ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY NOVEMBER 25, 1924.

The ambitious person can look at a man like Calvin Coolidge, who has now been confirmed in his possession of the most influential office upon earth, and learn many lessons as to how success can be attained. One of the most distinctive characteristics of President Coolidge is his great earnestness and seriousness. From the beginning of his career, he has been a thoughtful student, always trying to secure more information. When other people have been playing games and enjoying social diversions, Mr. Coolidge was digging into the problems of the offices he has successfully held. Any man who does that assiduously is going to obtain a more complete command of the subjects with which he has to deal. The old commonplace saying has it that "Knowledge is power." You can't hold a position of leadership indefinitely unless you know what you are talking about and understand in a comprehensive way the things you are trying to do.

Health authorities are saying much about the advantage of good ventilation through the winter. A recent study of school children's absences at Washington, D. C., showed that the pupils in one open window school lost only six tenths of a day each annually on an average because of colds. But the children in the other schools lost over three days a year on an average for this reason. And yet these open air school children were physically handicapped ones, but with good ventilation they fared better than others. The more people breathe the fresh air, the less they are going to suffer from many diseases that are prevalent through the winter. The human physique was made for out of doors, and closely shut houses are an abnormal condition.

KOLB AND DILL RIOT OF FUN

All those that have witnessed Kolb and Dill in their latest triumphal comedy, written by the late Aaron Hoffman, are of the same opinion that "In Politics" is their greatest success, for unlike their former shows, they are encompassed by an extraordinary collection of beautiful, graceful, singing and dancing girls, with Ernest R. Ball, nationally known composer and singer, singing his latest song hits, and a special orchestra under Mr. Ball's direction.

"In Politics" at the Antlers tonight, is a modern, up-to-the-minute political farce, that makes you grip your seats one moment and wipe away tears that are caused from continuous outbursts of uncontrollable merriment the next.

The plot of the comedy takes place in the little town of Greybull, Wyoming, and the time is the present. Greybull is an old historical town near the scene of the recent Tea-Pot Dome scandal. Kolb and Dill deserve unlimited praise in staging this political farce with music, for it is a solid stream from start to finish and in their respective roles they appear at their best. The combination of the great volumes of comedy and beautiful, bewitching girls, singing songs that forever run through your mind, go to make up the most delightful, fastest and funniest comedy of the season.

Kolb and Dill will renew acquaintance with the Roseburg public at the Antlers theatre tonight, and the usual packed house which always greets these popular comedians is expected.

"AM I RIGHT" IS CLEVER SKIT

Rice and Cady, portraying two Dutchmen, one tall and thin, and the other amusingly plump, have an original manner of putting over their comedy chatter, and a sure-fire songs. This inimitable team of comedians is billed in a skit of their own production "Am I Right" with the Orpheum Juniors Vaudeville at the Antlers Theatre, Wednesday, Nov. 26, and shortly after their appearance they are in "right" with the audience. They know just what vaudeville patrons relish and they give it to them.

Wonderful dancers, and wonderful athletes are no novelty to vaudeville patrons, but when both are combined and appear in the same act, the performance may well be termed extraordinary. The Amaranth Sisters and Co., comprising two charmingly pretty and unusually talented girls, and a duo of physically perfect young men, furnish both the dancing, and the athletics in an offering called "A Vaudeville Fantasy."

EGYPT IS CALM AWAITING WORD FROM ENGLAND

table in that it includes representatives of Islam, christianity and Judaism.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Contention by some foreign newspapers and publicists that the Egyptian trouble ought to be referred to the League of Nations is received with impatience in those quarters here which support the British government's action following the assassination of the sirdar.

The Times while holding that "no great good nor any particular harm" would be likely to result from reference of the matter to the league, strongly maintain that the British government is acting within its clear rights and that the British case, is thoroughly sound in law, in justice, in the interests of Egypt and the world."

It further declares "that the limits of Egyptian independence was limited from the first by a sort of Monroe Doctrine safeguarding specific British interests, such as that which safeguards American interests in Cuba."

The Daily Telegraph remarks, that if the new Geneva protocol had been operative and ratified by Great Britain the position would have been different, and the question of indemnity would have been the subject of compulsory arbitration.

"Indeed" it adds, "if carried to its logical conclusion in practice the protocol would have infringed the Monroe Doctrine. American critics of our action in Egypt should note this and cognate points."

The Daily Mail denounces the suggestion of submitting the affair to the league as "audacious" and absurd, adding:

"What proposition in Egypt is the domestic concern of the British empire, which is not prepared to allow any outside interference."

The Daily Express says, "if any member of the league attempts to submit the matter to it as a subject for arbitration, it will sound the death knell of the league."

It is noteworthy that the laborite and a section of liberal opinion continue to insist strongly that the case should be put before the league.

MAN NOT IDENTIFIED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

MCALISTER, Okla., Nov. 25.—Five postal inspectors yesterday failed to identify a man held here as Ray "Nick" D'Autremont, wanted in Oregon in connection with the robbery of a Southern Pacific passenger train and the murder of four trainmen at Siskiyou, Oregon, in October 1923.

D'Autremont was arrested here last week and confessed according to officers that he is wanted in connection with the crime. Officers said they gave small credence to the confession and believed the man was seeking a free ride to California. He is being held under bogus check charges.

poisonous acid which authorities said was missing on the night of the tragedy from the medicine cabinet had been found, he said he was glad it had been located.

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley, believes his wife committed suicide, by casting herself into the furnace after becoming violently insane, according to a statement he made to Mr. King last Wednesday.

The body of Mrs. Sheatsley may be exhumed, it was indicated today following a conference late last night between county authorities and Edwin Abbott, an undertaker who removed Mrs. Sheatsley's remains from the furnace.

Mr. Abbott told county prosecutor King that a portion of Mrs. Sheatsley's skull was broken. He indicated however that this might have been caused by the intense heat of the furnace.

Science Says Glands Are Responsible for Health and Strength

Activity of certain glands is responsible for the strength, courage, fighting power and nerve force of men, is the latest opinion of science. Berman has gone so far as to analyze and classify the various types of ring favorites and famous fighters of history, and shows that such men as George Dixon, Bat Nelson, Jack Dempsey and Napoleon were possessed of unusually active glands.

It is the function of the glands to pour into the blood their vitalizing secretions which stimulate vitality and energizing force.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, prepared in tablet form provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen, for men and women, is obtainable at Chapman drug store. Mail orders accepted.
