PENDLETON ROUNDUP OPENS SEPTEMBER 2

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PENDLETON, Ore., Aug. 26.—despite the fact that the round-up seat sale does not open until September 2, five local residents started a line this morning near the ticket booth. J. J. Hamley, veteran saddlemaker, had the first place in line as has been the case for years.

A touch of the Round Up was given in the entertainment accorded George Palmer Putman, New York publisher, and party when Blue Vitrol a new Round Up bucker, spilled Kenneth DePew in a brief but heated bucking argument.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to Roseburg Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Roseburg resident. Who could ask for a better example?

F. Hite, 813 Short stret, says: "My kidneys troubled me for a long time and I was almost down with my back. I could hardly get out of bed mornings and when I stopped, dizzy spells came over me. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Doan's Pills rid me of the aches and pains and made my back well and strong."

and committed suicide by blowing himself to pieces with dynamite.

From where he stood Pike could see another peak to the southward first ascended by the old mountaineer. In choosing dynamite as a means of ending his life, he met death in much the same manner as did his illustrious relative, who was killed in April, 1913, in the explosion of a powder magazine at an army campus. He was stationed there after having discovered the peak which bears his name.

PRINTERS DEADLOCK ON INCREASED WAGE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 26.—The Portland Typographical Union and the employing job printers of Portland represented in the Portland Typothetea were deadlocked today over the question of arbitrating the demand of the union for an increase in the wage scale from $40 to $48 a week. The union wants the issue submitted to the state board of conciliation, while the employers prefer a local board of arbitration of five members. Ray Fennell secretary of the Typothetea, announced that the employers had made two offers $42.50 and $44, but both proposed scales had been rejected by the union.

SOCIALISTS MEET TO NAME TICKET

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

BOIRE, Idaho, Aug. 26.—Idaho socialists and progressives will meet in their respective state nominating conventions here today.

Discussion between the socialists and progressives has grown as a result of the visit yesterday of progressives to socialists chieftains in an effort it was said, to obtain united action on an electoral ticket for La Follette and Wheeler.

Only eight or ten counties are expected to send delegates to the socialist convention.

In the progressive ranks interest seems centered on possible planks for the platform rather than on candidate discussion.

Republicans and democrats meet in their state conventions today at Idaho Falls and Twin Falls respectively, to formulate complete state tickets and decide upon one candidate for United States senator and two for congress.

It is considered probable that Senator Wm. E. Borah and Congressmen Burton L. French and Addison T. Smith will be renominated for the republicans.

Governor C. C. Moore and all other state officials are out for re-nomination on the republican ticket.

INTEREST CENTERS ON PLANET VENUS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—By way of diversion while trying in to catch some signal from Mars, astronomers who remained up last night saw Venus occulted by the moon.

During the year she was and will continue to be an interesting object and in the course of her journey through the heavens again will be eclipsed by the moon a month from yesterday, September 25.

Venus is one of the most important of the planets and moves in an orbit between that of Mercury and that of the earth at a distance of about 67,000,000 miles from the sun. She has a diameter of 3650 miles and passes through phases similar to those of the moon.

The Luxury of Love

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife", "Love—or Fame?" ETC.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

MARY HAYWARD, a famous beauty, is in love with

BRUCE GILLIAN, but during a misunderstanding with him has married

SIR NIGEL CAVENDISH, a visiting Englishman, whom she hardly knows, and who has been called home immediately after the ceremony by the death of his father. The trouble between Mary and Bruce has been caused by CAMILLA WAITE, to whom Mary is strangely indebted. Gillian meets Mary unexpectedly and learns of her marriage. They decide to steal one day together before he leaves for Alaska and she sails for London, and spend it at one of the beaches near New York. They stay very late at the beach, as Mary falls asleep in her beach chair. The next day Bruce leaves for Alaska.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXIV—LADY CAVENDISH SAILS

THE bazaar was the most garish of farces to Mary. For the first time she spent Nigel's money; resentful at being pushed back into the world that she wanted to leave, she made herself wholly a part of it. Little Nancy Atwood came running to her in despair, her arms full of pekingese puppies.

VIOLET DARE

"I can't sell one of them," she wailed. "Camilla Waite is selling cats at the booth next mine, and she's so clever—everyone buys of her—I don't know what to do!"

"I'll take all you have," exclaimed Mary, rummaging in her bag for a check book. "Here—fill this in yourself, Nancy, and give the dogs to your friends. They come back and we'll stroll around together."

Nancy was in the seventh heaven. Everyone crowded around Mary, and she adored being part of the excitement. But black rage seethed within Mary, rage at herself and at fate. Why had she married Nigel? Why had she been such a fool? While she was with Bruce she had clung to the hope that Nigel would release her; now, back in the merry-go-round again, she felt sure that he wouldn't.

It took practically all of her own money to pay the rent for the coming year on the little apartment which she secretly maintained, but she paid it gladly; no matter what happened she would always be able to come back to it, she told herself, when she left it. She spent one night at her aunt's, as Vera Atwood insisted on staying with her.

"You act as if you thought I'd run away; you're a perfect jailer," she protested to Vera.

"I almost feel as if you might," Mrs. Atwood retorted. "You're so queer lately, so desperate. Oh, Mary, I don't know the truth about you seeing Bruce, and I don't want you to tell me if you don't want to; of course I've denied to everyone that you did see him, even thought that wretched Harkness woman did insist that she saw you at Long Beach with him very late at night, and that you came in on the train with her chauffeur. But, Mary, do be sensible; don't lose your head."

"Why keep my head when I've lost my heart?" Mary answered bitterly. "I did go to Long Beach with Bruce. I did stay there all night with him. And I don't care what people think."

"Nigel may care," replied Vera quietly. "You've got to respect his name now, Mary. This is just the sort of thing that will drive him wild."

Mary finished packing her dressing case in silence. After all, she had been selfish; she could not afford to injure Nigel if she was to persuade him to do so much for her. And how could she expect fate to deal squarely with her if she tricked other people?

Nigel had ordered flowers for her by cable; they came, a great mass of orchids, just before she left for the steamer. There were other flowers in her cabin, some of them from people she hardly knew. She barely glanced at them, and ordered her maid—a new acquisition, suggested by Vera—to take off the cards and send the bouquets to the dining saloon.

"Jim's arranged for you to sit at the captain's table," Vera told her, as they went back up on deck. "And he'll have your deck chair put wherever you wish."

"I want a corner where nobody else can come," answered Mary wearily. "And I don't want to go near the dining saloon. I won't have people shout me! I'll eat on deck or in my own sitting room. Oh, Vera, there's Mrs. Harkness."

"Yes, she's sailing, too," Vera replied. "The cat! I could wring her neck. But of course the best thing to do is to pretend not to mind her."

Mary nodded; she had been trained in society's hardest school, had learned to swallow insults charmingly, to be more gracious to her enemies than to her friends.

She held out both hands to Mrs.

Jim hurried up to shake hands.

Harkness as the latter approached.

"My dear, what a pleasure!" she exclaimed. "I hear that we are to be fellow travelers. But I'm such a hermit on shipboard that I'm afraid we aren't to see much of each other, so do tell me what this funny story was about our seeing each other at Long Beach. A rumor of it came to me, and I was delighted. Of course, I never go to such places, and I was sure—that is, quite sure"—(dubiously)—"that you never do."

Mrs. Harkness turned several shades paler under her make-up. She had always envied and hated Mary Hayward, especially after she became Mary Cavendish, and had been glad of the opportunity to start a scandal about her. Later, seeing the strength of Mary's position, she had bitterly regretted her own haste. A social climber, she realized what it would mean for her to have Mary in her own camp, and Mary's graciousness disarmed her.

"I can't imagine who could have thought I meant you," she exclaimed, gushingly. "We were motoring and had a breakdown, so stood at this queer place—and seeing Mr. Gillian and a girl who looked like you, at first I thought it was you. That's what I said—really, that was all—that I thought I saw you!"

"And of course you corrected the rumor as soon as it reached you," commented Mary as sweetly as if she believed it. "I must thank you for done that. People talk so, don't they? Oh, there's the bugle. Good-bye, my dear," to Vera. Jim hurried up to shake hands, the others crowded forward. She wanted to run pell-mell down the gangplank and take the first train for Alaska, instead of standing there quietly as the boat slowly sailed away from the pier.

CLAIMS PLANE WAS MILE FROM MOUNT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Aug. 27.—The Steamer Catherine D of the Pacific American Fisheries with William E. Sullivan who reported August 13, at Port Moller, Alaska, he had found near there a plane wrecked in the Alaska peninsula April 30, by Major Frederick L. Martin of the world flight as a passenger was expected here today.

A statement of Mr. Sullivan that no mountain was "within a mile" of the place where the plane was found, was met by a declaration from Archie W. Shiels of this city, vice-president of the Pacific American Fisheries, that the winds in the vicinity of Port Moller could blow such a wreck for five miles. Mr. Shiels said he had been at Port Moller when the Catherine D had turned her propellers seventeen hours to enable her to remain at a wharf.

All the lines available were put out, he said, and two lines parted.

Mr. Sullivan was reported to have with him three undeveloped negatives of the wrecked plane.

PRINCE OF WALES ENJOYING JOURNEY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

S. S. BERENGARIA, Aug. 27.—(By Wireless to The Associated Press)—The prince of Wales was awarded the booby prize for costume at a fancy dress dance held in the ball room of the Berengaria last evening.

It had been stated that his royal highness would not appear in costume, but at a late hour he entered, made up to represent an apache. The prince wore a saucy cap and a sweater turned inside out in simulation of one of the denizens of Limehouse, London's China town.

Wales appears to be enjoying the voyage thoroughly and is winning the golden opinions of other passengers by the spirit with which he enters into the games and in their amusements. For his part he is delighted over the attitude of his fellow travelers, giving him unwonted freedom from special attention.

Wales practiced twice yesterday with his tug of war team which is to compete with a team composed of Americans.

He has a cheery greeting for the newspaper correspondents who seek him out and altogether appears happy and carefree.

Occasionally he has private poker parties in his own suite.

GIANT ZEPPELIN TO MAKE TRIAL FLIGHT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

FRIEDERICHSHAFF, Germany, Aug. 27.—The ZR-3 will today make a flight if weather permits, flying over Lake Constance for four or five hours to "limber up."

Only a German crew will be on board today as the initial trip is intended only to afford a thorough inspection of the ship in flight, preparatory to the long cruise across the Atlantic.

AMERICAN STEAMER DELIVERING PLANE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

KOBE, Aug. 27.—As the American destroyer John Paul Jones three months ago hurried southward from Hakodate carrying a spare airplane for A. Stuart MacLaren, the British round-the-world flier, the American liner President Madison has sailed from Kobe with a spare plane for Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine flier who crashed when starting from Haiphong French Indo-China for Canton.

The President Madison will take the plane which arrived here from Europe on a Japanese liner to Hong Kong whence it will be shipped to Haiphong by the Chukwa Maru, a Japanese steamer.

The dispatch of the plane ended the frantic efforts of Patrick Murphy, Zanni's representative, to get it off.

Murphy in an interview declared that Zanni would not end his flight in Japan, but attempt to cross the Pacific. He believes that with luck the aviator should reach Japan late in September and make the trans-Pacific flight in October.

NO LODGE MEMBER TO BE ON TICKET

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 27.—Any candidate for office in Pulaski county, who submits his or her name in a preferential primary "in a lodge, klan or other secret organization will not be permitted to have his or her name placed upon the official ticket in a democratic primary in the county under a resolution adopted yesterday by the county democratic convention."

The resolution offered by Donald K. Hawthorne, a local attorney referred specifically to the Ku Klux Klan.

SWIM ABANDONED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

DOVER, England, Aug. 27.—Frank Perks of Birmingham, who left here at 12:30 p. m. yesterday in an attempt to swim the English channel, abandoned his effort at three o'clock this morning when four miles from Calais owing to the extreme coldness of the water.

EMBARGO DECLARED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PANAMA, Aug. 27.—The Panama canal zone officials have decreed a six-day quarantine for passengers arriving from Salvadoran and Honduran ports, owing to a reported outbreak of yellow fever in Salvador.
