CHAPTERS FROM A WOMAN'S LIFE

By JANE PHELPS

CHAPTER 906

It was nearly three o'clock when Walter came in.

"Why aren't you asleep?" he asked, then went on to tell me of the opera. I asked who was in the box, if it were full.

"No, there were two vacant seats. I suppose someone disappointed at the last moment. In fact Vashti said something of the sort. We went to Sherry's for supper! I gave them a dandy blowout!"

"You treated to the supper?" I asked.

"Yes."

"Oh, Walter! Why didn't you let me know? I might have come."

"Do have a little common sense, Doreen! It would have looked nice, wouldn't it, for you to come tagging after us to supper when you weren't at the opera?"

"I don't see that it would have been out of place for the host's wife to appear."

Walter made no reply, just went on describing in his quick way what they had to eat, and so forth.

"How many were at supper?"

"Five."

I sighed. Had I been there it would have been an even number. Then I told him his mother had taken me to a movie.

"Good for the Mater! I felt a bit guilty to go for such a lark while you sat home." Hadn't acted as if he felt guilty, I thought, and I felt indignant that he should seem to imply that a motion picture made up to me.

"When will Miss Vernon's portrait be finished?" Walter's mother asked at breakfast, after he had told her of his evening.

"It is nearly done. I shall exhibit it in the studio after it is finished. Connor says it is the best thing I have done. I didn't need his opinion, I knew it."

"Will she go back home then?" I asked.

"I hope not," his face changed subtly, or so it seemed to me. "I am urging her to sit again. This time for an allegorical picture."

"But that puts her on a plane with the regular models," I interposed. "Why should a wealthy girl consider such a thing?"

"There are people, Doreen," Walter replied with dignity, "who put Art above personal feeling and considerations. Miss Vernon is intensely artistic and is interested in all forms of art."

"What did she wear to the opera last night?" I queried.

"A wonderful dress, some soft chiffony stuff that was the color of a glorious sunset. A daring dress, that only she could wear."

His mother talked on other subjects while I sat thinking of Walter and the girl who wore sunset gowns, and was so fascinating in them.

I liked pretty clothes, too, but "pretty" just described the sort I could wear. In anything at all bizarre, I looked a freak. And this girl could wear the most unusual colorings and look divine.

I had not been in the studio for several days. I went very little now. There was something about the manner of both Walter and Miss Vernon that prevented me. I felt plainly I was not wanted.

I had been shopping, and as it was nearly time for Walter to stop for me the day I dropped in, thinking he would take me home. As usual, I entered very quietly, fearing to disturb him. Miss Vernon was talking and I overheard her say:

"No, Walter! It isn't right." They had been Walter and Vashti to each other for some time.

"But what's wrong about it, dear?" he asked.

"We aren't either of us strong enough—no—don't ask me to sit again!"

Quietly I closed the door and crept away. So it had come to that, they could not trust themselves together! Blindly I left the building and made my way home.

It had come, that which I feared! They loved each other. Her words could have no other meaning.

"I have a headache," I told Jennie, "don't let me be disturbed." Then I locked myself in my room.

SECRETARY WEEKS SOUNDS WARNING

Alleges Pacifist Organizations Are Enemies of the United States Urges Investigation of Activities

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Pacifist propagandists and organizations in the United States were today denounced as public enemies by Secretary Weeks, who said that Americans would do well to "inform themselves of the facts and examine into the character and alleged patriotism of those individuals who are promoting the pacifist program before taking steps that may align them with the enemies of the republic." Weeks further charged that misleading statistics are being industriously circulated by the pacifist agencies, including the forces that are preaching revolution and advocating the establishment of a communistic form of government.

COLLEGE INVITES BOYS WHO EARN OWN LIVING

(By Associated Press)

EVANSTON, Ill., April 5.—Fifty per cent of the men at Northwestern University are working their way through school; 20 per cent are earning all of their expenses, and 30 per cent are earning part of the money required, according to Paul L. Palmer, assistant dean of the college of liberal arts, who has just completed a survey of the men of the institution.

The university, says Mr. Palmer, encourages men of the fighting type who have courage and stamina to make their own way. The Y. M. C. A., he points out, conducts an employment bureau through which the students are placed in touch with work that Evanston citizens wish done. The university offers scholarships both for freshmen and upper classmen. Some of these scholarships are enough to meet the greater part of the tuition. In addition, Mr. Palmer says, the university offers considerable clerical work that enables students to earn money outside of school hours.

"As a further proof of the stalking qualities of the men who are self supporting," said Mr. Palmer, "figures show that more upper classmen than freshmen are earning their own way. This shows that students who start as freshmen are likely once resources are exhausted to drop out after an unsuccessful struggle during the first year.

"The average number of days spent in this outside work is three hours a day during the school year. Six per cent spend only one hour a day while seven or more hours a day are required by nine per cent of the employed students to earn their expenses. Mr. Palmer's survey showed.

"The variety of work done by the young men ranges from washing dishes to preaching by appointment. Included in the list are: clerking and accounting, caring for furnaces housework, playing in orchestras, playing church organs, library work, reporting, elevator guard, cashier in cafeteria, caring for children and caretaker at golf club.

The 50 per cent who are not concerned over the source of their college expenses constitute a problem in the opinion of Mr. Palmer, some guidance should be provided for their activities during the summer holidays, he thinks.

GREY HAIR SAVE LAW VIOLATOR

(By Associated Press)

SPOKANE, Wash. April 4.—Her grey hair saved Jennie Sparby, 75, convicted of having liquor in her Main avenue rooming house, from serving a sentence of one to five years in the penitentiary. Her sentence was suspended.

She has been convicted twice before of violating liquor laws and when she admitted recently in court that she had liquor in the hotel, it made it necessary for the judge to give her a penitentiary term.

The gray haired, stoop shouldered woman wept, and the judge gave her a stern reprimand, explaining that if she were younger, he would not give her this last chance.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB MEETS

The Garden Valley Improvement Club was entertained by Mrs. H. C. Calhoun March 29, at the club rooms. After the business meeting a very enjoyable afternoon was spent. Later dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Hulbert April 12.

COULD HARDLY DO HER WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Eat, Sleep and Feel Better Every Way

Chicago, Ill.—"I was weak and rundown and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time, and dizzy, and could not sleep and had no appetite. I tried different medicines for years, but they did not help me. Then I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for other women and gave it a trial. I began to eat better and could sleep, and consider it a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to my friends and will never be without it."—MRS. M. OHLEN, 3840 S. Marshfield Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

It is such letters as these that testify to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This woman speaks from the fullness of her heart. She describes as correctly as she can her condition, first the symptoms that bothered her the most, and later the disappearance of those symptoms. It is a sincere expression of gratitude.

For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.
