30 MILLION NEXT OREGON AID NEED

SALEM, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Estimates compiled for Governor Martin showed today that Oregon relief costs during the biennium starting January 1, 1939, would total more than $30,000,000.

The figures are based on present demands, the governor said, but may be increased because of existing unsatisfactory business conditions.

"This will mean," Governor Martin said, "that the state of Oregon will have to raise $10,000,000 for relief during the next two years in addition to revenues from the state liquor control commission."

Arthur McMahan, chairman of the liquor control commission, told the governor no increase in liquor revenues could be expected until business improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Welch and their son returned today to their home in Portland.
