Five Chemical Meetings To Draw World Talent To U. S.

NEW YORK, (AP)— Chemists from all parts of the world will attend five great gatherings this year in America.

The first will be the Spring session of the American Chemical Society to be held on April 15, at Tulsa, Okla., at which the chemistry of oil and its by-products will be discussed. This will be followed by a symposium in which five noted foreign chemists and twenty-one leading American chemists will participate at Columbia University, July 6, to August 12.

In August, a world symposium on chemical warfare will be held at the 1926 conference of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown. Many American chemists contend that chemical warfare is more humane than warfare with shrapnel and bullets.

The Fifteth Annual Convention of the American Chemical Society will be held in Philadelphia during the week of September 6. At this convention biochemists will tell how they are sedreching for the secrets of life in the activities of living cells.

In the week of September 13 the first meeting in this country of the International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry will be held in Washington.

NEURITIS

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to Red Cross Drug Store or some other good druggist and get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form, for the liquid form is a special preparation for Rheumatism.

Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, those persistent, nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights. A few more doses and the pains have left you forever.

While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in all forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can only at the best give temporary relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Red Cross Drug Store can supply you.—Adv.

Producer Achieves Realistic Results in "The Royle Girl"

Silence is the one thing missing from the silent drama when D. W. Griffith is making a picture.

It becomes articulate; it screams, it shouts, it laughs, it cries—it is drama in the broadest sense of the word, and it can be heard. Hard-boiled electricians become so absorbed at times they forget to trim their spotlights.

Scenes are repeated hour after hour. Instead of becoming boring they become hypnotic. The troubles or joys, the laughter or tears become contagious. And when the portrayals reach this point of realism, they are photographed. Sometimes are split into acts and the film record of the action is made while the players are still living the roles they are interpreting. It is exhausting work, but the reputation of D. W. Griffith productions is built upon the results.

Curiously enough, Mr. Griffith uses no music to help the players achieve the proper mood. Emotion can't be stimulated artifically, he believes; it must be felt as completely as though the player actually is the character he or she is portraying.

A day spent with the veteran producer while he is in the course of directing a picture gives one a comprehensive grasp of the painstaking methods he pursues in getting the required results. For example, during the filming of "That Royle Girl," his initial production under the Paramount banner, Mr. Griffith made it a point to assemble his characters promptly at 9 o'clock on the set to be used that day and outline the particular portion of the story to be made. The rehearsals then got under way.

In a short time the players were using lines and carrying on conversations exactly as people would under the given circumstances. From time to time Mr. Griffith spoke softly through a small megaphone. But as the spirit of the action became intensified he rarely interrupted. The players carried on as if he weren't there. They forgot the camera and concentrated on what they were saying and doing. The results were just as effective as on the stage of a theatre. The illusion was perfect.

It is this that Mr. Griffith seeks. When he has a scene rehearsed to the point where everybody is following the story with close attention he knows he has achieved perfection. Then the camera work is done.

The process is slow, the results startling.

"That Royle Girl" is a stirring melodrama laid against the glittering yet sordid background of the Chicago underworld and jazz zone. Carol Dempster, W. C. Fields, James Kirkwood and Harrison Ford are the featured players. The picture will be shown at the Arcade theater tonight, Friday and Saturday.

"The Merry Warrior" Is Frank Melodrama

"A fine, clean, stirring story; a splendid, big, spectacular production; the sort of photoplay that supplies tingling entertainment for everybody. That's "The Happy Warrior," which opened yesterday at the Sherry theater for a run of two days.

Here is one of the season's best; the sort of picture you get once in a blue moon; the sort that justifies anybody's enthusiasm for the cinema.

The story is frank melodrama, told in swift action. It begins with the romance of Lord Burdon, who, secretly married to an English village girl, goes off to India, where he is killed. The main story concerns the boy who is born of this marriage; a gallant youth, who, not knowing of his noble birth, joins a traveling circus as an exhibition boxer. The plot is full of suspense and excitement, but it is in the keen delineation of vivid characters that the author, A. S. M. Hutchinson, has supplied photoplay material that lifts "The Happy Warrior" far out of the ordinary run of photoplays.

These characters are excellently acted by a brilliant cast that includes Malcolm McGregor, Alice Calhoun, Wilfred North, Mary Alcott, Anders Randolph, Otto Matiesen, Andres Randolph, Gio Matiesen, Gaston James, Olive Borden, Jack Herrick, Philippe de Lacy, and Bobby Gordon.

Tuesday showing "Wild Waves."

"Yankee Senor" Gives Mix Plenty Of Opportunities

The reviewer who wrote this piece about Tom Mix's newest picture, "The Yankee Senor," which opened a three day engagement at the Star theater this afternoon hit a snag just as he was getting away to what seemed a wonderful start.

"As time goes on," he planned to write, "Tom Mix, the galloping hero of innumerable western thrillers for William Fox, is becoming more and more of an actor and less of a ——"

But right here he found himself stuck, for it can not truthfully be said that Mix is becoming less of a "stunter" on horseback. Tom does fully as manny spine-tickling feats in "The Yankee Senor" as in most of his previous pictures, but, so ingeniously are they fitted into the story, the term "stunt" seems almost uncouth.

Anyhow, Tom Mix makes a highly satisfying picture of "The Yankee Senor" which was adapted from "Conquistador," the novel by Katherine Fullerton Gerould. It is the story of an American civil engineer who was determined to build a railroad spur in Mexico in the face of mighty handicaps. Beset by bandits, labor difficulties, personal enemies and even deserted by his American sweetheart, he still hung on doggedly.

Life was anything but attractive until his grandsire, a Spanish don, announced that he would make him heir to his vast estate, after he had proved his worthiness. This, of course, he did, in true Mix style.

The use of Technicolor brings out the rich beauty and splendor of many of the sequences in Old Mexico most effectively.

The cast in support of Mix as Olive Borden as Manuelita, a some señorita, who wins the heart of the dauntless American; Margaret Livingston, Alec Francis, as a Spanish don, Katherine Hill, Jim Mattox, Francis McDonald and many others.

An Imperial comedy "On The Go" is also on the program.

Gayest Season Of Opera In Prospect For London Public

LONDON, (AP)—The opera season opening in May with the King and Queen in the audience and Melba, Chaliapin and Jeritza on the stage will be the gayest in London since long before the war and Convent Garden will once again be the center of the Spring social season.

"La Boheme" in which Melba will make her farewell appearance, is the King's favorite opera, and heads the list of performances which His Majesty has selected to attend. The Wagnerian operas evidently do not appeal to the court taste for the Royal Box will be empty on the nights on which they are sung.

Few people know that the King pays for his theater seats like any of his rich subjects. As a matter of fact he pays advance cash.
