TWO MANAGERS TO HANDLE DELANEY

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The chance that two heads may be better than one in furthering Jack Delaney's heavyweight title and aspirations—and an incidental cash consideration of $50,000—today brought the retired champion of the light heavyweights under the guidance of the managerial team of Joe Jacobs and Billy McCarney after five years of fistic partnership with Pete Reilly.

The flashing French-Canadian, nursed from a mediocre battler with damaged hands to one of the most colorful fighters in the game, brought his silvery-haired guide a big return on an original investment of $900.

The alliance was broken yesterday in the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission where Reilly legally turned over his gladiator to Jacobs and McCarney and at the same time bequeathed them his control of Sammy Vogel, a lightweight, for good measure. Delaney, whose contract with Reilly had but one year to run, immediately signed a two-year agreement with his new managers.

Reilly announced that his relations with Delaney, who in recent months turned from the "saber of the north" as light heavyweight king, were as cordial as ever but that business reasons prompted the change. Pete said he no longer had the time to devote to Delaney's interests, that he was departing from the fistic "racket" forever, and in the future would devote his time entirely to real estate and golf.

The practice, however, was strictly secret, as will be all the workouts of the Pennsylvania team while preparing for the contest.
