REMAINS OF SOLDIER DEAD.

The last large shipment of remains of soldier dead, returned for burial under the Stars and Stripes, will be completed when the army transport Cambrai reaches New York about March 30, with 1224 flag-draped caskets. With the arrival of the Cambrai the reverent task of the quartermaster corps of the army of bringing home the bodies of those who fell in France will be practically finished. Plans are already under way for appropriate services and ceremonies at the dock, to pay final tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice.

After the Cambrai lands her precious freight, approximately only 325 bodies remain abroad to be brought to the United States for burial. Up to March 1, the graves registration service of the quartermaster corps had returned to this country the remains of 44,418 of those Americans who died on foreign soil. So perfect have been all arrangements incident to the last journey, that many commendatory letters from relatives and friends of those returned for burial have been received by the quartermaster general's office. Every effort has been made to accord the soldier dead the most reverent care, from the time of disinterment to the time the casket reaches its final resting place. Recently Major General H. L. Rogers, quartermaster general, made a special trip to France to inspect the activities of the American graves registration service, and on his return expressed himself as fully satisfied with every detail of the work.

Concentration of bodies in American cemeteries abroad will be continued, as about 32,000 of those who died overseas are not to be returned for burial here, according to the desire of their next of kin. The policy of the government is to remove the soldier dead from battlefield burial grounds, and to reinter them in permanent cemeteries which will be cared for by the United States, as are national cemeteries in this country.

OVERTURNING MARRIAGE.

Some social radicals feel that the institution of marriage will and should be greatly changed. They may favor trial marriages. Others think that men and women who love each other should simply live together, without having any sanction of law and religion therefor. These people should reflect on how very deep seated is the instinct that sustains the custom of marriage. No one can reach far back enough into antiquity to tell what started it. But somehow the human race, as the result of its experience, reached the conclusion that humanity made more rapid progress if there were strict relations of wedlock, with one man and woman living together. The races in which men have had more than one wife, or the woman more than one husband, have not been able to win their way in the competitive struggle. The monogamous races have created a higher type of personal and community life. The home created under a strict marriage law is able to bring up a superior type of offspring. Children need the affection and training given by a father and mother in a home of their own. You put them in an institution, or otherwise destroy the home where this training goes on, and those children are apt to fail to acquire certain necessary qualities. No one feels so keenly desirous to have them make good as their own fathers and mothers. So if people marry only in a temporary way and their relations cease, the children must either lack the attentions of a father or a mother, and they miss something, and on an average will not turn out so well. Society has gradually learned this fact, so that it has insisted on a strict marriage tie. Public sentiment should sustain it. If we give up these relations that have built our race to its present point of achievement, human progress will suffer.

Princess Mary of England is no doubt a mighty fine girl, but the people who read about the queenly pomp of her marriage must have wondered why that country venerates a royal family as if they were superhuman beings. They may have felt such costly display out of place in these times. They do not understand when a country is heavily burdened with debt, how it can spend money on keeping up all these trappings of royalty that apparently perform no service. The United States is supposed to have gotten rid of these old traditions. The chief rulers live in a democratic fashion without fuss and feathers. Public ceremonies are simple. But even in this democratic country, there is a tendency to run after prominent personages that is very like veneration of royalty. If a president's daughter is married the newspapers are filled for weeks with pictures and descriptions of her trousseau. We do not fall down before kings and queens, but we chase after conspicuous people in a very undemocratic way.

Some mighty fine revival services are in progress and others scheduled for this city in the very near future. They are of the real, old-fashioned kind of sermons, devoid of sensational matter and carry a message that convinces one of the sincerity of the words spoken and carry home a message that will be of a lasting quality.

Today was sure some fine spring day. Brother Bell, the weather man, is swinging the atmosphere around to that degree that the natives of this section of the state are beginning to feel at home.

Tomorrow night we will have an opportunity to see the "Four Liars." This is cutting down the list considerably. The usual daily batting average around this neck of the woods is about 104.

Good times ahead is the slogan. Business is loosening up and there is an air of prosperity prevalent. The progressive individual will get his share—providing he goes after it in the right way.

"Fatty" Arbuckle is again in the limelight. His third trial has begun at San Francisco. It ought to be a knockout.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

Didja ever go
To a strange town
And get there late
And try to get a room
And find out that all
The best hotels
Are filled and then
They directed you to
A cheaper one and you
Finally get a room
And it's a bum one
And you lay in bed
All the night a
Wondering whether or not
Bed bugs or cockroaches
Are your room-mates?

Our one-time cop, Dave Shambrook, told ye ed, a joke today and here it is:

A bunch of Irish farmers owned several sections of ground infested with red ants. They had tried every method to rid the country of the pests and finally decided to put in a bunch of bats. The bats devoured the ants add then the Irishmen wondered what to do with the bats so they secured a bunch of monkeys and the little animals made away with the bats. Then the Irish farmers all gathered together and decided to go into the woods and kill the monkeys. The expedition was started and the shooting continued one whole day. At the end of the day the leader of the expedition called the roll and it was found that forty Irishmen had been killed.

Aunt Ellen was very much discouraged and told a long tale of woe to her employer.

"Cheer up," said Mrs. Smith. "Maybe if you take a more cheerful attitude things will go better."

"Don't work fo' me," replied Aunt Ellen. "When de Lawd send tribulations I jes' natchnlly got to tribulate."

JUST SMILE A WHILE AND WHISTLE.

Just smile a while and whistle,
Till the clouds roll by,
Just say good day to worry,
And you'll never need to sigh.
For when you stop your pining,
You will see the silver lining—
You will see the rainbow shining
In the sky.
If you smile and never sigh,
You will never need to cry,
So, smile and keep a-smiling,
Till the clouds roll by.

Comparative Data of School Districts of The First Class in The State of Oregon

The 1921 assessed valuation of the districts will be presented today. In this respect Roseburg ranks eleventh, i. e., ten districts are valued at more money and ten at less. The total valuation is $100,237,009, while the average is $4,773,191.

Assessed valuation, 1921:

1.	Salem	$12,511,589
2.	Astoria	11,733,792
3.	Eugene	8,410,381
4.	Pendleton	6,902,393
5.	Baker	6,168,930
6.	La Grande	5,471,820
7.	The Dalles	5,046,977
8.	Medford	4,848,111
9.	Albany	4,500,000
10.	Marshfield	4,191,756
11.	Roseburg	3,874,305
12.	Bend	3,589,337
13.	Corvallis	3,300,000
14.	Oregon City	3,281,195
15.	Ashland	2,960,187
16.	McMinnville	2,824,642

18.	Grants Pass	2,424,060
19.	North Bend	1,974,048
20.	Newberg	1,817,162
21.	Dallas	1,688,800
	Total	$100,237,009
	Average	4,773,191

It is interesting to note what the valuations of the districts are per inhabitant. This amount was found by dividing the valuation by the population. Roseburg ranks fifth. Four districts show that more property is owned per citizen than Roseburg while sixteen towns have a lower average. $786 is the average valuation per person for the 21 districts.

In tomorrow's issue will appear the districts' rankings as to the school tax levy in mills.

District valuation per capita, 1921:

1.	Marshfield	$1,039
2.	McMinnville	1,020
3.	Pendleton	935
4.	Albany	929
5.	Roseburg	884

Jos. Micelli Goes To California

Jos. Micelli of the First State and Savings Bank, left today for Los Angeles and other points in California where he will spend several weeks enjoying a well earned vacation. Mr. Micelli has spent many years in the bank with only very brief rests and with the election of Glenn Wimberly as cashier of the institution, Mr. Micelli is preparing to spend considerable time in the state of California enjoying a vacation. He will return to Roseburg during the early summer. Mr. Wimberly, who yesterday purchased an interest in the bank, will be in charge of the institution during the absence of Mr. Micelli. Mr. Micelli will join Lee Wimberly at Los Angeles and they will make an auto tour through Mexico, following the coast for the greater part of the trip.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

To the Voters of Douglas County, Oregon:

I hereby announce my candidacy on the republican ticket for the office of County Judge at the primary election to be held on the 19th day of May, 1922. I ask your support upon my record as County Judge for eleven months, and also upon my record as Sheriff and Tax Collector of Douglas County for ten years. If I am nominated and elected I will discharge the duties of my office faithfully and endeavor to conduct the affairs thereof as economically as is consistent with good business judgement, equalize the assessments so as to distribute the tax burden more evently and see that one hundred cents' worth of work is received for every dollar expended in the construction of roads, and that the bond money shall be expended where it was voted by the people of this county.

(Paid Adv.) GEO. K. QUINE.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the republican nomination for county commissioner of Douglas county, Oregon, at the primary election to be held May 19th, 1922. In making this announcement I invite the attention of the taxpayers to my record for economic administration of the county's affairs. A fair and conscientious investigation of the county's business will show that it has been carried on in a careful and business-like manner and that I have always kept the interest of the taxpayers uppermost in my mind, and that I have supported a policy which has saved them thousands of dollars which might have been lost to them through a careless business policy. If elected I promise to continue a progressive but economic and business-like administration of the county's affairs, and to reduce the burden of the taxpayers so far as lies within my power. Thanking you for past support, and assuring you that your continued support will be appreciated, I am, Respectfully,

EDWIN WEAVER.
