The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

WEDNESDAY.....OCTOBER 24, 1883

A Scene.

A Chronicle's New York special concerning the Northern Pacific boom, says: "The floor of the Stock Exchange was densely packed and the excitement was intense. Both the small galleries were completely filled with eager spectators, few of whom could comprehend the wild demonstration below. The brokers were seen crowded up in front of the chairman's desk, moving their arms in the air, while husky, seemingly unintelligible sounds issued from their mouths. The chairman helped along the strife by continually pounding with his hard wooden gavel. Perpetual streams of humanity kept moving in and out of the door, and although the crowd inside was closely packed, each individual's movement was apparently accomplished with difficulty. The price of Northern Pacific preferred advanced for cash delivery, and brokers began to ask each other in a dazed sort of way what it meant, and there was no larking on the floor of the Exchange. Each man was in sober earnest, and there were many who made conservative observations on the situation and who shook their heads thoughtfully and expressed fears that the "boom" would be disastrous. The lowest price paid for Northern Pacific preferred for cash deliveries during the day was 61, the highest price was 78¼, and the closing price was 75¾. The same stock sold for regular delivery as low as 57 and as high as 64, and closed at 72¾. Just before the close of the market common stock of the Northern Pacific had a small sized boom, and its price for regular delivery advanced from 25⅛ to 26½, and for cash delivery from 25¼ to 27¼. The close of the market left the street in a state of feverish anxiety. Some brokers feared there would be a corner in preferred stocks that would bring serious disaster. The matter was discussed with interest in the up town hotels and restaurants last evening. Mr. Villard's friends were disposed to be jubilant over what they regarded as his coup d' etat. They said that the bears who had been selling Northern Pacific preferred short, deserved to be squeezed, and that they would be squeezed still more. As Mr. Villard walked through Exchange place towards his office in the Mills building, he was surrounded and congratulated by his acquaintances. He is reported to have said to one of his friends that Northern Pacific would be worth 4 per cent. more before evening on Monday. It was stated that a very strong party has been formed to advance Oregon Transcontinental next week. The statement was that enough Northern Pacific preferred had been secured to render the second mortgage bonds a certainty. On this the money would be advanced to enable the company to repay its debt to the Oregon Transcontinental, which in turn would take up its hypothecated securities. A committee would be appointed to investigate the condition of the company's affairs and would make a report which would re-establish confidence, and in the revulsion of feeling the stock would have an extraordinary rise.

THE surprising fact is made known that from the appropriation of $100,000,000 for the payment of pensions up to June 30th, 1883, $39,000,000 remains unexpended, and has been re-appropriated for the fiscal year succeeding that date.

A WEST VIRGINIA secret organization, banded together to protect illicit distillers, was found to have at its head a United States gauger, by name Hewes.

MESSRS. SIEMENS are energetically pushing the work on the new Mackay-Bennett cables. They will form a duplicate line from Ireland to Nova Scotia, continued from Nova Scotia by special cable to Cape Ann, and having a branch line from Ireland to France. The Messrs. Siemens are convinced that nothing superior ever came from their factories. They will introduce all the improvements suggested by years of research and experience. The length of the entire system of cables will be 5,600 miles. They will be laid by the steamer Faraday next summer.

OREGON TRANSCONTINENTAL has got on the other tack now and is going up. The bears are badly cinched, and are getting a little of the same they dealt out so freely two weeks ago. On Monday the Villard stocks all went up a peg, O. & T. selling for 46¾.

THE latest political rumor is that Blaine and Conkling have "buried the hatchet," and that the programme is for Blaine to run for president and Conkling go back to the senate from New York state.

WHAT would Astorians think of having to pay $6.35 on the $100, as in Yuba county, California?

NEW ORLEANS is talking of building a $30,000,000 bridge across the Mississippi.

THE wheat crop of the United States for '83 is estimated at 420,000,000 bushels.
