DUCK TRACKS

By PETE CORNACCHIA
Emerald Sports Editor

Heaven help the foes of Washington this Saturday, sing the boys. Five Fins on the Fearsome Foursome, chant the boys in the back rooms down at Luckey's. Weep, O Muses, for our poor gladiators, pleads the lone football fiend in the English department.

Offhand, it seems these and other folk believe our Webfoots won't have the chance of a snowball in a Delta Zeta bustle when they meet Washington this weekend at Seattle. If we give a second thought to the coming battle, however, when will the time be more ripe than now for an upset? The reported millions of dollars spent to build the current Husky eleven clinked down the drain this past Saturday when Washington lost to the boys with more money. The folks around Seattle wanted that win very badly and they were about as high for that contest as you can get.

Howie Odell

There's little more than a faded rose remaining among the Husky souvenirs this week as the once-victorious Ducks prepare to invade, and it's likely the Huskies consider the rose and the Duck fit only for the garbage bucket. Word comes down the trail that several of Coach Howie Odell's regulars are slated for very little action against the Webfoots.

Don't Feel Badly, Boys

"Don't get the idea we think we'd whip you with our little finger," seems to be the inference. "It's just that our boys have worked hard this season and need a rest."

Dick Sprague, 180-pound sophomore, has been working out as offensive fullback in place of Hugh McElhenny, who has done little more this week than warm up briefly in a sweat suit. Hurricane Hugh, hobbling from a hip bruise received against California, is reported to be receiving massages and diathermy treatments.

Sprague, in a case similar to that of our Jack Countryman, has had his primary duties this fall confined to defensive chores but has shown enough speed and drive to fill in when McElhenny isn't around.

Joe Cloidt, pass-snagging end rated by many as the best wingman on the Coast, is missing practice because of a fractured bone in the lower part of his back. He isn't expected to see action Saturday. Halfback Jack Seth, they say, is down with a cold. No telling about End Fritz Apking, who has been getting his knuckles rapped in a disciplinary fashion by Odell. It seems Halfback Roland Kirkby needs a rest, too.

Heinrich Will Be There

There's little doubt Quarterback Don Heinrich will be in there for at least a pass or two—at least long enough to establish a new passing yardage record. Maybe this will bring Hood River's Don O'Leary into action for a change. One of the best passers to be tempted from this state in a long time, O'Leary went to Notre Dame where he got little more than polite nods from the coaches at South Bend. Evidently preferring to play on a lesser team rather than pick bench splinters for the Fading Irish, he transferred to Washington to rust behind Heinrich with Sam Mitchell.

It was mid-season last year before Heinrich could establish an edge over O'Leary, and for good reason. Against Oregon State, with Heinrich sidelined by injuries, O'Leary connected with 15 tosses in 25 attempts to set a Washington record for the most completions in a single game. He hit 46 of 84 attempts during the season.

O'Leary OK

In his limited work this season—his last, O'Leary had pitched 16 aerials up to the California contest and completed 8 of them for 53 yards. Four punts averaging 33.3 yards are credited to him.

We sometimes wonder if the guy would have done better for himself to stay in the state—at Oregon, for instance.

Many, many lines ago we mentioned something about good chances for an upset. We don't know how many of the Huskies will be able to play Saturday nor how many will be called upon to play. Bear stories are to be taken for what they're worth and we never know the truth until it's too late. Nevertheless, considering that Washington is likely to be down after the California games (especially after they scan Oregon's record) and also may be considerably bothered by injuries, we have a decent chance of wrecking Husky Rose Bowl hopes completely.

In this year of elections, we hope Jim Aiken's boys will remember how the voting went two years ago when Oregon was co-champion of the Pacific Coast Conference.

Counseling Center Now Ready To Handle Student Problems

Are you in a quandary over midterms and not just sure what you are going to do?

The counseling center can handle many problems of a personal, educational, or vocational nature. Various tests can be given which will help in showing students what they are best suited for, but J. S. Carlson, director of the center, emphasized they can only help. A student must make up his own mind in the end.

Veterans' counseling at the center was discontinued Nov. 10. This gives the office more time to work with non-veterans. Increased flexibility in working out each student's problem is now possible with the VA counseling out of the way, Carlson said. He also mentioned that while the center was handling VA affairs, 4,016 cases were taken care of, over half of them being students on the campus.

In addition to counseling, the center administers the entrance exams, scoring them with an electrical machine. They also score tests for the faculty. Use of the machine makes it possible to score between 200 and 500 tests an hour, and Carlson estimated it takes the place of 20 persons. In one day during the time the entrance exams were given, about 2,000 tests were scored. The same evening, 2,000 more tests were brought down from Vanport College and scored, making a total of 4,000 tests scored in one day.

PiKA's Entertain 'Dream Girls' At Dinner Tonight

The last group of 26 candidates for the title of "Dream Girl of Pi K. A." will be guests of Pi Kappa Alpha at dinner tonight at the chapter house.

The contestants have visited the fraternity in three groups. The first group attended dinner last week, and the second Tuesday night.

Guests of the fraternity tonight will be Kay Kolasa, Sigma Kappa; Barbara Baker, Pi Beta Phi; Sylvia Jones, Chi Omega; Doris Padrick, Gamma Phi Beta; Ginny Bowers, Zeta Tau Alpha; Anne Armstrong, Delta Gamma.

Dorothy Peterson, Carson 3; Arlene Stone, Susan Campbell, and Marie Sorenson, Rebec.

Candidates who were guests Tuesday night were Kay O'Hearn, Alpha Omicron Pi; Alice Morrow, Alpha Phi; Sue Madsen, Alpha Delta Pi; Pat Wright, Kappa Alpha Theta, Jean Peterson, Delta Delta Delta.

Sue Barnes, Carson 2; Dinae Flanner, Carson 4; Collette Snyder, Hendricks; and Mary Peterson, University House.

All of the Dreamgirl contestants will attend a fireside next week at Pi Kappa Alpha. The Dreamgirl dance will be held Dec. 2.

Co-Rec Night Slates Square Dancing

Square dancing in stocking feet will be a feature of Fun night at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Gerlinger. Some of these dances will be accompanied by records and a pianist and caller will accompany some.

Badminton and volleyball will also be available in the outdoor gym. Ping Pong tables, and equipment will be on the sun porch.

Gerlinger pool will be open for swimmers. Both men and women's suits will be furnished.

This Fun Night, or Co-rec night, is the third and final one of a series, sponsored by the Women's Athletic Club.

Women Grads Offered Jobs

A number of job opportunities are available to graduating women in the field of YWCA social group work including teaching, recreation, religious education, personnel administration, or community organization, according to information received by the graduate placement office.

In addition, there are opportunities in health education for experienced personnel and for recent graduates who have had some good short term experience in activities such as summer camp or playground work. Further information on these jobs may be obtained by calling at the graduate placement office in Emerald hall.

Karl W. Onthank, graduate placement director, also said that there were other jobs in similar work not with the YWCA. He has information available for those interested.

"Does this package belong to you? The name is obliterated."

"That ain't mine. My name's Thompson."

If it weren't for second guessers there would be a lot less criticism in the world.

Webb Attends NEA Meeting

Carl C. Webb, professor of journalism, will attend the fall meeting of the National Editorial Association in Chicago beginning today.

Webb will also participate in the meeting of the Newspaper Advertising Service, of which he is a member of the board of directors. The Service is affiliated with the Editorial Association.

Webb is the only representative from Oregon attending this joint meeting.

Twist Announces ACS Supper Plans

Student affiliates of the American Chemical Society will sponsor a potluck supper at 7 p.m. Friday in Gerlinger Hall, according to Carolyn Twist, chairman.

The student affiliates of the ACS is a new organization on campus, replacing the old chemistry club. All chemistry majors and graduate students in chemistry are automatically members.

Officers of the University affiliates are, Miss Twist, chairman; Sid Sherman, vice chairman; W. C. Wiser, secretary-treasurer; and the two executive committee members, Kenneth Hayes, graduate student from England; and Art Bayly.
