Observer Receives Football Scores

Football scores of Eastern, Southern and Middlewestern games will be printed in The Observer Saturday, in addition to first and second period scores of Western games.

In addition to this period scores will be received on the Aggie-Stanford game. Although scores of the last half will be too late to publish, those interested may call Main 37 for the latest reports. The Observer should receive a final score on the game about 5 o'clock.

Freshman Elevens Play in Pendleton

PENDLETON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The University of Oregon freshmen and the Washington State college yearling football elevens are meeting here this afternoon in the first big clash for either team. Both aggregations arrived this morning in great shape for the contest.

Aggies on Way To Rose City to Play Redshirts

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 21 (AP)—Paul J. Schissler, head coach, and 35 men of the Oregon Agricultural college football squad, left early today for Portland to work out this afternoon on Multnomah field, in preparation for the Stanford game tomorrow. Before leaving Coach Schissler expressed the hope that present indications of good weather would continue as the staters are prepared for a fast game. The full team is in fighting trim except Luby and Avrit.

GEOLOGISTS TESTIFY IN FALL TRIAL

time than to vouch for Heald.

"Three days later I went to Fall's office with a written transcript of Heald's oral statement which I gave the secretary. After that I was not consulted by Fall about Teapot Dome at any time."

Questioned by the court, Dr. Smith said Heald was sent to Teapot Dome because of a report made in Sept., 1921, by Carl H. Wagerman, a government geologist, that there was danger of drainage in Teapot Dome.

Heald, who now is staff geologist of the Gulf Oil company, identified his report which recommended against leasing the entire Teapot Dome reserve but said there was some danger of drainage in the northern part, adjacent to the Salt creek field.

Martin W. Littleton of New York, of counsel for Sinclair, took up the cross examination for the first time in the trial. He developed that Waggerman was the geologist who "laid out" Teapot Dome before its withdrawal in 1915 by President Wilson.

NEARY 100 PORTLANDERS HERE TODAY

yells led by Lawrence Bay, and members were loud and consistent in their applause of the speakers and the entertainment.

Inspect City

Coming out of the high school, the group was loaded into cars and taken to the Eastern Oregon normal school site, through the residence district, to the new city wells and pumping house, the sewage disposal plant, and then to the U. P. shops.

Many of the Portland men were heard to say that the visit to the sewage disposal plant and the explanation of its operation was worth the entire good will trip to them and was one of the most interesting features of the journey.

Mr. Coolidge was characterized by some of the visitors as giving the best welcoming speech heard on the entire trip.

At the train this morning a special morning extra of The Observer, carrying several cuts showing the business district and industries and containing pertinent facts about La Grande, was distributed at breakfast in the diner and as the delegates left the train, with the compliments of The Observer. The chamber of commerce also distributed literature dealing with La Grande and Union county.

Leaving here about noon, the good will excursion will stop at Pendleton later today before returning to Portland.
