MOVIES AND MUSIC DATED AT R. H. S.

Marine Life in Tropics to Be Shown, Concert Heard on October 12.

Motion pictures of scientific exploration in tropical seas and remote lands will be presented with an hour of classic music in a program of rare entertainment to be presented at 8 p. m. on October 12 in the auditorium of Roseburg senior high school, it was announced today.

The program was secured by Roseburg public schools and Douglas County Music Teachers association as one of the outstanding educational and cultural features of the fall season for Douglas county. It is being presented through the courtesy of Captain Allan Hancock, Los Angeles explorer and benefactor of the arts and sciences. The program will be free to the public.

Outstanding compositions of the great masters have been carefully chosen for a well-rounded concert program by the Allan Hancock ensemble, an organization of musicians long devoted to interpretation of the classics. Captain Hancock himself appears with the ensemble as 'cellist. The ensemble has appeared in more than 500 concerts before audiences totaling more than 500,000 persons in cities along the Pacific coast. Numerous radio concerts in series have been presented over nation-wide radio networks in past seasons, winning international acclaim.

Marine Movies Included

Stirring motion pictures of intense educational interest will follow the musical program. They were obtained on voyages of scientific exploration aboard the cruiser Velero III, which early this year was presented by Captain Hancock to the University of Southern California as a floating scientific laboratory. Over a period of eight years the vessel has been devoted to the advancement of marine science and related branches of zoology and botany.

Records of the activities of scientists on voyages have been preserved in films of unusual interest. They present intimate studies of strange creatures of both land and sea which are rearely viewed by men. Among these are fantastic marine animals which have no bony structure and are sightless; sea stars which voraciously prey on other forms of sea life; weird hermit crabs which carry their own snail-shell homes about with them wherever they go.

Wonders of the briny deep vie for attention with extraordinary birds, animals and reptiles found on equatorial islands and isolated mainlands by scientists of the expeditions. Many of these creatures perform in close-ups for the camera for they have never been molested in their natural habitat and exhibit only the mildest curiosity over the presence of man.

Bird Comedy Shown

One of the most entrancing scenes is the courting dance of the great waved albatross of Hood island in the Galapagos, emulated in almost identical fashion by the blue-footed booby birds of Lobos de Afuera island, off the barren coast of southern Peru. The birds go through a comical routine as amusing to the layman as it is wondrous to the scientist.

Nature studies and adventures depicted in the films carry one from the shores of California along the coasts of Mexico, Central and South America and to farflung islands of the eastern Pacific ocean. Several of the expeditions have concentrated on the mysterious and formidable islands of the Galapagos archipelago, straddling the equator off the coast of Ecuador. The last extended expedition took the scientists from the University of Southern California and other outstanding institutions into the Caribbean sea for the first time.

More than 1000 collecting stations have been logged by Allan Hancock Foundation expeditions in the Pacific ocean and a new series of numbers has been started for the waters of the Caribbean. A vast accumulation of data and materials from the expeditions will have a permanent home in the new Allan Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research now rising on the campus of the University of Southern California. The large new building was provided for last year by the founder whose name it bears.

Ice cream became a wholesale commodity in 1851, when a Baltimore dairyman, Jacob Fussell, began selling it to get rid of his surplus milk.

Wheat farming employs more persons throughout the world than does any other paying occupation.

HERE'S ENGINE POWER WHERE YOU NEED IT

Have you ever looked inside the transmission case of a "Caterpillar" track-type Tractor? If so, you have probably noticed the simple and direct path of power from the engine to the tracks—no unnecessary gears or shafts—no complicated power-wasting detours. By actual test more than 80% of the engine power is delivered at the drawbar. That's horsepower you can use!

Roseburg News-Review

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Roseburg Tannery is now open under the new management of E. E. Wiggins and Son, who operate Salem's leading taxidermist shop, and who have had years of experience in the business. We wish to let the sportsmen of this vicinity know that the Roseburg Tannery will be run in an honest and businesslike way. All work will be the finest obtainable on the coast, fully guaranteed and done promptly.
