AN OLD, established, reputable jobbing house in Portland can give three gentlemen, who can sell goods properly, permanent positions. They don't expect to get salesmen familiar with their lines, but if they can get young, aggressive men, who are energetic and are salesmen, who are strictly sober and reliable and want a permanent position and are willing to demonstrate their ability by actual results with a reasonable compensation until they have shown what their worth is, we are willing to undertake to educate such men into the lines. Prefer men who have some knowledge of contractors' machinery lines, but selling ability, aggressiveness and permanency where the future is good, are the most desired elements. No application will be considered unless name, age, past experience with references from reliable parties are given in first communication. AJ 869, Oregonian.
