Rheumatism

CANNOT EXIST

Don't suffer with inflammatory, muscular, sciatica, neuritis, lumbago, gout or any form of rheumatism.

Mr. Clarence Bates, Rigby, Idaho, writes: "I am well today after taking your wonderful prescription and I can name many people to testify to this fact. I have recommended it to about 40 people and it has helped all of them. Use this letter if you liked." This letter is typical of hundreds endorsing Trunk's Prescription.

This prescription does not hurt the stomach, it does not depress the heart. Eat all the food you wish while taking it. Contains no mercury, salicylate soda, oil wintergreen or narcotics, but usually relieves any kind of rheumatism for good. Trunk's Prescription is a great uric acid solvent and a superior liver medicine.

Trunk's Prescription sells for $1.75 or 2 for only $5.00 at drug stores like L. & L. Drug Co.—Adv.

Neilan's Best Is "Tess," Now at Sherrys.

"Tess of the D'Urbervilles" is his greatest screen production believes Marshall Neilan, who filmed Thomas Hardy's classic novel for Metro-Goldwyn. Not only its greatness as a novel, but its peculiar fitness for adaptation to pictures, assures its qualities as a photoplay aside from the direction or acting, Neilan declares.

"A great many people who are acquainted with past and present literature regard Thomas Hardy as the greatest living writer," Neilan states.

"Certainly 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles' is his greatest work. It is unusually well fitted for the screen. It is, without question, the greatest story I have ever attempted to film, and it is more easily adaptable to the screen than any other novel with which I am familiar.

"Hardy has a grasp and an understanding of life which no other modern writer has. His stories are made realistic by their simplicity, and the manner in which they are told makes them excellent screen material.

"In my opinion, Blanche Sweet, as Tess, and Conrad Nagel as Angel Clare, are perfect in their parts. I truly believe Miss Sweet has given a finer performance in 'Tess' than in 'Anna Christie.'

"I think 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles' is one of the biggest stories ever written. It is the greatest picture I have ever made—of that I am sure.

"Miss Sweet and I have been planning and hoping to make a picture of 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles' for three or four years, and at last we have gratified our ambition with results that are satisfying to us, at least.

"Incidentally, it is the first picture we have made together since we have been married.

The picture is presented by Louis B. Mayer. Dorothy Farnum made the screen adaptation. The supporting cast includes Conrad Nagel, Stuart Holmes, George Fawcett, and many others.

Comedy showing, "Fast Black."

"Ten Commandments" Made Hit in World's Great Cities.

Cecil B. De Mille's splendid dramatic spectacle, "The Ten Commandments," which will be shown at the Arcade theater on Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 22 and 23, achieved sensational success last season in New York, London, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles. The showings were confined to those cities up to the beginning of the present season. It is now being presented by a limited number of traveling companies, each with its own orchestra, and will be shown this season only in regular theaters.

First of New Ray Dramas At Star Wednesday.

Gladstone Smith, the hero of "Dynamite Smith," starring Charles Ray at the Star theater Wednesday, was an inoffensive young man who lived a monotonous existence, writing book reviews, covering highbrow lectures, and performing other equally dull chores for a San Francisco paper. "A type well known in every large newspaper office," explains C. Gardner Sullivan, the author. "A man who has no business in the newspaper game, but who nevertheless is always respected for his knowledge."

Smith's life was an uneventful round of days, and then, suddenly, one night, when the city editor was up against it for a man, he sent Smith to cover a knifing affray on the old Barbary Coast. A first assignment! Thrill of thrills! But nothing to what was to come.

In trying to get the facts about the knifing, Smith met Violet, the pathetic, abused wife of "Slugger" Rourke, proprietor of the tough saloon and dance hall. The story he wrote closed the doors of the place! Then on top of that, he spirited Violet away to Alaska because he felt sorry for her. He knew nothing of women of her sort, or any other sort, for that matter.

Rourke, doubly enraged, tracked Smith through the white Alaskan wilderness as a tiger stalks his prey, and, cheated of his revenge on Violet by her untimely death, he proceeded to wreak his vengeance on the hapless Smith. Finally, goaded to desperation, and having slipped out of courage from the lips of sweet Kitty Gray, Smith in an unique and exciting way, manages to rid himself of his tormentor.

Charles Ray, of course, plays the title role. Bessie Love is Violet, and Jacqueline Logan is Kitty Gray. Lydia Knott plays Aunt Mehitable and Wallace Beery is "Slugger" Rourke—about as villainous a villain as one would wish to see. "Dynamite Smith" marks Charles Ray's return to the type of roles that made him famous. It was produced by Thomas H. Ince, directed by Ralph Ince, and is released by Pathe.

"Argentine Love" At Arcade Is Thrilling Drama.

Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez are featured in the principal roles of the Paramount picture, "Argentine Love," which opened at the Arcade theater yesterday. It is an Allan Dwan production, written especially for the screen by Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

Miss Daniels has the role of a beautiful Spanish señorita, who flouts all the old traditions of her race to marry a young American while her Spanish lover fights desperately to win her.

Ricardo Cortez, as the wealthy Argentinian, Juan Martin, gives the finest portrayal of his yet young screen career. James Rennie, heading the cast playing in support, is Philip Sears, the American engineer whose work brings him to the Argentine.

For romance in a colorful setting, "Argentine Love" stands alone on the screen. Written by the author of "The Four Horsemen," "Blood and Sand," "Enemies of Women," etc., and directed by the man who made "Robin Hood," "Manhandled" and others, it is most delightful film fare. There is love interest for the flapper, genuine appeal for the older folks and rapid-fire action for the youngsters.

"Argentine Love," adapted for the screen by John Russell, is a truly modern story of an old-world civilization with a happy ending. Mario Majeroni, Aurelio Coccia, Mark Gonzales and others just as well known appear in support.

Here's another Dwan triumph!
