The People Have Answered

The American people have made their second answer to their country's call. The first answer was made on June 5, when 10,000,000 American citizens between the ages 21 and 30 years registered themselves for national service. This answer though required by law, was made with a spirit and willingness that robbed the registration of any taint of compulsion or servitude.

The second answer from the people was registered finally on June 15, and the answer completed that day was entirely voluntary. More than 3,000,000 American citizens voluntarily subscribed their money to support the United States in the war. This they did, not hysterically, not in a spirit of war fever, but calmly and in the exercise of judgment and reason.

It is true that the subscribers to the Liberty Loan of 1917 get full value received for their contribution, but the immense number of small bonds bought shows that it was not the wealthy alone of the Nation that supported the Liberty Loan. It shows that it was not the investing public of America alone that bought the bonds. It shows that the American people subscribed the loan, and that, while many wealthy citizens invested millions in the bonds, a great more American citizens of small means hastened to do their part.

More than this, the lists of subscribers show that many citizens of very small means, perhaps with no capital and no great earning capacity, were willing to stint themselves in order to purchase a Liberty Bond and have a share in the financial support of their country in time of war.

The result of the Liberty Loan Bond sale is an inspiration to every American. It has proved the patriotism of the body politic. It has shown that behind the fighting men of the Nation is the money of the people; that behind the man power of the Nation stand the immeasurable finances and material resources of America.

The Liberty Loan of 1917 is a new tie between the Government and the people of the United States. Every holder of a Liberty Loan Bond feels more of an American citizen, and along with a sense of duty done and service performed feels an individual pecuniary interest in the Government. Each has a certificate of citizenship and something that might be compared to a share of stock in the American Government.

Germany has been answered and the reply is entirely satisfactory to all who love America. There is no mistaking its volume or tone. It reaches across the seas and no censorship can rob it of its significance and strength.

15-cent Loaf Is Predicted By President of Bakers.

North Yakima, Wash., June 27—That the country soon will see the 15-cent bread loaf and that even after the war there will be no return to the 5-cent loaf, was declared by President W. P. Matthei, of the Master Bakers of the Pacific Northwest, who are in annual convention here. The convention closes tonight with a banquet. A proposal for organization of a Washington State Bakers' association will be voted on today.

Threaten Judge Who Will Try Anarchists.

New York, June 27—A number of secret service men today were assigned to guard the court room at the trials of Alexander Berkman, editor of The Blast, and Emma Goldman, in the United States district court.

The court room was ordered guarded following the receipt of threatening letters by Julius M. Mayer, U. S. judge who will try the case.

Shingle Mill and Box Factory In Operation.

Castle Rock, Wash., June 26—The Cowlitz shingle mill in this city is again running full capacity, the Cowlitz river having fallen sufficiently to permit driving the bolts down from the Toutle The Castle Rock Box & Lumber company is devoting its plant to turning out crates for the large berry crop. Strawberries are now at their best, and though the price remains high, they are in great demand and find a ready market.

Shingle Mills Begin Work At South Bend This Week.

South Bend, Wash., June 26—The South Berd shingle mill started yesterday, and is breaking in its battery of six modern shingle machines. Four are already in commission and within the week all six will be at work. The mill has more applications from shingle weavers than it has situations to give. The Getchell Mill company, which took over the Buspee holdings here, will also start up its two machines this week, and will add other machines as quickly as they can be delivered.

The general opinion seems to be that almost anything might happen at the Irish convention.

The Latchstring Is Out.

The saying "The latchstring is out" signifies hospitality. It is a standing invitation to visit the party who uses it. In early times throughout New England and other parts of the country the houses were built of logs, and the door fastenings were simply a wooden latch on the inside of the door, which fell into a notched stick in the doorpost. The simple contrivance was owing to the fact that nails and iron were hard to get. On the inside the latch was lifted by the hand easily, but to lift it from the outside a hole was bored in the door, which was made of slabs, and a string passed through, which was fastened to the latch. By pulling the string the latch was lifted and the door opened. To lock the door the string was drawn inside so that a person on the outside could not use it.

He Had To.

If all men were like a colored porter in Frankfort, newspaper men would find the game an extremely easy one.

The porter, who is known to every man and boy in the city, recently was divorced from his first wife and within a few days was married again. A reporter happened in the clerk's office just as he was about taking out his license.

"When are you to be married, Frank?" asked the reporter.

The porter told him, and the questioning was continued until his wife to be grabbed hold of his arm and whispered, "Don't tell that man all about this."

"I've got to," the porter whispered back. "He's a reporter."—Indianapolis

Meaning of $7,000,000,000.

America's war loan of $7,000,000,000 surpasses the powers of the mind to grasp. Spent at the rate of a dollar a minute it would take 13,318 years to dispose of the appropriation. Loaned out at 6 per cent, $13 could be spent every second for an indefinite period without touching the principal. The interest on the loan is greater than the entire running expenses of the government less than half a century ago, while the amount itself would conduct the affairs of the government for fully seven years on the basis of the annual expenditures for the last decade. Another and more cheerful way of looking at the situation is that, great as the loan is, the wealth of the United States is such that it amounts to the lending of $1 out of every $40 of our existing tangible resources. A penny a day saved by every inhabitant would cancel the principal within twenty years.—Thomas F. Logan in Leslie's.

Eat Less: Do More.

A fat nation is no good. Lean nations accomplish things. We should eat less and think more, have smaller girth and larger chests, less on the hip and more on the thorax, have fewer potatoes at dinner and more books after dinner, more exercise and less chewing. A strong person can subsist on a little oatmeal and philosophy and outwalk, outtalk, outthink, and in every way outdo the person who travels the long route from soup to nuts and goes to sleep afterward as an anaconda full of sheep or monkeys might. Life is a lean affair of hungry appetites and ambitions. Then they stimulate to earnest performance. The regeneration of the American nation begins at the dinner table. We need stoutness in soul not soutness in fat. Eat less and do more. Grow more above the neck and less below the stomach.—Chicago Tribune.

Heathen Shrines.

After months spent in idolatrous lands I have been unable to see much real worship in heathen shrines. The educated worship with their tongues in their cheeks and the ignorant with their hearts in their mouths. But the amount of real worship that exists in heathen temples is very small.

Sometimes a bereaved mother will enter the temple and draw from her kimono the tiny bib of a departed little one and tie it to the statue of Jizo, the god of motherhood. Sometimes an old man or woman, almost blind, will enter the temple and rub the eyes of a wooden god and then rub his own in the hope that eternal darkness may not close in on his affrighted soul. In some places Buddhist services are as dignified, as well attended and as helpful as our own.—Maynard Owen Williams in Christian Herald.

Graphite as a Lubricant.

Graphite, says the Scientific American, is not a lubricant, but an aid to keeping a bearing in good working order by filling up the minute irregularities of the shaft and bearing and producing a beautiful polished surface and in this way reduces friction. To get this result only a very small quantity of graphite is necessary, and if too much is applied it simply collects in wads and defeats the purpose intended. It follows that the proper way to use graphite successfully is to mix thoroughly a small quantity with the lubricating oil at suitable intervals and not to apply it continuously, for when the above mentioned polished surface is formed it will last quite a long time before requiring renewal.

John Bunyan's Indictment.

The bill of indictment preferred against John Bunyan ran thus: "John Bunyan hath devilishly and perniciously abstained from coming to church to hear divine service and is a common upholder of several unlawful meetings and conventicles, to the disturbance and distraction of the good subjects of this kingdom, contrary to the laws of our sovereign lord the king." He was convicted and imprisoned twelve years and six months.

A Skirt Hanger.

A good improvised skirt hanger is a strong hatpin. Fold the skirt twice at the band, stick the hatpin through the back in two places, leaving enough of the pin exposed to hang over a nail or hook. The skirt will never be pulled out of shape.

His Advantage.

"I know more about that woman than she knows about herself."

"How can that be possible?"

"Easily. I know she isn't pretty, but she doesn't."

No Liquor After Saturday Night.

Seattle, June 27—United States District Attorney Clay Allen today gave out an opinion that after 12 o'clock Saturday night no liquor could be shipped into the state of Washington, as the so-called Reed amendment passed by congress would become operative at that hour.

Acting on this opinion, County Auditor Norman Wardall announced today that no permits for shipment of liquor into the state would be issued after Saturday night. It is expected that other county auditors in the state will follow Mr. Wardall's example. Permits issued from this time henceforth are of little value, because they can scarcely reach the dealer outside the state in time for the liquor to arrive inside the state line before Saturday night.

Naval Officers Unuable To Ship In Liquor.

North Yakima, Wash., June 27—A new question was presented to County Auditor C. E. Barret, at the liquor permit window on Tuesday, when H. M. Taff, a naval recruiting officer, applied for a permit. The auditor refused the request on the ground that, as the federal law prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquor to sailors or soldiers in uniform and the issuance of a permit to import liquor would be equivalent to selling it, the auditor might be liable under the federal law. Taff claimed he had been getting permits in Seattle.

Rabid Bobcat Bites Eastern Oregon Rancher.

Bend, Or., June 27—Attacked by a rabid bobcat, A. T. Donovan, a rancher of the Wagon Tire district, has gone to Portland to take the Pasteur treatment. Donovan killed the animal with his bare hands, when it sprang on him from a thicket through which he was leading a team of horses. Aside from the danger of infection, his injuries were slight.

Meadows Rancher Killed By Neighbor.

Dave Cotterell was shot and almost instantly killed Wednesday morning at 7:30 by Lane Wyland, both of the Meadows district, while they were on the range with their cattle.

That the fatal shot was accidental no one doubts who is familiar with the neighborship of the two men. They were the best of friends. Their associations had made them chums.

The men had taken their guns along, as usual, probably to destroy predatory beasts of the hills that prey on their stock. That had been their custom.

Cotterell was aged about 35 years and leaves a widow. Wyland is about 50 years old and has a family.
