Sound Waves Bore Hole

Sound waves of a frequency of 200,000 to 500,000 vibrations a second passed along a tapering glass rod caused the tip to bore a hole in a piece of wood and a plate of glass, a French experimenter discovered recently. When the waves were communicated to a glass thread about one-hundredth of an inch thick and more than a yard long the frictional effect was so intense that the flesh could be burned. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Big British Industry

Approximately 20,000 fishing boats, manned by some 65,000 men are engaged in Great Britain's fishing business.

Next Secretary?

The next secretary of agriculture may be Eugene D. Funk of Bloomington, Ill., if President-elect Hoover takes the advice of the state farmers institutes of Illinois and Iowa. These organizations have sent resolutions to the new president endorsing Funk for this position. Funk helped Hoover distribute food and supplies during the war. He has made a life study of corn improvement and grain diseases.

OFFICE CAT

By Jussim

A celebrated wit was due to speak at a luncheon club. At the last minute he could not come. The chairman of the meeting persuaded two local men to substitute. In introducing them, he stated that he was sorry to announce that the celebrity could not come, but after considerable difficulty he had persuaded two halfwits to take his place.

"With a single stroke of a brush," said the La Grande school teacher, taking his class around the gallery, "Joshua Reynolds could change a smiling face to a frowning one."

"So can my mother," said a small lad.

"No. It wouldn't be no use. None of our customers keeps a camel."

A certain Chicago advertising man is noted for his thriftiness. He is of Scotch descent. Imagine our amazement at a recent select, little dinner, to hear him call for the check. He blushed as he looked at it but paid it like a man.

The next day's paper carried this headline:

"Scotchman Murders Ventriloquist."

Banking Mergers Big Development Of Year of 1928

By A. P. Giannini
(President, Transamerica Corporation)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—More than anything, from the standpoint of financial institutions, the past year has been marked by major banking consolidations and mergers. At one time the Pacific Coast seemed to have a decided lead over other sections of the country in this respect; now, however, the movement has become quite general.

New York and Chicago—the two largest cities in America — have stepped to the front, and during 1928 both of these great financial centers announced large banking consolidations. Other cities have followed along, until now, the idea that originally was slow to take hold is assuming the proportions of a nationwide program.

This tendency toward banking consolidations is in keeping with the spirit of the times, and augurs well for the progressive leadership which the financial institutions of the country are developing. It would be extremely difficult to extend adequate support to industry and agriculture if we did not have banks that were ready and able to meet the demands of the great business enterprises that have grown up within the last few years.

A Cleveland judge refused a divorce to a woman who complained that her husband refused to shave over the week end, the judge holding it was his right to grow whiskers if he pleased. It was a close shave, though.

A woman in Buenos Aires, according to dispatches, lost her skirt in the jam to see Hoover. That's nothing. Think of all the people who lost their shirts on Al Smith.

AT THE THEATERS

Tim McCoy Here In Thriller At the Star

Tim McCoy, hero of thrilling Western drama, comes today to the Star theater in a new style of role, when he drops the characters of the West to play an Australian Robin Hood in "The Bushranger," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid romance of the Australian plains.

With boomerang and bullwhip McCoy battles his way through a thrilling series of adventures incidental to a charming love story. Marian Douglas, herself an Australian, plays the heroine, and a notable cast includes Russell Simpson, Arthur Lubin, Dale Austen ("Miss New Zealand"), Edwin Brady and others of note. Chester Wishey, noted as the director of many Western adventure stories, directed the new play.

McCoy, in the role of an Australian bushrangers uses for his weapons the Australian whip, with which he performs many feats, such as disarming and tying a man at long range, and the boomerang, which he hurls as a weapon and with which he makes a sensational escape from pursuing troopers.

The Western star was trained in the use of these weapons by Frank Baker, a brother of the famous "Snowy" Baker, Australian sportsman. The picture is the first all-Australian picture ever filmed in America.

"Show People" Has Many Novel Features

If you've never visited a motion picture studio, don't fail to go to the Arcade theater and see Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Show People," which opened Thursday. The picture co-stars Marion Davies and William Haines and offers the most interesting picture of a motion picture studio ever drawn.

Not that "Show People" hasn't other attractions to offer—it has. It will probably rank as the best and most unusual comedy of the year. Marion Davies is easily America's leading comedienne and William Haines tops his own particular field.

The story is entirely new, unusual, and full of a million laughs. King Vidor has taken the story of a little Southern girl who comes to Hollywood, enters motion pictures and eventually rises to stardom, and with this material has made use of all the funny incidents of life in the film capital that have occurred in the last years. The result is a masterpiece.

But the scenes taken in and around the studios are vastly interesting. Vidor has filmed his action where and when it should take place, be it the commissary, the front walk, the studio gate, in the projection rooms or on one of the huge stages. For example, "Peggy," the heroine, on her arrival in Hollywood tries to crash the gate of every leading studio and gets kicked out of all of them.

The locales also have their interest because of the many famous personages who "happen" in, or are working in the background of the picture. The list includes John Gilbert, Greta Garbo, Tim McCoy, Charles Chaplin, Estelle Taylor and many, many others.

"Tammany's" Beginning

Tammany is a corruption of Tammedy, the name of an early chief of the Delaware Indians. In 1789, W. N. Mooney organized a secret society adopting many Indian rites and ceremonies and the corrupted name Tammany. He called the organization "Sons of St. Tammany."

POLAR FLAPPER

Well, well—so she's an ESKIMO! But don't set out for the arctic under the impression that they're all like her up there, where a fellow can call on his girl, stay three months, and still leave before midnight. The truth is, this is Miss Sally Joost, a New York society deb, and she's just dressed up like an Eskimo flapper. She'll wear this costume in a show to be given soon for charity.

High School Girl Is Given Freedom

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 4 (AP)—Kidnapers, death threats and a dirty shack formed the melodramatic sequence of the story told today by a pretty high school girl who was found bound and gagged after two days' absence from home.

Doris Turner, Hoke Smith High school athlete, collapsed last night in a filling station. She had been round nearby, bound at the ankles. Two hours later the girl said she had been released unharmed by a "kindly old man with a cane" for whom police had been searching for two days.

The Foot-Mother

Little Mary Esther had heard the grown-ups discuss the stepmother problem. She often played that her pet kitten was her child. One day her mother heard her saying to the kitten, "Now you have to mind me, even if I am only your foot-mother."

Poem Caught Public Fancy

It is said that 5,000 copies of the poem the "Courtship of Miles Standish" were sold by noon on the first day of its appearance.

Africans of White Blood

North Africa is peopled by tribes of dark complexion but of white blood. They are known as a Hamitic group. The more important are the Berbers and the Kayidians, including the Copts.
