Dear Abby!

Pay The Piper!

— By ABIGAIL VANBUREN —

DEAR ABBY: The daughter of my husband's boss was married recently and someone in the office decided that a collection should be taken up for a wedding present. My husband said that since we were not invited to the wedding, and didn't socialize with the boss, he didn't want to chip in on the present. The girl collecting the money said he was entitled to his opinion, and she let it go at that. Well, it seems a gift was bought for $90, and through some mistake, my husband's name got on the card. He got a nice personal "thank you" from the boss himself, but he didn't tell the boss that his name got on the card by mistake, and he didn't deserve any thanks. The office people think my husband should kick in with five dollars since he got credit for being in on the gift. What do you think?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Having accepted the unearned "thank you," your husband should kick in with the five dollars.

DEAR ABBY: A girl who works with us got a genuine mink stole from her boy friend for Christmas. What do you think she gave him?

THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: It wasn't the cold shoulder.

DEAR READERS: The Houston Police Department prepared Ten Easy Rules for Raising a Delinquent. And here they are:

1. Begin at infancy to give the child everything he wants. In this way he will grow up to believe the world owes him a living.
2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. This will make him think he's cute.
3. Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is 21, and then let him "decide for himself."
4. Pick up everything he leaves lying around — books, shoes, clothes. DO everything for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others.
5. Quarrel frequently in his presence. In this way he will not be too shocked when the home is broken later.
6. Give a child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as tough as you had them?
7. Satisfy his every craving for food, drink and comfort. Denial may lead to harmful frustrations.
8. Take his part against neighbors, teachers, policemen. They are all prejudiced against your child.
9. When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourself by saying "I never could do anything with him."
10. Prepare for a life of grief. You are bound to have it.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Restraint Goes Far in Bridge

John R. Crawford of New York is one of the finest and most colorful players of all time. Almost anything can and does happen when Johnny is at the table. Unquestionably his false-card in a rubber bridge game at Newport was one of the most sensational of the year 1963.

South was pretty proud of his restraint in opening with only one club. He had 23 points, but in addition he had better than six old fashioned honor tricks. So once North responded to that one club opening, South was on his way to a slam and would probably have gone all the way to seven had North shown a king in response to South's five no-trump Blackwood call.

Johnny was looking at a lot of cards in defense against six no-trump, but it never occurred to him to double. He did not want to show the location of all those picture cards.

When he saw dummy, Johnny was really glad that he hadn't doubled. Obviously, South held all the missing aces and kings and if he could bring those six diamond tricks he would have his slam.

It also looked as if South would bring those six diamond tricks home unless Johnny could create an illusion for him.

That is just what Johnny did. South finessed dummy's queen of diamonds at trick two and Johnny dropped the jack.

South returned to his hand with a club, led a diamond, played dummy's ten and was about to claim a grand slam when Johnny produced the king. Instead of making all the tricks South wound up going down four.
