Wise Talks By the Office Boy

I was reading about a big firm back east that claims that preservatives are not necessary in the food preserving industry, while all the others maintain that the new law, if strictly enforced, will put them out of business. But one big firm with a big reputation for putting up sound fruit has proved the position for all the rest. It's only a question of using sound fruit. Sound fruits, like sound women, need no preservatives. Say, it isn't my chair's coming all this weather. It's the paper I was telling you about. The boss takes a lot of trade papers and that keeps me posted on what is going on in the provision world. You bet I think Preferred Stock are the finest, and Hogan makes great thing bishop. What do you think? Try a jar!

What an Interested Man Found Out About Our
Heating and Ventilating Plants

Another "open letter," showing an unbiased opinion of the efficiency of our heating plants:

FREDERICK HEATH, Architect,
Official School Architect for City of Tacoma,
206-204 Fidelity Bldg., Phone Black 6862
TACOMA, WASH.

Feb. 12, 1907.

Mr. A. A. Lee, Salem, Or.

My Dear Sir: Your communication of Feb. 7 received.

Experience in our city shows the hot blast as the best, and we have adopted that system for all our future buildings. There are several contractors and makers of these systems, more good and some not, McPherson Co. are first-class; we have one of their plants that is giving excellent results.

Do not attempt to use a hot-blast system without automatic regulation. And do not permit any ventilating system to be used except the Johnson. We have tried others and will have to take them out and put in the Johnson.

Sincerely yours,

F. H. HEATH.

You don't take any chances. It costs you absolutely nothing to have us explain our system. And if we do install one we give a bond guaranteeing the efficiency, the economy, and there will be no repairs—no "ifs," no "ands"—just a good heating system put in by people who devote their time and money to nothing but heating and ventilation.
