ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1924.

Some of the voters complained yesterday about the method employed by the judges in handling the voters, that is, many were refused a vote who maintained that they were entitled to an expression by ballot on the bond issue. However, we are of the opinion that the election board was most sincere in its efforts to have the issue carried or defeated without a single hitch in the legality of the election, and for this reason "held up" all voters whose names were not on the tax rolls. Probably, had all voted who made the effort the bond issue would have carried by a far larger majority.

The school board will use mighty good judgment if they call into consultation, before starting on the plans of the new high school building, a committee of responsible men as an advisory committee to assist in properly carrying out the plans of the new enterprise. The undertaking is no boy's job and the best minds possible should be commandeered.

Yesterday's school bond issue is sane evidence of the progressive spirit maintained by the citizens of this school district. When confronted by matters affecting the welfare of the community at large you can always count on the old city going over the top. The vote showed a decisive victory for better and more adequate school facilities.

Many a man and woman stood in line at yesterday's school bond election for almost an hour before they had the privilege of voting—but it was worth the price.

The American people are said to be illogical, and everyone agrees that those who think differently from themselves are very unreasonable.

The old town of Roseburg has been put on the map again. Hurrah!

Two to one in yesterday's bond election wasn't so bad.

And the women were right there at the polls—Johnny on the spot.

Here is the solution to puzzle No. 45:

MURPHY PROPERTY BOUGHT

Elmer Wetherby, J. V. Casey and G. C. Finlay, have purchased the Ora S. Murphy property, lying on Stephens street, just north of Rentmy's grocery. The property consists of two well located lots and large house, which is now being used as a rooming house. No immediate improvements are contemplated. The purchasers are holding the land for speculation.

When interviewed this morning regarding the outcome of the school bond election, one of Roseburg's well known knockers had the following enlightening statement to make, to wit:

"It's a gol dang shame the way this town's a gittin' in the hole. Why gol dang it, look at 'em votin' fer a new school. Why gol dang it, they hain't no use o' havin' any more of 'em. Why gol dang it, when I war a kid they didn't gimme no hifalutin' eddycation and gol danged if I hain't got along purty gol dan well. But gol dang 'em if they wanta spend there money, why gol dang it, let 'em go. Ya don't catch me spendin' any more of mine than I kin help. Yer gol danged' right yer don't."

He spat a trailing squirt of tobacco towards the curb, pulled up his frayed pants another hitch and went down the main stem "gol dangin'."

CARDWELL PROPERTY SOLD

A. J. Young, proprietor of the auto camp grounds, has purchased the section of the Cardwell property, just north of Deer Creek, now used for camp ground purposes. The deal does not include the residence. Mr. Young has been leasing the land for several years, and using it for a camp ground, and has now succeeded in obtaining title. He expects to make permanent improvements in the near future.

MODERNITY NOW CHURCH'S PERIL

Presbyterian Divine Raps Present-Day Writers and Pulpiteers.

GOSPEL IS DILUTED

Public Ridicules the Saner Teachers and Listens Eagerly to Voice of Fanatics.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Many re-statements and re-interpretations of Christian doctrine today are nothing but sheer unbelief when stripped of their disguise, Dr. Edward Clarence MacArtney, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church, declared in an address prepared for delivery before the students and faculty of McCormick Theological seminary at the Presbyterian national conference here.

Unbelief, the love of popularity and the menace of agnosticism were called some of the adversaries of the minister by Dr. MacArtney. "Love of popularity," he said, "tempts men to dilute the gospel and to delete the bible until the grand and peculiar accounts of the Christian religion are entirely lost and the voice of the preacher becomes only a lovely sound."

Agnosticism he called the great peril of the Christian Church today, when, "believers are ridiculed as ignorant and fanatic whereas men who are avowed agnostics as to certain great new testament facts and doctrines are among the most praised and eagerly sought after of Christian teachers and writers and preachers."

Present day religion is "noncreative" he averred.

"It is too spacious a figure to speak of the present world as a neighborhood," Mrs. Charles K. Roys, New York, foreign executive of the Presbyterian foreign board of missionaries, declared in an address prepared for delivery before the national conference.

Modern industrialism and national consciousness she terms the forces challenging Christianity in mission lands. Whether they will bring weal or woe depends on their following on Christian principles of honesty and justice.

BEFOGGED LONDON LOSES MILLIONS

LONDON, Dec. 11.—London today was still in the grip of one of the worst fog in years. It descended upon the city Tuesday night and continued throughout yesterday and this morning.

Thousands were delayed in going to work because of the burdening of the subways with unwonted members and the virtual paralysis of the omnibus and tramway services. Busses were able only to crawl, snail like, through the inky mist, occasionally bumping the curbs and one another.

Several persons were injured in collisions yesterday.

Telegraphic reports indicate the fog extends to a large degree over half of Europe.

The cost to London is estimated at $5,000,000. Much shipping is held up and the crews of many vessels, fog-bound in the Thames, are short of food.

Lloyd's shipping agency reports that the British liner Arcadian, inbound from Malta for Southampton, is ashore on the Shingles, near The Needles, in a dense fog. Three tugs have gone to her assistance.

STATE WILL BUILD GARDINER ROAD

PORTLAND, Dec. 11.—(Special to the News-Review.)—Fred Anderhelmer, James Ford, W. H. Jewett of Gardiner, and all the members of the Douglas county court met at the state highway commission December 9th. Fred Anderhelmer, the spokesman asked the highway commission for their support in the building of about three miles of the Roosevelt highway, through and north of Gardiner, stating that the Gardiner market and the Douglas county court would offer $11,000.00 on this project. The building of this highway would relieve local conditions as it follows the present county road for about one mile to the S. P. depot at East Gardiner, it also would give the farmers along the lake country north of Gardiner a road they could use for an all year road, at present it is impossible for them to get to town during the winter months. As this offer made by Douglas county was made on a 50-50 basis, the highway commission agreed to build this three miles of Roosevelt highway from a point about a half mile east of Gardiner, through the town and to the summit of the mountain north of Gardiner.
