Ex-Revenue Collector Shoots Self To Death

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Robert Lee Douglass, 73, former federal collector of internal revenue in Nevada, shot himself to death at his home here Saturday.

Police Inspector Bruce Cunningham said Douglass fired an 8 mm Luger rifle into his mouth in the back yard of his home.

Douglass was collector of internal revenue in Nevada from 1932 until December, 1950, when he resigned.

The resignation came shortly after federal agents listed him as a major stockholder in a Nevada mining company which they asserted was used to extort funds from racketeers involved in income tax troubles.

Glide Students In New Quarters

By MRS. ARTHUR SELBY

The 8th grade students of Glide Elementary School moved Thursday into the new addition to Glide High School. The original completion date was to have been Sept. 15, but the delay was caused by sub-contractors working on several schools at the same time, according to Supt. Byron Evans. Fifty-six students occupy the new quarters with Mrs. C. P. McAuliffe and Hugh Clark, instructors. The music room and the drawing and crafts room in the new addition are expected to be completed by Oct. 15.

Accident Victims Better

Mrs. Leonard Renne returned to her home at Idleyld Park for a few days this week and reported that her husband was released from Providence Hospital the first of the week to recuperate at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. H. Jones, in Portland.

Renne suffered head injuries while driving a "cat" Sept. 19 and underwent brain surgery Sept. 21 at the Portland hospital. He suffers constant pain in his neck, head and back and has lost vision in his left eye, but it is believed this condition is temporary and in time Renne will recover his sight. Renne has made a rapid recovery for the type of injury he suffered, the family states. Mrs. Renne is returning to Portland this weekend to attend her husband.

Glide Residents Get Many Deer

The sight of a jeep loaded with the bodies of seven buck deer brought envious looks from curious spectators as it made its way up the North Umpqua Highway to Idleyld Park late last week, reports Mrs. Arthur Selby of Glide.

In two cars following the carrier were proud Glide residents and hunters Mr. and Mrs. Jim Marier, Charles Marier, Bud Watts, Mrs. Florence Ramsey and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Trenholm, who had shot their prey in the Ochoco Mountains above Prineville.

Other successful Glide hunters returning from Eastern Oregon included a party of five: Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ball, Tommy Ball and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ballou. Each returned with a big buck obtained near Mt. Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Alexander, new owners of Thunder Mt. Lodge, returned with two deer shot near Klamath Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stiffler brought back two bucks from Stevenson Mountain.

From a party of five hunting near Burns, only two hunters, Mrs. Elbert Cellers and L. H. Thiessen, were successful.

David, 12-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cellers, brought back a prize trophy from the trip, though it didn't resemble a deer. Little Cellers shot and killed a 56-pound wildcat whose hide measured 21 inches in width and 48 inches in length.

A party of seven Glide hunters camped at Silver Lake on opening day and returned Wednesday with only one, Ted Evans, getting a deer for his trouble. Pat Padelford was the only successful hunter from a group of three hunting at Lapine.

Government Has Chance Of Getting Some Of Windfall

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews says the government has better than a fighting chance to collect additional taxes on "windfall profits" from postwar building projects.

Andrews gave this appraisal to the Senate Banking Committee, which in months of hearings has exposed millions in profits by builders who got government-insured loans in excess of their construction costs and pocketed the difference.

"Without disclosing exactly what we propose to do," Andrews said, "we think there are aspects of all these cases that give us better than a fighting chance to get at this income."

Chairman Capehart (R-Ind) said a question repeatedly asked by the average person as a result of the committee's investigation was "Are we going to be able to get any of this money back?"

The senator said he didn't know whether any tax laws had been violated, but called Andrews to see what might be done.

Andrews assured the committee he was just as anxious as anyone to collect any additional taxes possible on these profits. He said the builders' methods, as outlined to him, were apparently followed in the expectation that they offered loopholes in the tax laws.

He added, however, "there are a lot less loopholes than most people think."

William Simon, counsel for the committee, said in advance of the hearing "I can't help but feel there still are income tax problems" for some builders who reaped fat returns from the rental housing program.

EUGENE (AP) — No trial date has been set yet for Richard Bailey, whose brother, Alfred, was sentenced Friday to three years in prison for forgery.

The trial of Richard Bailey, once scheduled to begin this month, has been postponed indefinitely because of his health.

Frank Griffin Named Reed College President

PORTLAND (AP) — Frank L. Griffin, 72, former mathematics professor, is the new president of Portland's Reed College.

He was named Friday night by the board of trustees to succeed Dr. Duncan S. Ballantine who last month criticized the school's faculty for interfering in administrative matters, and resigned.

Griffin was directed by the board to suspend the present administration procedures and to replace them by Nov. 15 with new policies designed to eliminate frictions between various campus interests.

Ballantine's resignation climaxed a long-smoldering dispute at the college which was brought to a head by last summer's hearings of the House Un-American Activities committee here.

Three faculty members refused to answer committee questions about Communist connections, citing the Fifth Amendment.

Russia Quits Pt. Arthur, Plans Loan To Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Peiping radio announced Tuesday Russia had agreed to lend Red China 520 million rubles in new credit and assist in building 15 industrial enterprises.

The radio broadcast a communique saying agreement also had been reached "on the question of the naval base at Port Arthur."

Moscow radio simultaneously announced the withdrawal of Russian troops from Port Arthur, the big Manchurian base which the Soviet Union has occupied since the end of World War II.

Automobile Manufacturers Back Big Highway Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Automobile Manufacturers Assn. backs President Eisenhower's "grand plan" to modernize the nation's highway system at an estimated cost of 50 billion dollars over the next 10 years.

William J. Cronin, managing director of the association, told a special five-member presidential advisory committee the nation is wasting three billion dollars a year because the highway system is obsolete.

Cronin said studies by his organizaton show that this sum is being wasted through "excessive fuel consumption, tire and brake wear, needless traffic accidents and time losses for commercial vehicles."

And, he added:

"Because highway transportation is involved in the distribution of all farm and factory products, these cost penalties are part of the price of virtually all consumer goods and are shared by the whole public."

Cronin was the leadoff witness as the committee began a two-day hearing on ways and means of revolutionizing the nation's highway system.

Lloyd C. HKalvorson, an economist for the national Grange, said that while his organization has a long history of support for federal highway aid, he is not at all sure that Grange members will support the President's program. He said more can be learned after the organization's annual meeting next month.

Halvorson raised two objections:

1. It seems unlikely that the additional 50 billion dollars could be raised without deficit financing, which the Grange opposes.

2. Such a program might put the federal government into arear where state and local governments should hold sway.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the committee, said at the outset "We have no choice but to go forward. The question isn't whether or not we need highway improvements but rather how we may get them most quickly and most economically."

Clay's group has instructions to make a report for submission to Congress next January.

Marchers Won't Picket Capitol For McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP) — Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, answering a protest against the scheduling of a pro-McCarthy demonstration in Washington on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, says it will be a "solemn convocation" and there will be "no picketing and no marching in the physical sense."

He said there is nothing "partisan or political" in the plan.

Rabbi Schultz, head of the Joint Committee Against Communism in New York State, issued a statement here in reply to a telegram he received from Rufus H. Wilson, national commander of the American veterans of World War II (Amvets).

Wilson protested Wednesday against choice of Veterans Day for the so-called "March on Washington" to oppose Senate censure of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis).

Rabbi Schultz had said the demonstration in Washington is being spearheaded by his joint committee, which he described as a group of 75 leaders of veterans and patriotic organizations acting as individuals.

Wilson said in a telegram to sponsors of the demonstration:

"We take no sides on the political dispute raging regarding McCarthy censure charges, but must emphatically protest desecration of Veterans Day for partisan political purposes."
