Two Douglas CCC Camps Rated Tops

Steamboat and South Umpqua Falls CCC camps, both in Douglas county, stand No. 1 and No. 2 in efficiency rating for January in the Medford area, according to reports received today at the local office of the Umpqua National forest. One or the other of these two camps has held the top rating almost continuously for the past 18 months, V. V. Harpham, supervisor of the Umpqua forest, reports. Rating are made on facilities, general maintenance, educational programs and general efficiency.

South Umpqua Falls camp has been particularly outstanding in its accident safety record, having had no lost-time accident for 29 continuous months, while Steamboat camp has had no lost-time accidents for 16 months. Translated into man hours, it means 113,500 hours or 436 years for one man without accident, the report shows.
