NICK CARTER'S TIRE SHOP

Dear friends, all of you that owe me for tires that is past due, I would be glad if you would come in and pay me, for this reason, there is an old grey wolf in Portland, his name is Lee Tire and Rubber Co., he is a vicious old wolf. What he wants is money. Feed him plenty of money and he wil smile, wag his tail and lick your hand, but if he does not get money he shows his teeth, snarls and snaps at you. This old wolf went through here the other day, he showed his teeth at me. What he wanted was money. He will be back by the fifteenth and if I do not feed him money I am afraid he will bite a leg off me.

Yours for ever and ever,
NICK CARTER.

TODAY'S MARKETS

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

PORTLAND, Nov. 7.—Egg and butter prices were stationary today, as the week-end rush ended. The egg situation shows little improvement. Fresh eggs were unusually scarce and the price was firm.

Reviewing the fruit and vegetable situation, the Portland market news bureau of the United States department of agriculture says:

Cauliflower and celery are both selling at higher prices to retailers, not because of lighter supply or more active demand, but in accordance with the higher prices being realized for carlot shipments. Carlot sales of celery have remained steady at $2.00. The light supply of cauliflower is just now being felt in eastern and middlewestern markets; demand is active, and the market is erratic, with a wide range in asking prices. Each day's sales, however, show a slight advance.

Quality of California grapes shows a very wide range with a corresponding variation in prices. Inferior quality is keeping the grape market quotations at a rather low level.

Apples, potatoes, and pears are all moving in moderate volume, with practically no price changes registered in the last week.

Poultry, onions, potatoes, wool, bulk hay, cascara bark and hops steady and unchanged.
