Many Birds In Cities

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Bird lovers need not range far into the wilderness for all their knowledge of feathered creatures. A sand spit in New Haven Harbor, only a short distance from the Union passenger station, was chosen as the site of a lecture on shore birds by a naturalist from the Peabody Museum at Yale University. Undisturbed by city noises, many species frequent this stretch of sand.

Blaming modern jazz on the jellyfish tendencies of men may be O. K., but some of the credit for the holds you see on a modern dance must go to the monkey.

AT THE THEATERS

Strong Cast In Picture At Colonial

There is welcome news in the theater-goers of La Grande in the announcement by Manager Grenich of the Colonial theater that the featured attraction at his house today and Friday will be "The Lost Limited," a new Bayart picture produced by Harry J. Brown and directed by J. P. McGowan, with Reed Howes in the leading role.

This, in itself, is a guarantee of excellence. But when you take Howes and back him up by such a cast as "The Lost Limited" boasts, you have a well-nigh unbeatable combination. Ruth Dwyer has the feminine lead, and a splendid job she makes of it. The comedy—a most important feature of every pictureplay—is sponsored by Hot Farley, Billy Francy and George Chapman. Then there's the inevitable "heavy"—the gentleman to whom we must look for our villainy—and in this particular instance it is none other than the director himself, J. P. McGowan, who, both before and behind the camera has registered an extensive series of successes.

Don't fail to see "The Lost Limited" during its engagement at the Colonial theater. We feel confident you will enjoy every minute of it.

Billie Dove In Novel Photoplay At Arcade

An old Hungarian custom provides a novel and dramatic scene in "The Stolen Bride," Billie Dove's latest starring picture for First National, which is showing at the Arcade theater, tonight for the last time.

The custom is that which decrees that the bride-to-be shall bring in the betrothal cake upon the announcement of her engagement, and this fact fits in perfectly with the movement of the picture's story.

The heroine's father announces at a banquet that his daughter is to become engaged to a man she does not love, an officer in the Hungarian army.

Her real lover—the officer's orderly—waiting in attendance, is horrified at the announcement and the heroine, realizing the shock to him, remembers the custom and seizes upon it as an excuse to go to him with reassurance that the wedding will never take place.

"The Stolen Bride," written and produced by Carey Wilson, was directed by Alexander Korda, himself an Hungarian, recently brought to Hollywood by First National Pictures.

Lloyd Hughes plays the masculine lead opposite Miss Dove, with Lilyan Tashman, Armand Kalisz, Clive Moore and others in the supporting cast.

Maynard Stars In Drama of Indian Feuds

"The Red Raiders," a powerful historical western drama of the pre-Civil War hostilities between the army and savage Indians, is the feature photoplay at the Star theater today and Friday.

Starring Ken Maynard, the dashing western hero, the new western represents the most interesting of the series produced by the Charles R. Roncos company for First National.

The story was adapted by Marion Jackson from her own work, "The White Horse Troop," and is laid in the wastelands of Montana where two Indian tribes menaced the lives of pioneers who sought to settle there in 1840.

Maynard has the role of Lieutenant Scott, assigned to the Military Post in the Indian hatbed, the scenes of which were utilized from the picturesque region of Lodge Grass, Montana, site of two Indian reservations.

The story involves the attempts of rebel Indians to wage war against the settlers, and the intervention of the U. S. Cavalry to restore peace. It was taken from a true chapter of American history which witnessed the first Indian reservation established by the government, and the events preceding this move.

Ann Drew, the charming actress who gained recognition overnight after a year in pictures, has the leading feminine role opposite Maynard. Paul Hurst, veteran screen character comedian has a prominent part, and others in important roles include Harry Rhodes, Hal Salter, Tom Bay, J. P. McGowan and Chief Yowlache.

Screendom's famous fun family, the Jimmy Smiths, appear once again in "Smith's New Home," the Mack Sennett comedy feature of the bill. Raymond McKee, Ruth Hiatt and Baby Mary Ann Jackson again head the cast of fun-makers.

Prison Tire Factory

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—A tire repairing and reclaiming plant in one of New Jersey's prisons, according to present plans, may save the state thousands of dollars. Governor A. Harry Moore proposed the industry and suggested that prisoners be given opportunity to learn the trade. New Jersey now spends $50,000 yearly for tires to equip official automobiles.
