight and what little sleep I did get seemed to do me no good. I was also a great sufferer from headaches and would often get so dizzy I would have to hold on to some thing to keep from falling.

"One day I happened to see a testimonial for Tanlac describing a case like mine, so I bought a bottle and before I had finished it I began to feel just like a different person. Those terrible headaches disappeared and my appetite returned. When my first bottle was gone I got another and I kept on improving until now I can eat just anything I want and I never suffer any more from indigestion. I am not the least bit nervous and rest well at night and never know what it is to have a headache or a dizzy spell.

Tanlac has not only relieved me of my suffering, but I have actually gained 20 pounds in weight and have not enjoyed such good health in years. Tanlac is certainly a wonderful medicine and I will always feel grateful for what it has done for me. I want to recommend this medicine to all my friends because I believe it will benefit anyone who is suffering as I did."

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman, and by the leading druggists in every town.

MUSTEROLE
WILL NOT BLISTER

Croy were the leaders of the movement.

"We first began the task of getting British and French soldiers out of German territory when the British were driven back at the battle of Mons. Hundreds of the Tommies and Poilus were left behind within the German lines, so fast was the enemy advance. It was then we thought of the 'raidroad.'

"Mlle. Tullies and a handful of Belgian women, whose courage was beyond belief, went alone at night into the woods near Mons and across devastated battlefields to find these called 'Martin,' and the Princess de Croy. Miss Cavel, a Mlle. Tullies, whom we hidden allied soldiers. They fed the men, gave them treatment for their wounds, and then smuggled them into the chateau of Princess de Croy, near Mons.

"We kept them at the chateau a night or two and then moved them on to Brussels, where we hid them about our hospital. The second night we sent them by guides into Holland. In all, 208 Allied soldiers were carried out of German slavery by these women."

When asked to describe the arrest of Edith Cavel she said: "The Germans simply came to our nurses' home. There were eight of us there. They read our names and then called Miss Cavel outside. The rest of us were told we were under arrest in our home."

"Miss Cavel walked to the door and then turning, said to her nurses: 'Au revoir. Soyes sages et courageuses. Je reviendrai cientat,' which in literal English is: 'I'll see you again. Be on your guard and be brave. I'll be back soon.' She never returned."

Mlle. Jacqueline took pains to deny that she had seen the execution. "Oh, no," she replied to this query. "None but the Germans saw it. No English or French people ever saw Miss Cavel after she entered the German prison. They wouldn't even give her the flowers we sent."

"Did her arrest stop the movement of Allied soldiers out of occupied Belgium?" she was asked.

"Yes, we stopped at once," said the Belgian nurse with a smile. "It was no use any longer. Spies followed us everywhere. We had to ask permission to even leave the house. And the nurses were, oh-so afraid. You see we were really ostracised after that even by the Belgians. People were afraid to talk to us for fear they, too, would die in the prison yard. And, besides, the Germans never gave us any rest. They raided our hospital seven times in one week following Miss Cavel's arrest."

Touching on conditions in Belgium today, Mlle. Jacqueline says the nation needs America's aid more than anything else. "The people are so disheartened," she said. "They don't seem to have any spirit to advance. They are so tired and conditions are so pitiful. Brussels and Mons are still in ruins. People are not taking any interest in the future. They want only to play and forget today."
