NEW RADIO CABLE LAID TO AVALON

Seven Way Radiophone Cable Will Prevent Amateurs From Listening In On Commercial Messages in the Future.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, July 10.—(A. P.)—Making seven conversations flow where but one flowed before is the engineering achievement credited to telephone engineers, who have just finished laying what is said to be the world's first one-pair submarine telephone cable between this island off the Southern California coast and the mainland, 25 miles away.

Before the introduction of radio telephony, island dwellers here had to depend on the mails for communication. With the wireless came relief of a sort, for with a radio "talk bridge" linking the island telephone line with the vast network of wires covering the mainland, one could carry on a conversation with any point in the United States.

Only one conversation could be carried on at a time by this method, however, and the conversation usually found its way into thousands of amateur radio sets as well as the telephone company's receiving device, thus losing all vestige of privacy. The last-mentioned difficulty was overcome recently by means of a word scrambling device which made island telephone conversations unintelligible to "outside" receiving sets.

Now that the one-pair cable is in place, however, as many as seven conversations can be carried on simultaneously between Avalon and the mainland. The interesting feature of the one-pair cable is that the seven conversations flow simultaneously over a single strand of copper wire in the center of the cable, a system of varied frequencies similar to that used in radio telephony making this possible.

The ship which laid the cable is as interesting as the engineering accomplishment in which it played a part. It is the United States Army cable ship Dellwood, which came all the way from Alaska to pay out the 25 miles of heavily insulated and armored wire across the channel separating Santa Catalina Island from the mainland. The channel is only 22 miles wide, but its unusual depth required 30 miles each for the two cable lines, which traverse the ocean bed two miles apart and come together at the mainland and island terminals.

The Dellwood's Filipino cable crew is used to deep water jobs, however. Filipinos make the best cable men obtainable, according to Captain Persons in charge of the vessel's laying and repair operations.

"The Filipinos don't know what danger is," he said, referring to the perils encountered along the north Alaskan coast, where the Dellwood has been at work for the past year repairing the 2000-year-old Washington-Seattle and Sitka by the United States Army. "When a man goes out over the overhanging bow in a bosun's chair to cut a steel cable with a cable blowing, a heavy sea running and the breakers against the ship, he can't be troubled with a yellow streak. Our Filipinos do that and similar stunts every day in Alaskan waters."

The Dellwood's mechanical equipment for its task included five huge tanks, capable of holding 1,500 miles of deep-sea cable wound about hollow steel cores. On the forward deck is the cable "picking up" machine, which brings up the worn-out cable on a repair job, and on the after deck is the "paying out" machine which brings the cable up out of the tanks in the hold and pays it out over the stern onto the ocean floor.

QUEER DOOR PARTS MOTHERS AND BABES

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 10.—(A. P.)—One of the most curious floating things in this city is the "Casa dos Expositos," a floating asylum that receives its small inmates through a door of goodness, deep, which is so built in a wall that the person operating it from the outside cannot see inside—the building may be seen by passers within.

The purpose of this revolving door is to enable unfortunate mothers to place their offspring in safe keeping without receiving their identity, or whatever secrets may have been connected with their existence.

Near at the foundling, the keeper of the asylum, we put within the revolving door a cradle. When there is little or no traffic on the street, sometimes with the coming of the dawn a foot-sore mother announces to the street that a new guest has arrived.

If a baby should be found cold and other misfortunes, is caused to the children, it is supplied with that same, for once the baby is placed within the door by the disappointed mother it is lovely, complete, no matter. When grown, it leaves this place to the mercies of what fortune she may and never to express her resentment.

The inmates of the Casa are the guests of a society like orphans and are passed out into the world within the walls of the parish priest who assumes the responsibility. Many of the inmates are adopted by childless persons. Founded in 1726, the institution is the oldest existence of its kind. Its foundation dates from the reign of King Joao V, the Portuguese monarch who established more than 400 institutions in this city, some of which endured centuries and have passed into the hands of the municipality.

BACK FROM SHELBY WHERE HE SAW FIGHT

Paxton Ridgeway of Sutherlin, who attended the Dempsey-Gibbons fiasco at Shelby, returned home last night. He was greatly confused over the fight, and particularly by the fine showing made by Tommy Gibbons. Dempsey is a "dirty" fighter, Ridgeway says, and exhausted poor sportsmanship throughout the entire encounter. He was unable to land his heavy punches on the fast moving Gibbons, who outboxed him through the entire fight. In the clinches Dempsey would hang on Gibbons and wrestle with him, wearing him down by superior weight. Dempsey plainly struck Gibbons low several times, and would strike back even over the referee's head in breaking from clinches. Dougherty shielded Dempsey in every way possible, and in fact, saved his title for him, Ridgeway says. With the right kind of a referee in the ring Gibbons stands a good show to take Dempsey's title from him, Ridgeway believes.

LOCAL DELEGATES ATTENDED N. E. A.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Falbe and daughter, Helen, returned yesterday from points in California, where they have been visiting for the past twelve days.

While in Oakland, Mrs. Falbe, who is principle of the Fullerton school attended the National Educational Association, which met in Oakland for the day sessions and in San Francisco in the evenings during the first in the sixth of July.

The World's Conference of Education was taking place simultaneously during the meetings of the N. E. A., from foreign countries and delegates of the World's Conference furnished many interesting numbers for the N. E. A.

Because of the fact that delegates have had to pay all expenses there was a small representation and only about eight hundred were present. In the future the expenses of the delegates that exceed fifty dollars will be met by the association.

The largest and most important features of the meeting was to stress the idea of "World Peace." Many other important problems were taken up and discussed.

Illinois was entitled to sixteen delegates and at every session all their delegates were present and were very active.

The future president will be Miss Katherine Jones of New York. Miss Jones is the first lady to hold this office for several years.

Those from Southern Oregon who attended the sessions were: Mrs. J. K. Falbe, M. S. Hamm, Miss Nettie Spencer, former high school English teacher, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey G. Smith of Medford, Miss Ruth Swinay and Miss Kittie Marcum.

Electric irons for $5 and up. Telephone 123. Hudson Electric Store. We deliver.

Ernest Voorhies was in yesterday afternoon from Looking Glass on business.
