A CITY friend in Portland said the other day (the dry spell had been the subject of conversation): "I'd hate to be a farmer—think of all the troubles they have and all the hazards of their business."

At that moment this Portlander had a shipment of merchandise on the Portland docks that was not being moved because of labor difficulties.

It is true enough that farmers have plenty to worry them—but they have compensations, greatest of all values in their mode of living is their freedom. Second comes their closeness to nature—to the real and genuine things of life.

* * *

Yes, when a farmer plants seed he has no assurance beyond the old law of averages, which is not edible, that he will harvest a crop. When the fruit trees blossom he hopes for a bountiful yield but many disasters can overtake his fruit crop between the blossoms and the market. However sturdy looking the calves or lambs may be is no guarantee that they will go to market, nor is there any assurance that the baby chicks or turkey poults will reach maturity and add to his income. It is a great gamble—but it is a gamble with nature, a clean game without tricks or crooks. Nature has generally been kind to the farmers of the fertile Umpqua valley.

* * *

But what the city man forgets is the soul stirring joy of space, plenty of clean air and the real earth to walk upon. These things mean more than mere dollars. They compensate for many difficulties.

So far as actual living conditions are concerned the farmers of the Umpqua valley enjoy nearly all the modern conveniences that the city dweller has.

And what farmer would swap his problems and troubles for those of the city man in business who is beset by labor troubles, traffic problems, noise, luncheon clubs, drives for funds, collection problems—and other annoyances? (Yes, and most businesses have mortgages on them as most farms have).

HITLER continues to howl "encirclement" of Germany.

One is reminded of the sense, tacking homeward past the park, who staggered into a tree protected by a ring of iron bars. He went around it twice, his hands exploring the protecting rods. Then he sat down and cried bitterly.

"Surrounded, by gosh," he muttered sorrowfully.

Iota Sigma Club to Meet—The Iota Sigma club members will entertain their husbands and their invited guests at a six-thirty o'clock potluck supper Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Weatherford on the North Pacific highway. Rev. Linden Leavitt, pastor of the First Christian church, will be guest speaker on the evening's program. Mrs. E. C. Jones and Mrs. Kenneth Ford are joint chairmen of the supper.

REALTY JUGGLING CHARGED TO WPA

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP)—A house investigating committee heard from Harry S. Barger, a committee investigator, today that the WPA in Tennessee had helped build a number of lakes to raise the value of real estate owned by politically prominent persons.

Barger testified at a public hearing Col. Harry S. Berry, state WPA administrator, had told him the work relief organization had spent $36,315.43 on a lake at the Pressman's home. This home is operated by the Printing Pressmen's union which former Senator George L. Berry heads, the witness added. The Berry's are not related.

The investigators quoted the state administrator as saying the former senator told him he put up a $36,516 contribution toward the project.

Barger read a statement from Eugene R. Kuhne of the state fish and game commission, saying lakes had been built to enhance the value of property owned by a number of politically prominent persons. The statement mentioned Laurel lake and Clear lake, among others.

The witness added army engineers had inspected Pressman's lake and had reported it was defective. They said, he added, a very heavy rain might break it an endanger the lives of many people.

GROWERS APPEAL FOR BERRY PICKERS

PORTLAND, May 11.—(AP)—Strawberry growers in Washington county fretted today lest their ripening crops be without pickers while Clackamas and southeastern Multnomah counties appealed for 300 workers.

The state's unemployment service office at Cornelius reported a lack of applicants eight days before the first picking. B. T. Christian, service interviewer, said the picking needs would far exceed listed workers unless more aid signed up soon.

Washington county growers established picking prices of 1½c a pound plus a 1c bonus for working throughout the season.

DRIVER LICENSE, EXAM NEED CITED

Oregon citizens who do not now hold motor vehicle operator's licenses will be required to pass a complete examination covering vision, knowledge of the state's driving laws and actual driving ability before obtaining licenses, Secretary of State Snell warns. Those who now have licenses may renew them by making application before June 30 when present permits expire.

All operators of motor vehicles in the state of Oregon will be required to pass an examination on vision, driving laws and driving ability by 1943, Snell emphasized in commenting on the law passed at the recent session of the state legislature. Motorists may take these examination any time within the next four years, he said.

The trophy, a bronze lion, has been placed in circulation to promote inter-club visitations. It is awarded on a basis of the number of man-miles travelled by a visiting club and was taken by Roseburg from The Dalles. The Eugene delegation was headed by A. L. Hawn, district governor, former resident of Roseburg, now located at Eugene.
