ANNUAL SHEEP SALE TO BE HELD SOON

All sheep and goat breeders will be interested to know that the annual sale and exchange of bucks and billies will be held at Roseburg, Saturday, July 28th.

County Agent B. W. Cheney states that all breeders who have animals for sale or exchange should get in touch with the office not later than July 16th and list the number, breed and age of the animals which they desire to offer for sale.

In order to make this sale profitable to the breeders it is necessary for a certain amount of organization work to be done. The county agent will be glad to do this if he is accorded the information asked.

It is a well known fact that a good purebred buck or billy is one of the best investments any breeder can make in the building up of the flock.

Nice big loganberries, pick them yourself, two cents a pound. Bosenbark ranch.

SALMON PLANTING BRINGS RETURNS

Fry Placed in Stream in 1915 by Riddle Rod and Gun Club Are Restocking Cow Creek.

That Chinook salmon in considerable numbers ascended Cow Creek this year on their annual hegira to the happy spawning grounds will be good news to the sportsmen and other residents of Douglas county. Years ago the Chinooks were plentiful in this branch of the South Umpqua river, but with the coming of the placer mining era, the fish gradually diminished in numbers until finally there were none of these fine fellows to be seen in all that stream.

But about about 1912 and 1916 when the Riddle rod and gun club was doing active work for the propagation of fish in the streams in that section, the state game department was induced to ship a carload of Chinook salmon fry to Riddle for distribution in all the streams of that district.

That was a great day for the Riddle gun club, and William L. Finley came there with motion picture cameras and took scenes of the unloading and planting of the fry, which was participated in by practically every citizen of the community. Cow Creek and its tributaries were given a goodly share of the salmon fry, and when released in the comparatively warm waters of that stream many of the little salmon were noticed to turn up their toes and the wisdom of planting in that stream was questioned by many.

But now, after several years have elapsed, it appears beyond question that some of the fry got by, grew to maturity as other fish do, descended and are now becoming numerous enough to make a considerable run of a splashing when they come up the stream to spawn. That the stream from now on will increase rapidly from year to year seems assured as hundreds of the big fellows cover up the stream past Riddle during the spring.

FORTS WORTH PURCHASING

Uncle Sam Has Them for Sale and Their Acquisition Might Be Well Worth While.

Scores of old forts in the United States are for sale. We don't need forts any more, except around the edges of the country and can spare a good many of them.

Antiquated forts are to go at auction and other means of sale, and there is a chance to secure some old-fashioned masterpieces and military antiques.

The real future value of these forts lies chiefly in their display to tourists. Tourists are presently going to be one of the best money-making propositions in the United States.

As few suspected the millions of dollars that lay in the movies, so the value of tourists is not yet appreciated as it will be when they begin to come every summer in armies, moving eastward and westward.

Every tourist will have from $300 to $500 to spend, and the town with the most "sights" and enjoyments is going to get the most greenbacks. Maine's $45,000,000 a year from tourists will be but a small portion of the money contested.

Every town near an old fort should get in on this bargain sale; and should acquire everything else that will constitute a "show." Perhaps some city will mother an annual world's fair. It might pay.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

POINTER RETRIEVED THE HAT

Seemingly a Case Where Dog, in Classic Phrase, "Seen His Duty and Done It."

A good-looking pointer dog was trotting briskly along Ohio street in front of the Federal building. He plainly was uneasy and was making his way in a sort of bewilderment through the crowd near Pennsylvania street.

A woman's black sailor hat came rolling along in the high wind. It entered among scurrying feet, but none stopped it. Thirty yards or more behind in laughing chase was a young colored woman.

The dog saw the hat and although not near it ran in chase. He galloped along beside it, striking at it seemingly as if trying to let it know it should stop. He seemed not to wish to touch it for fear of doing it damage. Finally he became exasperated and caught it in his mouth. Holding one foot on it he looked around to see what should be done.

The colored girl got her hat all right the pointer yielding it with a proud strut. He got a pat on the head and a kind word that made him jump for joy.

The colored woman went on her way, and the dog half-slightly began his search for a way out of the crowd. —Indianapolis News.

Woman and a Bank.

One of my tenants was a young woman who clerked in a large mercantile office. She handed me a check for the usual amount but she had used a different form.

"I see you have changed your bank," I remarked.

"Oh, no, not at all," she replied.

"But this check is drawn on the Lincoln Alliance and I thought you banked with the Merchants."

"So I do," she explained. "But I ran out of checks of my own bank and so I borrowed one from a friend in the office who banks with the Lincoln Alliance."

"And you have no account there?" I asked.

"Why, no, of course not."

I tried to explain. But—oh, well, what's the use? She was vexed. I had inferred doubts of her honesty. I was no gentleman. She had better move, she declared. And she moved.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Plan to Roof Over River.

A roof over the Chicago river ten miles in length, carrying boulevards, parks, gardens and oil filling stations, has been proposed as the solution of Chicago's traffic problem. The roof would be 200 feet wide, of nine-inch concrete supported on concrete piling sunk into the river bed. On the roof would be two sidewalks, fifteen feet wide; two boulevards fifty feet wide, and a central space in the center seventy feet wide. The proposed plan would not interfere with river traffic and would be constructed from twenty to thirty feet above the surface of the water.

Need Knowledge of Timber.

Nowhere is there a greater need for knowledge of timber growing than in the western states, says the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. In this section the relatively dense population, the enormous industrial demands for timber, and the large areas of lands best fitted for forests all unite to urge timber production on a large scale.

New Rubber Making Process.

An invention by means of which rubber is impregnated with nitrogen gas, thereby filling it with innumerable cells, may revolutionize the making of rubber. Omaha is the home of the new product. A ball of it was subjected to a pressure of 22,000 pounds. In 24 hours it contracted under sufficient to hit the ceiling when released from the press. It is more buoyant than cork in water.

Well Covered.

"Whether you get any cool out your way, I don't know, is the world did you manage to keep warm?" "Yes, we had a blanket mortgage on the place, you know."—Boston Transcript.

R. D. Shearer Gained 35 Lbs. By Taking Tanlac

Robert D. Shearer, well-known retired hotel man, 318 South Second st., Walla Walla, Wash., is another enthusiastic friend of Tanlac.

"That I am enjoying such good health at the age of seventy one," recently said Mr. Shearer, "I can attribute to nothing but the help I have received from Tanlac. My stomach and kidneys had caused me great suffering and worry for ten or twelve years and I had about given up hope of ever feeling well.

"When I started taking Tanlac I only weighed one hundred and twenty five pounds, could neither eat or sleep to do much good, and my whole system seemed out of order.

"Tanlac not only relieved my troubles, but it built me up to one hundred and sixty pounds, a gain of thirty-five pounds, and you may know I was a happy man. The medicine just seems to have given me a new lease on life. I have taken it several times since and it always does just what I want it to do."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

IMMIGRANTS CROWD INTO NEW YORK

(By Associated Press.)

ELLIS ISLAND, July 2.—Long lines of old women in strange tucked dresses, girls in brilliant shawls, bearded merchant men and crying children—all babbling in a dozen tongues—formed an interesting but pathetic scene at Ellis Island today. Babbling inspectors questioned the immigrants as they stood at the threshold of America, lured from their fatherlands across the ocean by stories of the wonders of the new world. Since Saturday midnight, when the new immigration quotas became effective, 3,371 aliens have arrived in New York. Four more ships are bringing 7,500 more today. The inspectors handled 2,000 yesterday and expect to handle 2,000 more before midnight. Major Henry Curran, the new inspector, estimated that between 1,400 and 1,500 of each of the 2,000 examined daily will be admitted. The others must remain on the island until their cases are settled in Washington or else return to their native lands without seeing more of the United States than the skyline battery.

Warm weather and all its outdoor interests certainly test the sticking qualities of face powder.
