Larger Canal Urged.

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—On a practical demonstration tour to illustrate the needs for a deeper and wider canal between this city and Baltimore, more than five hundred business men headed by Representative J. Hampton Moore, left here today for Lorewood Grove, Del., where delegates from other eastern cities will gather. The purpose of the meeting at the Grove is to focus attention on the importance of having the federal government purchase and widen the present Chesapeake and Delaware canal to bring into closer and cheaper business communication Philadelphia, Wilmington, Trenton, Baltimore and Washington and other intermediary cities. The present waterway is only 9 feet deep and 24 feet wide. It is proposed to have it widened to 90 feet and its depth increased to 12 feet.

On arriving at Lorewood Grove this afternoon the local delegation met the Baltimore contingent headed by Mayor Preston, and Governor Miller of Delaware and his staff. Besides delegations from several other cities, members of the congressional, rivers and harbors committee, members of the Atlantic Deep Waterways association, and the Commercial exchange representatives will attend.

A demnostration was given by barges and tows passing through the locks. Representative Moore declared that the value of the canal and its treatment as a free and open commercial highway connecting the Delaware river and points north and the Chesapeake bay and points south will be fully demonstrated.

WISDOM OF EPICTETUS.

Never proclaim yourself a philosopher nor make much talk among the ignorant about your principles, but show them by actions. Thus, at an entertainment, do not discourse how people ought to eat, but eat as you ought. For, remember that thus Socrates also universally avoided all ostentation. And when persons came to him and desired to be introduced by him to philosophers, he took them and introduced them, so well did he bear being overlooked. So if ever there should be among the ignorant any discussion of principles, be for the most part silent. For there is great danger in hastily throwing out what is undigested. And if any one tells you that you know nothing and you are not nettled at it then you may be sure that you have really entered on your work, for sheep do not hastily throw up the grass to show shepherds how much they have eaten, but inwardly digesting their foot, they produce it outwardly in wool and milk.
