of the sphere that we call the earth.

(IF you have no globe, and are interested in the subject, you can confirm these statements by a series of rough experiments with the baby's ball.)

YOU will recall without difficulty that Columbus' voyage to America was a significant event in world history. You may be slightly hazy as to the REASON. Being an American, it may occur to you that the discovery of the western hemisphere accounted for the significance.

In a way, that is true. The discovery of America (meaning both the Americas) DID change the whole outlook of the world, both politically and economically—politically because of the workable excellence of the form of government that was developed by the colonists in North America; economically because of the new resources opened up for development in the western hemisphere AND the tremendous development that accompanied the growth of the new and better American way of life.

BUT—

You mustn't forget that the western hemisphere was discovered by ACCIDENT. Columbus practically stubbed his toe on it.

He was greatly disappointed.

HE was disappointed because what he was looking for was a SHORTER ROUTE to the markets and the raw materials sources of the Far East. He believed he could find this shorter route by sailing AROUND the world, which was then generally believed to be flat.

The western hemisphere was just a seemingly impassable barrier in his way. You will recall that for nearly two centuries the hopes of navigators were centered on finding a way AROUND this obstacle.

Columbus died a more or less discredited man because the unexpected presence of the western hemisphere upset his hope of sailing around the earth and so finding a shorter route to the desirable markets and raw material sources of the Far East.

SO, you see, we are really back to Columbus' time and to Columbus' problems—in that we are again seeking SHORTER routes—for TRADE BY AIR.

That is why the flight of the Pacusan Dreamboat over the north pole is more than a mere stunt.

(UNFORTUNATELY, the routes that are used for commerce are and always have been USED FOR WAR. But let's forget that fact for at least a moment.)

INCIDENTALLY, PEPPER, which is now acutely scarce (because of war) was one of the prime desirables of the Far East.

It wasn't so much then the fact that pepper (and other spices) made food taste better. They helped to PRESERVE food—for in those far-back days canning and refrigeration hadn't been even thought of.

(They helped partly by concealing the fact that food was beginning to spoil.)

Backfire

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Robert Throckmorton, a butcher, obtained the wrapping paper for a ham, stuffed it and placed the dummy package in the rear window of his car so he could observe the envious reactions of passers-by.

He forgot to remove it overnight. Next morning the fake ham had disappeared — and the thief had smashed one of Throckmorton's car windows in the process of taking it.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IDEAS

By CHARLES V. STANTON

The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce, engaged in its annual membership roll call, recently mailed out a little pamphlet entitled "A Common Cause." This enclosure went out with membership application blanks, the closing paragraphs of the message being an invitation to business and professional men and women to join the Chamber, if not already members.

While this pamphlet was directed primarily to present or prospective members of the Chamber of Commerce, it contains some thoughts we believe deserve more general consideration.

Too many of us accept our Chamber of Commerce as a matter of course. We envision it as an organization devoted exclusively to the job of attracting more tourists or settlers, and acting on behalf of business management.

Anyone familiar with the work of the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce, however, knows that a great part of its labor is on behalf of non-members. For instance, it has assisted hundreds of persons with housing priorities, it has worked closely with the recreational program, it has aided labor unions, it is a clearing house for information. Hundreds of activities outside of direct work on behalf of the membership could be recited.

Its pamphlet is devoted principally to economic and business matters, but we believe the general public will be interested in the ideas expressed, and so we devote the balance of this column today to a reprint, in part, of the Chamber of Commerce message.

"Big business" within this community, as elsewhere throughout our nation, has been subordinated by big government, and "small" business, through which this nation developed into greatness, has been dragged down to even a lower rung on the ladder of freedom of opportunity.

Every big business is the outgrowth of small business because free enterprise released a dynamic power whose fruits have been preponderantly creative, constructive and beneficial to mankind.

The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce is interested in ALL BUSINESS, large and small, because all business today must combat the unsound idea that security and happiness are to be achieved only by subordination of individual freedom and responsibility to big government.

Business men, large and small, must team up through organization if they expect to remain business men in the true sense of the word and not mere economic puppets, manipulated by bureaucrats who use red tape as strings to make them dance.

The future of this community, yes, even this nation, is dependent upon organized action by business, large and small.

The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce has been fighting battles for business men of this community for 38 years. It is the clearing house for many problems, where the best minds of the community are devoted to their consideration and produce a plan resulting in their solution.

Almost daily we read of new business establishments, new industrial operations and additional professional men locating in this vicinity. In many instances they have been attracted by factual information presented to them by your chamber of commerce. There is almost a constant flow of announcements of contracts being let for highway improvements and of great sums of money being allocated for other public projects including an expansion program for our Veterans hospital, surveys of recreational advantages within our National Forest and of reclamation needs in the Umpqua basin or of licenses and franchises permitting the expansion of our public utilities. In securing these benefits the activities of your chamber of commerce cannot be discounted.

Any investment you may make in the chamber does not mean simply the "purchase" of a membership. Actually—you invest in the cooperation of the most able business men in the Roseburg area, all joined together in a common cause for the general welfare of all business and rendering, to them, a maximum service at a minimum cost.

Roseburg is your city. The chamber of commerce is a vital part of your city—it is YOUR chamber of commerce and YOU should be a vital part of it, because it has a voice, an arm and even a fist. Its weight of strong influence comes from united business and industry, which provides the finances to make it truly the representative of and spokesman for the business interests of this fast-growing community.

E. F. Roglitz Joins Staff At Doyle's as Salesman

E. F. Roglitz has been added to the staff of employes at Doyle's Sales and Service on Highway 99 and Garden Valley Road, Owner J. W. Doyle said Tuesday.

Roglitz, formerly Nordling Parts Co. salesman, will be managing salesman of the new Gryco, 2-axle drives and Car-life Filters and Elements of which Doyles is the sole distributor in this locality.
