EUGENE, SALEM GO TO FINALS

Milton-Freewater and Grant Lose Chance for Title — Baker Defeats Marshfield 28-19.

SALEM, Ore. Mar. 13. (AP)— By its unexpected defeat of Grant of Portland last night, 32 to 19, Eugene will contest with Salem tonight for the state basketball championship. Salem won the right to meet Eugene by defeating McLoughlin 31 to 18.

Eugene displayed a fine brand of teamwork last night and repeatedly worked the ball through the Grant defense for close in shots. Grant seemed unable to penetrate Eugene's guards and made long shots, the boys from up the valley invariably getting the ball on the rebound and taking it down the floor swiftly. Eugene displayed a much better class of ball than she did Thursday.

Salem had an easy time with McLoughlin, although McLoughlin drew first blood on a foul. The first period ended 10 to 5 in favor of Salem. In the next period McLoughlin scored but one point while Salem gathered 13. The eastern Oregon boys were unable to penetrate the Salem defense and lost valuable time in passing the ball around the center of the court. Salem substitutes played the last period. In the second series games yesterday afternoon Baker defeated Marshfield 28-19; Medford won from The Dalles 22-9 and Astoria took the long end of a 33 to 27 score with Hillsboro.

This afternoon Medford will meet Astoria and Grant will play Baker, the winner of these two contests to meet in the evening to decide third and fourth places.

Busch, applying his head hold time after time finally brought Yokel to the mat through sheer perseverance. At the end of this fall Yokel asked for an extra 5-minute rest period.

Coming back in the final go Yokel clamped one of his famous Japanese step over toe holds and put Busch's shoulder to the mat in 5 minutes, winning the match.

George Gale was referee of the main event and Mr. Robinson refereed the preliminary match.

O. A. C. Players Indulge In 2 Hard Fought Games

CORVALLIS, Ore., Mar. 13. (AP) —Two hard fought gridiron battles have just been fought here by Oregon Agricultural college players with all the fervor of November struggles.

As a closing feature of spring practice two picked teams have battled for school honors. Four teams actually were used, with the first and fourth strings pitted against the second and third. The veterans were held scoreless in the first game by the ambitious subs fighting for a place in the sun, but last night the old timers came back and smothered the second string, mostly rooks, 24 to 0 in their half. The third team managed to score one touchdown on the fourth team in the final half. "Much better than last spring," was Coach Schissler's comment.

LONDON— Gaiety girls are perturbed over the marriage of Connie Talmadge to Captain Alastir Mackintosh. They think Hollywood is usurping some of the privileges of the chorus at this theater whence have come many countesses and baronesses. Some of the girls had eyes on the captain who was one equery to princess Batrice.

EDDIE PRAISES BENDER

SHREVEPORT, La., Mar. 13.(NEA)—"I regard Chief Bender as the smartest pitcher I have ever seen in action during my major league career." That is the compliment Manager Eddie Collins of the Chicago White Sox pays the big Indian.

"I played with Bender on the Philadelphia Athletics when he was in his prime. I never saw him make a dumb move."

Having such an opinion of Bender it was only natural that Collins should sign him as coach when he assumed the management of the Chicago club.

In his first season as assistant to the White Sox leader, Bender has already proved his worth. Collins gives him all the credit for the remarkable progress made by the two Teds, Lyons and Blankenship, who carried most of the Chicago pitching burden last season.

WINGO'S STAR HITTER

EVEN THE GREAT COBB CAN FIND NO FAULT WITH AL'S BATTING STYLE

Ty Cobb, conceded to be the greatest baseball player of all time, does all things well. Among his many accomplishments is an uncanny ability to solve the offerings of opposing pitchers.

Cobb, for nine successive years, led the American league at bat and has 12 championships to his credit. That makes him an authority on batting.

On the Detroit club is another outfielder who can hit the pill, Al "Red" Wingo. Like Cobb, Wingo is a left-hander and hits 'em hard to all fields.

"He's the greatest natural hitter in baseball," is Cobb's tribute to Wingo.

"Once he acquires the habit of waiting out the pitcher and picking the ball he likes to hit, he is going to be even tougher to fool. At present 'Red' overlooks the value of getting the pitcher in the hole, being content to swing at any ball delivered close to the plate."

Since Wingo hits well using only natural ability, Cobb has let well enough alone and not tried to change his style.

Billy Evans Says:

From just a pinch-hitter to a regular big league berth in the outfield in one short year.

* * *

In a sentence that sums up the career of Walter French as a member of the Philadelphia Athletics. Not so many years ago French was a football star at West Point, as well as a sensational diamond performer.

Connie Mack, in summing up his plans for the coming season, has made the definite announcement that French is his choice for right field.

With French in right field and Al Simmons in center, the Athletics will present the unusual spectacle of two players using baseball stances that are entirely orthodox.

Simmons pulls badly from the plate, yet is one of the greatest batsmen in the American league. Some critics refer to him as "Foot-in-the Water Bucket" Simmons. American league pitchers say a lot of worse things about him.

* * *

French hits the ball with his feet wide spread. He doesn't step into the ball but rather hits from a flat-footed position. Opposing pitchers ridicule his style, but Walter does more than that to their offerings.

* * *

PECULIAR STANCE.

French is probably the fastest man in the American league, straight away. When the 1925 season opened his role was that of pinch-runner and hitter. He was remarkably successful at both.

In the difficult job of pinch-hitter, French had a batting streak from June 20 to July 25 that was decidingly out of the ordinary. In that period he was used nine times. He responded with six hits, laid down a sacrifice and struck out twice.

Thus in nine times at bat he delivered as Connie Mack would have him, six safe drives and a sacrifice as per instructions. Average .750.

* * *

His ability to hit in the pinches so impressed Mack that it finally won him a berth as a regular. He immediately proceeded to prove to the estimable Mr. Mack that he had made no mistake.

* * *

FINE RECORD

Starting with the game of September 16, French played 14 games in right field before the close of the season. He hit safely in 11 of them, getting 21 hits, four of his drives being good for two bases. In four of the games he hit safely three times.

During the season he was used as a pinch-hitter on 29 occasions and had a mark of .351, an average of better than a hit in every three times up. His season's average was .370.

* * *

If French can continue where he left off as a hitter, his presence in the Philadelphia outfield is going to make Mack's club more dangerous than ever as a pennant contender.

ASTORIA QUINT ELIMINATED BY MEDFORD TEAM

SALEM, Ore., Mar. 13. (AP).— Medford high school eliminated Astoria from the running in the second series of the Oregon state high school basketball tournament by defeating Astoria 30 to 18 this morning. Medford will meet McLoughlin this afternoon to determine which team will enter the finals of the second series tonight. Previous to the Medford-McLoughlin game this afternoon Grant will play Baker, the winner meeting the winner of the Medford-McLoughlin mix.

If Medford should defeat McLoughlin and Grant should eliminate Baker, Medford and Grant will clash tonight for the second time in the tournament.

In this morning's tilt between Medford and Astoria the Medford quintet, working together with deadly precision throughout the first half, built up a lead of 21 to 4 during that period and was able to maintain a comfortable margin until the final gun sounded. The Astoria five, the smallest team in the tournament, put up a scrappy game, coming back strong in the second frame.

The chief grounds for a famous divorce filed recently is that they have been married since 1925.

Library Chats

Two interesting books recently added to the library shelves:

The Tragedy of Waste, by Stuart Chase.

This book was written by Mr. Chase with the co-operation of the staff of the Federal Labor Bureau. The author writes about the waste in which every one participates. He shows by a great wealth of concrete examples how the good which might flow to mankind from applied science is sapped and salesmanship, our pep, is terrific. In the last analysis there are two things which can be wasted—manpower—idleness, the making of vicious or useless things, bad technical methods in production and distribution. A doubling of the standard of living, the end of poverty and want, is the challenge which the elimination of waste presents. Mr. Chase proposes no panacea, but is rapid, vivid style, with accurate and illuminating examples, is content to show the facts.

Farm Life Abroad, by Eugene Branson.

This book consists of field letters writer from Germany, Denmark and France by Dr. Branson, Professor of Rural Social Economics, University of North Carolina. It is delightfully written and centers attention on the farm people, homes and practices with constant comparisons to American conditions.
