WEDDINGS IN GRETNA GREEN HELD ILLEGAL

LONDON (AP)—The old village blacksmith of Gretna Green is still doing business now and then in joining romantic couples, but his wedding ceremony does not always count, it has been decided here in the divorce court.

Before Justice Hill, Mrs. May Celine Bach, of Cheltenham, petitioned for annulment of her marriage to William E. Bach, a commercial traveller of Birmingham, basing the action on the ground that the condition of 21 days' residence, imposed by the marriage of Scotland act of 1856 had not been complied with. Mrs. Bach testified that she went through a form of marriage with Bach on April 3, 1924, at the old blacksmith shop in Gretna Green, having gone from Birmingham with Bach the day before.

Justice Hill held that it was quite clear there had been no marriage, in view of the law, and he granted the decree of nullity.

When a woman most feels like publishing a card of thanks is when she gets married and when she gets a divorce.

This little exchange of repartee was heard at one of the Jesse James resorts the other day, when the cigaret girl was collecting from a reluctant customer.

"Vat, feefty cents for vun package o' Luckys? Vat do you tink I am?"

"I don't know," yawned the girl, "but whatever the answer is, you're the only one of it."

"I can't find my can opener," said a La Grande wife the other day. "Probably away taking the rest cure," growled the other fraction of the family.

"I'm thinking of going into business for myself, teaching modern dancing."

"Don't do it. It's a shaky business."

McNutt: Just burned a hundred dollar bill.

McNitt: Gosh! You must be a millionaire!

"Well, it's easier to burn 'em than to pay 'em."

"How is it I find you kissing my wife?" sternly exclaimed the husband, as he entered his home quietly.

"You find me doing it," replied the visitor, "simply because we didn't expect you home so early."

Brainy Bowers—I have a great dog. Why, you can take him a mile away and let him loose and he will find me.

Lankey Joe—Well, why don't you take a bath?

Lindbergh's feat advanced aviation tremendously, all the dispatches tell us, but how many people are like the Brooklyn man who wrote to a newspaper urging that Charley be prevailed upon to quit flying now and come on home?

AT THE THEATERS

"Private Izzy" Opens At Sherrys Today

In "Private Izzy Murphy," the Warner picture starring George Jessel, featuring Vera Gordon and Patsy Ruth Miller, and directed by Lloyd Bacon and coming to the Sherry theater today for a three-days' run, the actual parade of the returning "Old Sixty-Ninth" up Fifth avenue is shown with Jimmie Walker, Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan, William Randolph Hearst and other notables in the reviewing stand.

Private Izzy Goldberg had taken the name of "Murphy" for business reasons and when assigned to the Irish regiment he still kept the name, thinking the thorny path might be made a bit easier. The boys accepted him as "Private Izzy Murphy," a name which he never disgraced.

His parents come from the Ghetto to witness the big parade, but with broken hearts, for word has come that their boy has been killed in action. Then they see him, proud in his O. D., helmet, gun, hobnails, putters and all!

It's a hale, heart-warming picture, "Private Izzy Murphy." It is a breeder of tolerance. A story of youth, bravery, love and honor with many a chuckle and an occasional tear, and the inference that it's a pretty good old world after all!

Comedy showing "Dog Daze."

Marion Davies In Alluring Role In "Red Mill"

Marion Davies Hollandaise — a piquant foreign creation that is alluringly new—that's the new Marion Davies in "The Red Mill", new Cosmopolitan spectacle now playing at the Arcade theater. The much-heralded adaptation of the famous stage hit score is bound to instant popularity with its quaint settings, a spectacular winter fete, dramatic intensity intermingled with lightsome comedy—and Marion Davies' faultless acting of a role unlike any in her entire career.

Her talents as a comedienne have the best opportunities they have had to date, and she makes the most of them, in the skating scenes where she drops to disaster and a frozen face—the struggle with the patent American ironing board that invades the sacred precincts of her Holland kitchen, and other hilarious details.

These add uproarious entertainment to a story that is gripping in its heart interest—the story of a little Dutch kitchen slavey who is catapulted into society and a strange love affair—who adventures with ghosts in a haunted mill and upsets a Holland town—all for the love of an Irish tourist with a comedy valet and a green necktie.

Owen Moore plays the Irish hero in adebonnaire style that is appealing in its charm; George Siegman, famous screen villain, is as bad as ever in the role of the sinister "Uncle Willem." Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane make an amusing comedy team in the new production, and Fred Gamboldi, William Orlamond, Russell Powell, and other well-known favorites are included in the cast.

The total number of horses and mules on farms has decreased about 17 per cent since 1920. Without colts and horses to replace the present supply of work animals, the number in use will fall off rapidly. Statistical observations point to the eastern states and southern states as the first to feel an acute shortage. Farmers in the corn belt where surplus horses previously have been raised, are advised by the United States Department of Agriculture to consider the possibility of increasing production of types of horses and mules suitable to their demands.

Ken Maynard Is Star In "Land Beyond Law"

Ken Maynard rides to new honors as a Western star in his latest picture, "The Land Beyond the Law", which opened at the Star theater today for a three day run. One is always assured of plenty of action and thrills in a Maynard film, but this one brings with it a stirring story of Western history screened in such a manner that it cannot fail to command interest.

Prior to the admission of New Mexico to the Union, gun-play ruled the land. For several years after it became officially one of the United States, there was great difficulty in bringing law and order to a territory ruled by wealthy and arrogant cattle barons who ruled with absolute power. Maynard appears here as a deputy marshal, assigned to bring to justice one particular baron and his band of cattle rustlers and gunmen who had been terrorizing New Mexico and making it unsafe for pioneer settlers.

Then there is Tarzan, the white steed who is a veritable marvel among horses. He is a vital part of "The Land Beyond the Law." Don't miss this marvelous production.

Art Andy Gump comedy is also on the program.

The young folk certainly are seen, if not heard, these days, especially at the bathing beaches.

His Fists Pay For Pulpit Training

SPRINGFIELD, O., (AP)—A few seasons in the prize ring and a hitch in the marine corps have made up Herbert F. Hamburger's preparatory course for the ministry.

Hamburger finishes at Wittenberg college this month. Next fall he will paste in his memory book his ring sobriquet of "Irish Berger" and his campus nickname of "fightin' parson," to enter Hanna Divinity school, a department of the college.

With his pugilistic and marine corps experiences have given him some advantages for a pulpit career, Hamburger avers. Before he lays aside his glove forever, he will take a farewell fling at the light game this summer, hoping to lay aside enough winnings to set him well on the way to a bachelorhood of divinity.

The sky is brightest when bluest, but it's different with a man.

A Pound of Lead is No Heavier than a Pound of Feathers . . . but a severe loss to the business man or individual property owner, whether from flood, windstorm, or fire, may weigh heavier than anything else in the world—if it is not insured. The business of this agency is to insure property against such losses. Let's talk it over.

Buy Bonds

You often hear this advice given. But is it always good advice?

Better take a lower interest rate and be safe. We sometimes say there are two kinds of bonds:

Good for money.
Good for nothing.
