LIVE MUSIC!

One function of recorded music is to replace the player's part in the interaction of musician and audience during a musical performance. An Irish setter could represent the audience. There could be a rehearsal for "listening to music." It wouldn't be the same.

Despite our reluctance to recognize human responses that cannot be measured by testing norms, one might concede that a person's response to music played and sung by humans in the very same room would be different than the response to reproductions of performances.

Changes will come whether we take responsibility for them or not. It is the goal of the Upper Left Edge to report these changes and to attempt to participate on the side of the Arts and the Environment, in the future of the planet. We encourage our readers to do the same.
