Her Heart Upon Her Sleeve.

The up to date girl, says the New York Sun, wears her heart upon her sleeve. It's a gold or silver heart, to be sure, and it dangles about her neck from a long, slender chain, but it is of locket pattern, and within it are a likeness and the lock of hair-presumably of her sweetheart. The hearts are about an inch and a half long and appear in all grades of expensiveness. Sometimes they are of richly chased gold set with precious stones, but again they are simply of frosted silver. They are known "Trilby hearts."

A HOMEMADE HAMMOCK.

Any One Can Make It and Have Se It may be easily constructed out of an ordinary barrel and a good length of hemp rope sufficiently stont to bear the weight of a grown person.

If there is no empty one to be found in the storercom or cellar of your home, it may be purchased at any grocery store for 25 cents or less. Remove the top and bottom of the barrel, and three inches from the edge, both top and bottom, bore holes by means of a gimlet between the staves all around.

Thus you have a row of holes at each and of the barrel, through which may be laced the rope, inside and out, and fastened firmly at a chosen stave on either side. You will be surprised to find how nicely the ropes will adjust themselves in the half circle or grooves afforded by the gimlet holes.

Knock off the barrel hoops, and your hammock will fall at your feet, the staves opening out smoothly, held sesurely by the ropes.

Ropes attached at the four corners will swing the hammock from stout brass hooks fastened on the tree trunks on the lawn, or between a piazza post and the house, upon the latter.

There is a deal of luxury in this simple, homely device. The swell of the stave toward the center will be found to exactly fit the back when in a reclining position, and, moreover, this hammock will not double up and incase one in uncertainty of getting in and out, as the net ones are so prone to do.

For the lawn the hammock need only receive a coat of English enamel paint in some bright, cheery color and be fitted with a Japanese rush pillow, or circular net, which can be purchased for 10 cents, but for the piazza we have seen one elaborately decorated.

It was painted a vivid yellow, and the ropes had been stretched over in crimson wool, finished in bunches of pompons that hung from the brass books pompons that hung from the brass hooks that suspended the hammock.

It appears that Newport society girls have formulated a rule for graceful walking, which pedestrians will please copy if they wish to get on in this world. An intelligent writer thus de scribes this step: "One of the cardinal points," she says, "is that the advanc-ing foot should be placed a long way ad of the other, so as to make a very long step, almost a stride, and to keep this stride graceful the foot that is left behind lifts itself to the toe and takes a right angle swing. The toe must always be set down first, or the body will sink too heavily at each, like the step of a fat woman. The pointed toed shoe is preferred if long enough, as it cuts the air and lends elasticity to the foot." There! This is uncommon sense, but the Newport pedestrian always walks just that way. Therefore let every girl who can forsake her wheel long enough to walk at all try it. She will feel she is in the swim right off, for Miss Amy Bend and Miss Julia Grant, besides half a dozen other fair ones now doing this swan step act, are declared to be "beau-tiful walkers."—Boston Herald.

Trimmings For Summer Bodice

Lace, ribbon an bead decorations are all noted on the bodices, while empire capes, epaulets, vandyke arrangements and various other designs are shown for their adornment, writes Isabel A. Mallon in The Ladies' Home Journal. As bead trimmings are quite expensive, it is well to know that there may be gotten, in the large shops, strings of beads and spangles to be applied to ribbon or piece material, so that the economical woman may form a fashionable garniture without spending much money. Satin ribbon is more generally seen than either velvet or grosgrain, and the reasons for its popularity are not only that it ties easier, but that it contrasts more effectively with the fabric proper. Stripes and plaids in silk are fancied for plain bodices, while if a plain color is used it is given an elaborate air by its trimming. Cotton blouses frequently have a double ruffle down the front for their only trimming, as it is conceded to be in best taste to develop them sim-

Former Deaf Mutes Give Recitations and

A unique and interesting entertainent was provided the other night for the friends and patrons of the Wright-Humason School For the Oral Instruction of the Deaf in New York by the pupils of that institution. All who par ticipated were persons who are totally deaf and would be mutes had they not been taught mechanically to speak. The first part of the programme consisted of the recitation of "Miles Standish," by Helen Keller, a 15-year-old girl, who has been both deaf and blind since she was 18 months old. She is now learning to read the lips of a person speaking by laying the fingers upon them. She eommitted the poem to memory from the embossed characters used by the blind alphabet. When in doubt, she refreshed her memory by means of the raised letters.

Although her articulation is necess rily imperfect, her words were audible and intelligible to most of those in the room. The reading was illustrated by a series of seven tableaus in Puritan cos-tume. The pupils who took part in the tableaus were Bertha M. Freeman, J. Pierson Radeliffe, Will J. Quinlan and Willard K. Taft. They were followed by Katharine Woodward, an 8-year-old child, in a Greek dance.

The performance was concluded by a two act farce, written by one of the pupils, Robert H. Moulton. There were eight speaking parts, all of which were enacted by persons who had been taught to speak. As they were all totally deaf, it was necessary for them to take their cues by watching each other's lips. The performance would have been a very exeditable one for any amateurs.

Mr. Moulton, who played the leading part, spoke with great distinguess. He has been prepared for college at the school and will enter Columbia next fall. He expects to have no difficulty in recitation and will be able to understand part of the lectures by watching the lecturers' lips. The others in the cast were Bertha M. Freeman, Florence Shattuck, Katharine Woodward, Carrie Macniel, Willard K. Taft, Francis Bell and Mary Nicholas.

The entertainment was the first of the sort ever attempted at the school, and Mr. Wright was much pleased with its success. The preparation for it, he said, had been of great value as a means of practical instruction to the pupils.— New York Sun.

Relative Strength of Metal and Timber. Dr. Robert H. Thurston, in a recent article, discusses various materials in which comparisons of interest are made. At the outset he gives the following generally accepted figures: Cast iron weighs 444 pounds to the cubic foot and an inch square bar will sustain a weight of 16,500 pounds; bronze, weight 525 pounds, tenacity 36,000; wrought iron, weight 480, tenacity 50,000; hard "struck" steel, weight 490, tenacity 78,000; aluminium, weight 168, tenac-ity 26,000. A bar of pine just as heavy as a bar of steel an inch square will hold up 125,000 pounds, the best ash 175,000 and some hemlock 200,000 pounds. Wood is bulky. It occupies 10 or 12 times the space of steel.

A GENUINE DREAMER.

A fussy little man, who had plenty of money and spent it lavishly, was one of the saloon passengers who arrived the other day on the American liner Paris. He was looked upon as a nuisance by some of the passengers on the voyage, but when quarantine was reached and the passengers read of the president's message and subsequent events they changed their views about the little

But it was different yesterday morn ing when the papers were thrown aboard at quarantine. Then the little man became the cynosure of all eyes. NATURAL SOFT SOAP. Found In a Series of Pits In the Big Horn

A party of gentlemen from the east, who have been hunting and fishing for the past month in the Big Horn moun tains and basin, in Wyoming, met while there with a pertinent illustration of the natural marvels of the great central west. This was nothing less than the discovery of a series of pits, or vats, of natural soft soap, the excellent quality of the product showing that old Dame Nature is well competent when in the mood to hold up fully the end of her string as a housewife.

These natural soft soap pits, seven in number and having an average capacity of about 1,000 gallons, are scattered over an area of two or three acres of alkali land, situated just below the mouths of half a dozen hot springs and two large springs of practically pure lubricating oil. The water from the hot springs and the oil drainage combining with each other and acting on the almanufactory, the product of which is gathered in the adjacent series of earth cavities, or pits.

Just below the pits themselves is a wide tract of spongiest marsh soil, in whose depths the soft soap surplus is absorbed. The product is perfectly marketable, and in the coming commercial development of the Big Horn basin there will doubtless be a natural soft soap syndicate. - Rocky Mountain News.

FUNERAL TROLLEY CARS.

Brooklyn About to Place Them on Lines Leading to Cemeteries.

Funeral cars on several of the Brooklyn trolley lines of street railway are to be placed in operation next spring if the experimental car on the Ridgewood line proves to be a success. The system has worked successfully in several western cities, notably Abilene, Kan.; Lincoln, Neb., and Chicago.

The cars making up the train will be appropriately painted black. The first car is especially constructed for the purpose. A bier in the center will support the casket. Opposite it will be seats for every medicine known to the apothe-

The next car, with sable blinds to draw down, will be reserved for the immediate mourners and will be attached to the funeral car as a trailer. The trolley pole of the first car will be draped with crape. The main body of the mourners and sympathizing friends will follow in ordinary cars at as close a headway as possible.

During the mediaval times the mon asteries, serving as centers of instruc tion, gave some embodiment to the med-ical profession, like that which our col-leges give. In Italy there later arose institutions for educating physicians, as the medical school of Salerno in 1140. In France before the end of the thireenth century the surgeons had become ncorporated into a distinct college, following in this way the incorporated medical faculty, and while thus integrating themselves they excluded from their class the barbers, who, forbidden to perform operations, were allowed only to dress wounds, etc. In our own onntry there have been successive con

The barber surgeons of London were incorporated by Edward IV, and in the fifteenth century the College of Physicians was founded and "received power to grant licenses to practice medicine -a power which had previously been confined to the bishops." Progress in definiteness of integration was shown when in Charles I's time persons were forbidden to exercise surgery in London and within seven miles, until they had been examined by the company of barbers and surgeons, and also when, by the eighteenth of George II, excluding the barbers, the Royal College of Surgeons was formed. At the same time here have grown up medical schools in various places which prepare students for examination by these incorporated medical bodies, further integrations being implied. Hospitals, too, scattered throughout the kingdom, have become places of clinical instruction, some united to colleges and some not. Another species of integration has been achieved by medical journals, weekly and quarterly, which serve to bring into communication educational institutions, in corporated bodies and the whole profes sion. -Herbert Spencer
