HEALTHY MINDED PEOPLE.

The community is making a big effort in these times to secure physical health both for the children and older folks. Physical training and instruction in hygiene, health centers and board of health work, are removing many bad conditions and showing people how to take care of themselves. But some folks of a nervous and introspective temperament have not yet acquired a full degree of mental health, and they injure themselves by worries about big things and little. Doctors and others frequently tell such persons that they must exercise more will power and suggest to themselves healthful and confident thoughts, which will assist them to meet the difficulties of life bravely and not fret over imaginary troubles. Many people are greatly helped by this philosophy. There are others who find it difficult to command their own thoughts. The more they try to banish melancholy suggestions, the more these morbid ideas return. People of that type can usually find a remedy for their troubles in some new and interesting form of activity. It is amazing how downhearted people will see life in an entirely different aspect, when they take hold of something that really interests them. If they have a fondness for music, athletics, cards, dancing or social life, such diversions will often revolutionize their point of view. Their thoughts have been circulating in too narrow a round, and some change of attention will set healthful mental currents in motion and assist them to see life in a normal way. It is worth a great deal to people to keep a healthy minded outlook. The folks who greet the world with a smile and who enter cheerfully into its activities and radiate sunshine, are the ones who succeed in business and make friendships.

Formerly it was the business of the banker to sit behind his money bags, receive the deposits that came in without effort, and loan them out to applicants for funds. It was a passive conception of the function of this business and modern banking does much more than that. It plans thrift campaigns, and promotes various projects to induce people to save money regularly. Plans of that kind were discussed at the recent convention of the American Bankers association at New York, and many of these bank men will go home with new ideas of how to promote the thrift habit. A vast amount of money now goes to waste for trifles that ought to be deposited in banks where it will help build up the country. By active campaigns of advertising and solicitation the banks are getting a good deal of this unutilized capital, the savings of which goes far to promote prosperity.

We shall have lower taxes when we have state, county, city and school governments which find ways and means to get along on less income—not before, remarks the Industrial News Bureau. We shall have such economizing governments when we have a public determined to enforce economy upon its disbursers of taxes—not before. We shall have a public determined to enforce economy only when it refuses to heed the appeal of this or that or the other group for this, or that, or the other improvement or innovation or service or whatever it is that the public is persuaded it must have. We need political leaders pledged to economy and business efficiency in government, not political "persuaders" seeking to put something new over on the people, thus swelling the tax bill and creating more offices.

The News-Review is going to issue a big New Year's edition. The possibilities of this county will be spread broadcast to thousands of people who are looking westward for homes. This will give merchants an excellent opportunity to tell the world what particular lines of business are well represented in Roseburg. It will also give them the privilege of informing the people of this county what Roseburg offers in the way of a general merchandising center, as the metropolis of this section of the state.

Trying to find new sources of revenue to increase taxation, rather than lopping off the present high rate imposed on property owners, has been the chief topic of tax "experts." The state's big corps of office holders, members of various state commissions, et cetra, must have more money to spend. They've acquired a habit from which they are hard to separate and the spending orgy will continue.

There are two kinds of strikes that ought to be encouraged—The strikes of husbands whose wives demand all the money for their own use, and the strikes of wives for their share of the family income.

Here is a hint for women: No man ever goes into a restaurant, whether he pays two dollars for a sandwich or five cents, without a mental reservation in favor of the kind he can get in a home.

The gubernatorial fight is warming up. Ben Olcott has taken the stump in an effort to tree Walter Pierce. There'll be some barking until the campaign closes.

It is about time for another fake advertising scheme to put in appearance. Oregon seems to be a mighty fertile ground for these fellows who are looking for easy money.

Who remembers the boy whose parents were considered liberal who gave him twenty-five cents a week for "spending money?"

It has been proven that a man with one arm is just as adept as the fellow with two—when it comes to making "good" shine.

If you don't save you ought to slave.

Prune Pickin's

BY BERT G. BATES.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

Traffic Cop Perkins
Halted a Winchester flapper
On the main drag today
Who had flivvered over
To take in the sights and
In his gruffest manner
Muttered:
"Why didn't you put
Out your hand when you
Turned that corner?"
"I did put out my hand
You big bum," she replied and
Perk said:
"I didn't see it" and
She shouted:
"If it'd been my leg
I'll bet you'd have Seen it."

A radio in the home isn't worth a dern unless you've got a loud speaker to compete with your wife.

A woman approached us today and asked: "How do you get all of the inside dope on the folks around the town?" Anyone can get the dope by spending an afternoon at a party of Wimmen folks.

"Now don't put that in Prune Pickin's" generally means "be sure and put it there."

Apples hanging on a tree,
They're as moral as can be;
Apples crushed to get the juice,
Naughty are, beyond all use.
Eve behaved herself, you know,
While she scanned the fruit denied her;
Never did she make a show
Till the apple was in cider.

IT IS HOPED.

That the increasing demand for toilet waters, perfumes and the like in our great America, does not mean that the Saturday-night bath is to be placed in the discard. Heaven forbid! Of course.

Benny Oilcloth and Tax Seduction Pierce are running neck and neck in the gubernatorial race and if their promises hold out until the November election they'll both be 'lected.

"Two Gun" Hopkins jumped astraddle our neck last night by mistake and we take this means of getting revenge. "Two Gun" thot we were violating the traffic laws and was just getting ready to slam the handcuffs on our unsuspecting wrists and jam a shotgun into our quivering ribs. Thanx for not arresting us, "Two Gun."

We herewith announce our intentions to make no more pleas in this colyum for foodstuffs.——But none of you folks have an old suit of clothes hanging around the house you don't want, have you?

For the few who are opposing Roseburg public library readin' and writin' means very little and a coupla volumns of Diamond Dick would provide them with pastime for the winter.

Henry Ford has whacked fifty bucks off his flivvers today and new owners will soon be rattling that amount in their jeans.

"The villyun still pursued her" in the New Brunswick, New Jersey, murder case and we folks here in Roseburg are beginning to get jealous over the prominent publicity the case is getting. It'll soon outdistance our own mystery murder.

Deputies Shambrook, Hopkins and Hodges are contemplating a raid on the deaf and dumb school next week where they expect to find several stills.

If the cold weather continues we'll soon have to borrow some blankets from the neighbors.

O Cinderella, lovely maid,
Your fame will never get the sack,
Because, in innocence arrayed,
You used a pumpkin for a hack;
We lesser souls will fade and die—
We used our pumpkin for a pie!
But what avails a sceptered might
If we flim-flam our appetite.

Some folks in church really try to carry the tune; but most of us just let it wobble along in its own way.

The brilliant man without a heart keeps his brains in cold storage.

LOOKING AHEAD.

The farmer plants the clover—I
Dream of a happy day to come
When a blithe bee the bloom will spy
And for a moment hush his hum—
He'll suck the sweetness from the flower
And make of it a honey-comb—
And in some joyous winter hour
My "Honey," by the fires of Home
Will make a flap-jack batch for me
And holler to me, "Honey, come
And have a little feast with me."
And with my eyes on Paradise,
I'll thank the farmer and the bee.

MOVIES

SHOPGIRL HEROINE OF NEW McDONALD PLAY

It remained for Katherine MacDonald the American beauty of the screen to make a heroine out of a shopgirl. She has done it in "Her Social Value" an intensely interesting offering, which will be shown as a First National attraction at the Antlers theatre for an engagement of 2 days, starting today.

Despite the fact that there are hundreds of thousands of shopgirls in this country, it is a strange thing that motion picture stars and photoplaywrights have failed to see in them exceptionally good material on which to base a screen drama. Therefore, the shopgirl fan has had to be content with seeing heroines from princesses to chorus girls when she went to the movie show, but never a shopgirl.

The heroine of "Her Social Value" is Marion Hoyte, who sells gloves in a large department store. Through a mistake she is charged with stealing the purse of a customer, but is saved from disgrace by a young man who finds the article and clears her of suspicion. Little Dan Cupid has been present at the meeting, however, and although the stranger proves to be a member of the social set, he marries Marion.

Thrilling complications ensue; Marion's dreams of happiness are shattered by fate. But just when the future looks darkest, the clouds break and she finds the peace and joy she is seeking in a mining town in the far west.

"Her Social Value" is one of the best pictures Miss Macbonald has produced to date, and combines all the elements of perfect entertainment.

"MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME" IS A BIG HUMAN INTEREST PICTURE WITH LESSON

"My Old Kentucky Home," which opens at the Liberty theatre tonight is one of the most interesting pictures we have seen thus far this season. It contains more real human interest than a dozen other pictures that have been shown her and carries a very good lesson as well. What "Way Down East" is to the New England population "My Old Kentucky Home" is to the Southerners, yet it is a picture which is destined to as great a success as "Way Down East," for it contains all the elements of successful drama.

There is truly real southern romance in the picture enacted by Monte Blue the man about whom the women go crazy, and Sigrid Holmquist, a veritable fairy child in the part. Some of the scenes make your blood tingle with excitement, especially the racing scenes. The Kentucky Derby is shown—shown just as real as it is—and the horses racing give you all the excitement you could have if you were at a real race-track. The race is one of the big features of the picture and is alone well worth seeing.

Monte Blue is splendid as the young man. Sigrid Holmquist as the romancing southern sweetheart is delightful, as is Julia Swayne Gordon as the southern widow. Lucy Fox, as a capricious mountain girl does all that is expected of her. The others in the cast are excellent. It was directed by Ray C. Smallwood. At Liberty theatre tonight and Wednesday.

In Ye Olden Days

(From Roseburg Review, Sept. 27, 1891.)

A very enjoyable party was given last Friday evening by Miss Julia and Walter Hamilton in honor of Miss Clara Lionberger and Mr. Chas. Brown, their guests from Astoria. The rooms were beautifully decorated and most excellent music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Applehoff. Dancing, whist and tiddledywinks were among the amusements of the evening and delicious refreshments were served. A large number of our young people attended and all returned home at a late hour having spent a most enjoyable evening.

COLLEGE BOYS WAX FAT IN RECENT RAIL STRIKE

(International News Service.)

ELYRIA, Ohio, Oct. 17.—As a result of the railroad shopmen's strike about a dozen Oberlin College students will take it comparatively easy this collegiate year.

These "work-your-way" students took the places of strikers in railroad shops. They were paid $9 per day each and were given clothing, board and lodging.

Excepting those who objected, because of religious scruples, these students worked seven days a week. Each student accumulated $63 a week, exclusive of overtime. They seldom left their quarters, due to disorders.

As a result they were unable to spend any money and acquired a good-sized bank account.
