Conn Expected To Post Victory Over Lee Savold

By [illegible] FEDER

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Provided Billy Conn doesn't get the idea he's a killer, he should walk out of Madison Square garden tonight with a win over Lee Savold, the corn-belt belter, and a match sometime next summer with Joe Louis.

According to most of the experts—who have been wrong before—Conn figures to give Lee a lesson for as much as the 12 rounds as the fight lasts. But every once in a while Billy boy gets the idea he must show the folks some fancy stuff, so he walks out and slugs with some fellow who can hit.

Savold is one of these. He has a pretty fair country left hand capable of making the birdies sing. So if Conn doesn't listen to worrying Johnny Ray, his manager, and goes out there to flail away with Lee, he may wind up smack on the seat of his silk pants and away out of the "heavy sugar" a shot at the heavyweight championship should mean.

Louis is a couple of hundred miles away, up in Boston beginning training for a little job of his own with Al McCoy two weeks from next Monday. So he won't be among the 14,000 or so expected to sit in on the fun tonight. However, you can make a small wager that Mr. Deadpan will have his ears glued to the radio when the shooting starts about 10 p. m. (EST) because this little shindig is going to mean some folding money to him, too, when he meets up with the winner eventually.

Days Creek Teams Take Two Games

DAYS CREEK, Nov. 29.—The Days Creek high school basketball team won a closely contested game from Lookingglass Wednesday night on the Days Creek floor, 21 to 20. The volleyball game was equally close, but the Days Creek girls wound up on the long end of a 24 to 21 score, to give Days Creek a double victory.

The basketball game was close all the way, but at the half, Days Creek led, 10 to 7. DRAIN, Nov. 29.—The Drain basketball team journeyed to Gardiner Wednesday night and returned victorious by a score of 28 to 19.

Twenty two fouls were called during the encounter with Drain sinking 8 of 15 while Gardiner connected with 5 of 10 tries.

O. S. C. Favored To Defeat U. of O. In Annual Battle

EUGENE, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The football forces of the University of Oregon go to the post for the 44th time at Corvallis Saturday afternoon against Oregon State college—a Pacific coast conference game which is the most ancient gridiron classic of the Pacific northwest. The intra-state series was inaugurated back in 1894. And after more than a week of secret practice, Coach Oliver believes his webfoots are ready to end Oregon State's four-year winning streak.

But everything points toward another Beaver triumph. The staters hold on third place in the Pacific coast conference standings as compared to Oregon's sixth-place rating; comparative scores favor the orangemen by 26 points; betting commissioners are giving 2½ to 1 that the Corvallis team wins; an Oliver-coached team has never beaten one of Lon Stiner's clubs.

It's too pat, and the game—rain or shine, and it looks like rain—has all the cleet marks of a stunning upset. The only traditional thing favoring the Webfoots is that no team has ever won more than four consecutive victories. Oregon leads in the series, 23 to 13 with seven games tied.

The starting Oregon lineup is nearly as much of a mystery as to Oregon's plans of attack, what with the secret drills. Rumors have it, however, that Oliver has developed a spanking new attack for O. S. C. and critics are of the opinion that Oregon will need every offensive threat the Ducks can muster to down the powerful Beavers who have lost only to Stanford and Washington this season.

Oregon's only pre-game edge appears in the punting and on defense. With Isberg and Boyd handling the kicking, Oregon boasts as potent a punting team as any on the coast. And it is an established fact that Oregon is rated the finest defensive club in the conference.

Oregon's starting lineup is almost certain to find the usual line, with Horne and Regner at the ends, Stuart and Johnson at the tackles, Segale and Colwell at the guards, and either Jacobsen or Wilson at center. The backfield is another mystery, with close observers predicting an all-senior quarter with Halski at quarter, Berry and Isberg at the halfback berths, and Steinstrom at fullback.

Besides these four backs, five other Webfoots will be playing their final, collegiate football—Horne, Stuart, Jacobsen, Mabee and Harris.
