Search Launched For Huntress In Idaho Mountains

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Men, dogs and planes searched the snow covered hills of northern Idaho today for a 27-year-old Idaho huntress.

Mrs. Lois Schreigost, 27, of Rose Lake, Idaho has been sought since late Wednesday when she was missed by members of her hunting party.

Calls for more volunteer searchers were issued by sheriff's officers and police in Shoshone and Kootenai counties last night.

Two trained dogs from Spokane have been taken to the scene of the search in southern Kootenai county. Officers returning from a camp set up in the Latour creek area have described the region as "extremely rugged."

More than a foot of snow has fallen in parts of the mountains there. Temperatures in the Latour creek region fell to 21 degrees last night. Freezing temperatures prevailing in the area.

Planes flying low over the timbered hills yesterday found no sign of the woman and reported that the search was hampered by low clouds and rain.

Officers and residents estimated nearly 100 persons took part in the search yesterday and it was hoped broadcasts for volunteers would attract several times that number today.

Today's efforts were to be concentrated in the region where two men heard a woman crying out Wednesday night. The shouting presumed to have come from Mrs. Schreigost, ceased before the men could locate her.

CUB PACK MEETING

All parents interested in starting a Cub Scout pack in the Dillard-Winston area are invited to attend a meeting to be held at the Dillard school house at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 12.

State Policemen Combing Woods For Fugitives

PORTLAND, Oct. 8— (AP) — Twelve State policemen were beating through the woods near Milwaukie, today for three persons who fled from a car being pursued of officers.

The car missed a curve and crashed into a house about midnight. Strewn in the wreckage were postage stamps, blank money orders from the Benton City, Wash. Postoffice, and approximately $1,140 in currency.

Three persons—possible two men and a woman—jumped from the car after the crash and fled into heavy woods.

An investigation showed the car had been stolen at Vancouver, Wash., yesterday from Jack Matlick, a Hermiston, Ore., businessman.

The chase began on the Mount Hood Loop highway near Cherryville last night, when state policeman Ben Weber saw a car near a gravel pit. A man was standing outside it. When the officer approached, the man jumped in the car and sped away, too fast for Weber's pursuing car.

State police set up roadblocks. The pursuit continued in a thick fog, the car disappearing at moments only to be spotter later. About midnight it crashed into the garage of H. W. Cramer on Outfield road, southwest of Milwaukie.

Postal Inspectors reported the Benton City postoffice was broken into some time Thursday night.

They said the postoffice safe, containing about $500 in cash and $3,500 in U. S. Savings Bonds, was taken. The 500-pound safe was found yesterday about two miles from Benton City. It had been pounded open. The burglars also took a large number of money order forms.

The inspectors said the prowlers gained admittance through a toilet window.

The inspector's office in Seattle said there was no evidence of how many were involved in the theft, but that the heavy safe was apparently carried out. There were no signs of its having been dragged.
