Umpqua News Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thomason drove from Portland Monday for a visit with their son Bob and his family, but got stuck in the mud just before they reached their destination. They had to get Don Harrington to help them. The mud hole has also retarded the school buses.

Little Bill Murphy ran a splinter in his foot Sunday and the doctor had to take five stitches to close the wound after removing the splinter. He returned to school Wendesday on a pair of homemade crutches.

The Hubbard Creek Road is almost impassable for a stretch beyond Clark Hill. Several cars have had to be pulled out of the mud this week. Monday evening, the Umpqua School bus made it through, but the high school bus didn't. Tuesday evening, the high school bus stopped at the Ben Amerson place and backed down the hill, while Loretta and Donnie Thomason, Bobby and Wayne Germond, Butch and Buddy Briggs, and Lonnie Leonard walked the rest of the way home. Lynn Leonard rode home later with a neighbor, and his sister, Mary Ellen, stayed all night with Joanne Perry. Truck loads of gravel were being spread on the bad road, Wednesday, but the high school bus driver was not planning to make the entire run.

The government search was set off, the AEC said, by discovery last October of "carnotite-like uranium mineral" by J. D. Love of the U.S. Geological Survey.
