Wise Men Change Their Minds.

At Oxford university the late Professor Ritchie was a favorite student of Professor Jowett, and during the progress of Jowett's translation of "The Republic" he asked Ritchie's advice regarding a difficult passage. The young scholar with diffidence gave his opinion, with sufficient reasons, as he thought, to back it; but the master was obdurate and held an opposite view. The two scholars parted for the night without coming to an agreement, but in the morning Ritchie hurried to Professor Jowett to say that he now saw his own mistake and that the master was right. "Oh, well," was Jowett's reply, "I, too, have been considering the matter and have translated the passage according to your view, and I will make no change now."

Why She Didn't Shout.

Bishop Cortlandt Whitehead of Pittsburg is fond of telling stories at his own expense. When he was rector of the Church of the Nativity at South Bethlehem, Pa., he acquired a convert for the Episcopal church in the person of a Methodist woman who was much given to contributing to the church services by interjecting "Amen" and "Alleluia." He explained to the good woman that such ejaculations were not customary in the Episcopal church, and she sat gravely through a sermon on dignity and decorum in public worship. Afterward the bishop thanked her for restraining her fervor.

"No need to thank me," retorted the ex-Methodist. "You didn't say anything to make me shout."—New York Times.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

A New Way to Curtain the North Room Windows and Let in Light.

In a north room, where all the light is needed, or in any room where the outlook is not to be concealed try hanging the muslin curtains straight. Do not buy the regulation ruffled muslin curtains, but for each window buy five yards of white curtain muslin, either dotted, figured or striped. Have a large brass sash rod fastened at the top window casing and measure down each side of the window. Cut two strips of muslin of this length, allowing enough to turn over for a casing for the rod and an inch and a half ruffle above. Allow a two and a half inch hem at the bottom. Make also a short ruffle, one width of the muslin with casing and ruffle at the top to match the side lengths, but give it a five inch hem. This ruffle should be about eighteen inches deep when finished. Run the long strips on the rod with the short ruffle between, pull the long strips well to each side and allow them to hang undraped. This gives a better dressing to the window than the other arrangement, for light comes in unobstructed at the upper as well as the lower half of the window, and the men folks who ask why windows are made just to cover up again find no need of pulling back draperies to see out.

Eggs With Mushrooms.

A delicious way to cook fresh eggs for the table in the spring is with mushrooms. These are always in market from the greenhouse if not from the field. A quarter of a pound of mushrooms is enough to serve with twelve eggs. After peeling and trimming the mushrooms melt a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan. Add a teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of white pepper. Then add the mushrooms, properly cleaned and trimmed, squeezing in two drops of lemon juice. Cover the saucepan and let the mushrooms cook for ten minutes on a slow fire. Add a tablespoonful of wine and simmer the mushrooms for about three minutes longer, or until the liquid has been reduced one-half. Now add three tablespoonfuls of cream and let the mushrooms boil up again. Dish the mushrooms in the center of a hot platter without the liquid around them. Lay twelve poached eggs in a circle around the mushrooms. Pour the liquid of the mushrooms over them and around the eggs. This dish is nice without wine; simply serve with the three tablespoonfuls of cream added to the mushrooms.

To Renovate Feathers.

Have a rack made to fit into a wash boiler so that a pillow may rest upon it above the water. Empty the feathers from the pillow tick into a loose meshed muslin pillow-case, tie up the end or sew it, place it on the rack above the boiling water, put on the cover and allow to steam one or two hours. There will be room for only one pillow at a time. Fasten the pillow-cases on the line as soon as steamed and allow to remain until the feathers are dry. In the meantime wash the pillow ticks, starch well to make feather proof or iron on the wrong side a coating of beeswax and have ready for use. The feathers will be so fluffy it will be hard to get them back again in the same tick.

When ticks get old enough to leak feathers, they make very good kitchen towels and dish towels after the down has been entirely removed.

Stewed Rhubarb.

Stewed rhubarb, when cooked in the ordinary way on the top of the stove, "catches" and burns on the bottom of the stewpan very easily. We prefer it cooked in the oven or steamed in a double boiler. For the latter wipe, peel and cut in inch pieces; put it into a double boiler and add sugar in the proportion of one cupful to a pint of rhubarb. Do not stir while cooking. When baked, put in a covered earthen dish with a very small quantity of water and the sugar; bake for about two hours.

Scotch Toast.

To one cupful of chopped cold boiled tongue add the yolk of one egg and some chopped parsley. Season with salt, pepper, one teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce and a dash of celery salt or seed. Moisten with cream. Heat the mixture in a saucepan and spread on squares of buttered toast. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs, brown quickly and serve with a garniture of lemon and parsley.
