HUTCHINSON WINS WITH BATTING AID

Seattle Hitfest Enables Boy Hurler to Register Triumph No. 22.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27—(AP) — Eighteen thousand San Francisco fans knew today that the Seattle club can hit but they lacked eyewitness confirmation of the pitching prowess of Schoolboy Freddie Hutchinson.

Hutchinson registered his 22nd victory of the season before one of the largest turnouts of the season last night but only because the Seattle batters managed to club three Seal hurlers for 17 hits to win 7 to 6.

The 19-year-old Seattle flinger, making his first appearance in San Francisco's park, allowed 12 hits, issued four walks, hit one batter and tossed wild twice.

The defeat dropped the Seals to the second division with San Diego, victorious over Portland 2 to 1, 2½ games behind Sacramento and 5½ games behind top-place Los Angeles.

Los Angeles split a double header with Hollywood. The Angels, with Van Fleet getting the pitching credit, won the opener 7 to 6. Puccinelli's seventeenth homer of the season figured in Hollywood's 6 to 4 win of the second game. Nitcholas was the winning hurler.

Sacramento made it four straight over Oakland, in winning 3 to 2.

Craghead of San Diego won a pitchers' duel with Hilcher of Portland in the Padres' 2-to-1 triumph. It was Craghead's sixteenth win of the season. Dickey, Portland catcher, accounted for the Beavers' only run with a terrific wallop over the right field fence.

PIRATES DEFEATED 3 TIMES IN ROW

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates, given an odds on chance of winning the pennant in the last month, not only have dropped three straight to the last place Phillies, but dropped them to old men pitchers. Thursday Wild Bill Hallahan beat them and yesterday old Lefty Al Smith took a 6-4 decision—and he, like Hallahan, hasn't won a game previously this season.

Cincinnati became just as amiable in going down for the third straight time before Boston's nopunch Bees, 6-1, on Lanning's seven-hitter.

The second-place Giants succeeded in kicking away a ball game to the Cardinals as the gas-housers came through, 7-6, on a run in the ninth.

The Cubs regained third place with a 7-3 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers for a winning streak of four-straight.

All this left the Pirates still holding a 4½ game lead over the Giants, with the Cubs a game farther back and the Reds one more length to the bad.

The Yankees split with the Cleveland Indians in their fourth straight twin bill, winning the opener, 15-9, on the seven runs Dimaggio batted in, and dropping the nightcap, 8-5, to Hudlin's flinging. But Boston's second-place red Sox did nothing about closing the gap, for their best was an even break in a pair with the White Sox. Lyons took the opener, 12-2, Red Sox did nothing about closing Boston's 9-8 nightcap win.

The Detroit Tigers came a game nearer the first division with a 9-3 margin over Washington, and the Athletics retained their slim percentage hold on seventh place by splitting with the Browns, taking the opener 11-6 and giving the Brownies the afterpiece 6-4.

ROSEBURG, EUGENE JUNIORS TO BATTLE

The entire Roseburg Legion Junior baseball squad and several of the intermediates will have an opportunity to play Sunday in the game at Finlay field against the Eugene Juniors, it was reported today. It is planned to utilize some of the intermediates, who will probably be members of next year's Junior squad, in order to give them experience for the coming season.

Sunday's game, starting at 2:30 p. m., will see Eugene trying to break into a win over Roseburg, which has won three straight games from the Lane county group this season.

Despite Roseburg's victories, Eugene was chosen to represent districts 3 and 4 in the state play-off after Roseburg was eliminated because players' credentials were not filed with the state committee within the specified time.

Open Season on Oregon's Antelope Necessitated by Huge Increase in Numbers, Overcrowding of Ranges

By FRED HAMPSON

PORTLAND, Aug. 27—(AP)—If you are of a generation born in the last years of the 19th century or the early years of the 20th you probably learned in school that the antelope was one and the same with the buffalo—gone forever.

And you may have been surprised recently to read that this most graceful, fleet and spunky critter not only has staged a reproductive comeback but is now so plentiful in some sections that shooting seasons have been opened.

Oregon's game commission decided to let down the bars to hunters on the "lost" antelope this year, from Oct. 28-Nov. 5, inclusive.

Multiply Too Fast

There are two reasons—the herds are too large and too tame.

Frank B. Wire, state game supervisor, explains:

"In 1911—when your teacher was telling you the antelope was going or gone—she was about right. Oregon had less than 2,000. So we closed the season permanently, formed refuges, declared war on illegal hunting. The antelope herds gained. They gained faster than other animals of their species because the antelope is not an easy prey to the predator—except the two-legged predator with a gun.

"During the 1930s it became apparent the antelope was gaining a little too fast. They began jumping the farmer's fences and helping him harvest his wheat and oats and alfalfa. They got into everything he had, including his hair. They got so tame he couldn't scare them away. There are about 20,000 in Oregon now.

"Living protected on the fat of the land, they soon deserted their native sagebrush plains and increased to the point where their natural winter forage ceased to be adequate.

"Civilization having disturbed nature's checks and balances on wild life the only way we can keep these herds going is to control them. When they get too big for the available forage and so tame they starve when they can't steal the farmer's grain, something must be done."

Hope To Scatter Them

Thus the purpose of the season, Wire said, is to drive the animals back to their old home in the sage and reduce them enough so that winter forage is adequate.

The commission hopes the open season will also serve to scatter the antelope over the state. They tend to over-concentrate under protection. The opening of the elk season served to scatter elk bands, Wire said.

Many animals under protection are kept wild and alert by predators but the antelope is a wee bit too smart. His chief enemy is the coyote, yet a two-day old antelope can show its heels to a horse, let alone a coyote. Mature antelopes will "team up" and actually attack a coyote.

Range Overcrowded

A deer, hunting food, will hide its fawn and leave it where a pedator may find and kill it. The mamma antelope takes her child along. All in all the native enemies have not served to check the growth of antelope herds.

Antelope decimation was due to man's usurpation of grazing grounds. With only a limited amount of range left there is no use to try to restore the herds to their one-time tremendous size. In fact it is unwise to crowd the available range.

So once again hunters, whose pioneer grandpaps crowded the animal almost to extinction, can shoot a few antelope.

LABOR LAW REPAIRS ON AFL PROGRAM

Congress Will Be Asked to Revamp Wage-Hour and Wagner Statutes.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 24—(AP)—American Federation of Labor leaders placed at the top of their legislative "must" list today proposals for congressional revamping of two important labor laws—the wage-hour act and the Wagner labor board act.

The federation's executive council, President William Green disclosed, agreed to ask congress for chances in the wage-hour measure, and has under consideration proposals for drastic changes in the national labor relations law.

Amendments to be sought for both measures will be aimed at curbing broad administrative and quasi-judicial powers delebated by congress.

Along with the proposed amendments to the Wagner act, the council has received from Joseph A. Padway, AFL general counsel, an analysis of labor board decisions involving contests for bargaining rights between federation craft unions and CIO industrial unions.

Padway's analysis, Green announced, "shows pro-CIO decisions where the federation was involved."

"The whole board set-up and administrative staff are hostile to the AFL," he added.

The proposed AFL amendments to the Wagner act, federation leaders said, would transfer to a new tribunal the judicial powers exercised by the existing board and redefine disputed provisions for setting up collective bargaining units.

The federation's decision to press for amendments to the wage-hour law, Green said, was not aimed at Administrator Elmer F. Andrews.
