A Juvenile Opinion.

Baltimore American.

Since ma's got Christian Science, us kids is dead in luck—
No hot old mustard plasters upon our chests are stuck;
She never puts no ginger upon the stove to boil,
Nor doses up us children with that old castor oil.
She just says: "Look here, children, no need for you to squall.
You think your stomach's aching? There's no such thing at all."
Since ma's got Christian Science, she doesn't use a whip
To punish us, but simply takes puckers in her lip,
And thinks and thinks right at us, until she near goes blind,
And then she says she's whipped us by whipping in her mind.
That is the absent treatment, but anyone can see
That it don't make connections with such a boy as me.
But pa—now he is diff'rent. When he's at home he'll say:
"You children best be careful not to be bad today."
And you bet we are careful, 'cause pa he says that he
Will give us switchin' science hot from the willow tree,
And, as for absent treatment, why, he says, with a wink:
"I'll tend to all the switchin'—ma can stand by and think."
