Lincoln Wirt Brings Story From Europe

Noted War Correspondent on Chautauqua Platform

Dr. Lincoln Wirt, noted war correspondent and publicist, is bringing to Chautauqua one of the most authoritative and interesting lectures of the war now on the American platform. He says "America must put every possible man, gun and dollar into the conflict now, 'over there,' otherwise we shall face a triumphant Germany, single-handed, on this side of the sea a little later."

Bearing letters from the Secretary of State he visited Europe, passed through the guarded military zone of five countries and received an insight into actual conditions there accorded to but few men. He was in front line trenches and tells a vivid story of the battles witnessed in France and Belgium, graphically describing the use of poisonous gases, hand grenades, shrapnel, liquid fire and all the new death-dealing devices of modern warfare.

Three Octaves Above Tetrazzini

Charles Crawford Gorst, "Bird Man," at Chautauqua Sounds High Note

Charles Crawford Gorst, the "bird man," who is to give his illustrated lecture, "Bird Life in America," at the coming Chautauqua, is a naturalist of national standing. His entire life has been devoted to the study of birds and their songs and he now knows perfectly over three hundred songs of our little feathered friends throughout America. In imitating the tiny voice of the humming bird he sounds a note three octaves above Tetrazzini's highest note. Many phonograph records of his remarkable whistling are featured by both Edison and Victor Companies. In presenting his lecture-entertainment, Mr. Gorst illustrates American bird life with beautiful pastel paintings of his own creation.

Zedelers at Chautauqua

Symphonic Quintet Popular in Musical World

The Zedeler Symphonic Quintet brings to the Chautauqua a genuinely new idea, that of presenting symphonic concerts with a company of only five musicians—each an artist. To secure this symphonic effect a specially constructed reed organ is carried. This gives all the reed and wind effects of a large orchestra and combined with the piano and stringed instruments, produces an effect as startling as it is unique. They have refuted the old belief that American audiences do not care for the best in music by making the classics popular with every audience.
