R. H. S Indians Set For Grid Battle With Cottage Grove

The danger of overconfidence in football was demonstrated again over the weekend when the Springfield Millers were beaten 13 to 6 by University High of Eugene. Roseburg's overconfidence cost the Indians their only loss of the season Oct. 12, when they lost to the Millers 13 to 12 at Roseburg, after beating University High the previous week 51 to 0. The defeat of Springfield by the Eugene team decidedly improves Roseburg's position in the matter of comparative scores.

The Indians, however, will not be troubled with overconfidence on Friday night of this week when they play the Cottage Grove Lions on Finlay field. The Roseburg team, after trouncing Junction City Friday afternoon, 34 to 0, stopped in Cottage Grove to view the game between the Lions and Sweet Home, a game which Cottage Grove won, 45 to 0. The Indians saw a rugged, strong team, with a particularly heavy line and a great deal of power in its running attack.

Friday night's game doubtless will determine the league championship as Roseburg and Cottage Grove, both undefeated in conference play, are outstanding teams in the league. Following the Cottage Grove game this week, Roseburg will have only one conference game left, a meeting at Sweet Home, Nov. 16. Games will be played against Ashland and Grants Pass in the interim, both being King's-X games insofar as conference standings are concerned.

New Law Puts More Safety Into Drugs, Eliminates Lots Of Confusion as to Their Use

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug administration is eliminating double-talk in the labeling of items that get into the family medicine chest.

New regulations effective Oct. 10 for all medicines procurable at a drug store provide:

1. If a medicine is safe for self-medication, the label on the bottle or box must contain full directions explaining what the product is good for, how much to take, when and how.

Products in this class include aspirin tablets, mild laxatives, cough medicines, mouth washes and gargles, and the like.

Nothing Vague

There are to be no more of those vague instructions such as "two teaspoons as directed by your physician," because medicines in this class do not require a doctor's supervision.

2. If a medicine is unsafe or ineffective without a doctor's supervision—medicines such as the sulfa drugs, digitalis and thyroid extract—the label must bear only the legend: "To be dispensed only by or on the prescription of a physician (or dentist or veterinarian)."

You'll have to have a doctor's prescription to get them, and the doctor's instructions will be typed on by the druggist.

Unlabeled Items

3. A third class of products will not be required to carry either full directions or the prescription legend. This class includes such familiar products as tincture of iodine and sodium bicarbonate.

Dr. Robert P. Herwick, chief of the drug division of the Food and Drug administration, says the new rules should not only contribute to greater safety but should eliminate a lot of confusion.

In the past, he said, it has been possible for one medicine to be put up in different packages—some being labeled for prescription use and some being labeled as home remedies.

One reason for this has been that some drug houses that manufactured prescription items often would put "prescription" labels on items meant as home remedies, just to be on the safe side.

Others would slap a prescription label on a home remedy because they didn't want to go to the trouble of making out a more detailed label. This was done, Dr. Herwick said, even though it was known that the remedies would be sold right over the counter without a prescription.

Purpose Cited

Under the new regulations, the purpose of the prescription legend will be (1) to warn the druggist not to sell the product over the counter without a prescription and (2) to warn the public against use without medical advice.

Some prescription items may also bear the symbol "Rx" which is synonymous with the prescription legend, but the full text of the warning itself must also be carried.

Another point covered in the new rules:

Certain products are made from animal tissues, such as ovaries. Their value is not completely known, and they are useful only in connection with other treatment prescribed by a doctor.

Under the old rules it has been possible to purchase such products without a prescription. Food and Drug regulations have required only that they carry a "disclaimer" stating that the product contains "no known active principle."

Under the new regulations, the products must carry not only the disclaimer but a prescription legend as well.

MacPhail, Yankees' Boss, Held on Assault Counts

BEL AIR, Md., Oct. 22.—(AP)—President Larry MacPhail of the New York Yankees waived preliminary hearing today on two assault charges and one of disorderly conduct and was ordered bound over to the November grand jury.

MacPhail, whose arrest on the three warrants followed an October 5 disturbance in the Bel Air telephone exchange over his inability to place a long distance call from his showplace stock-farm near Bel Air, furnished the same bond of $500 pending grand jury action. A nationwide four-hour work stoppage of telephone employes occurred that afternoon.

Job Is to Hold Germany Up, Churchill Declares

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Former Prime Minister Churchill, urging Britain's labor government to accelerate demobilization of the armed forces, declared today that "the task of holding Germany down will not be a hard one—it will be much more difficult to hold her up."

Churchill, speaking in commons as the leader of the conservative opposition, said the occupation of Germany and the low countries should require no more than 400,000 troops with the same number required for the Mediterranean zone.

Injured RHS Student Removed to Portland
